SCHOOL BUILDING INSURANCE VOTED BY BOARD GROUP; DISPUTE ON FEES

$100,000 Deductible Policies Specified — Plan for Special Fund for Brokers' Payments Is Rejected.

A recommendation to insure all St. Louis public school buildings under $100,000 deductible policies against loss from fire or other damage was approved by the Board of Education's insurance committee yesterday, by a two to one vote.

The committee rejected without consideration a proposal made last year to place brokerage fees on school insurance in a special fund for public benefit projects.

Charles J. Dyer, committee chairman, who last year began telling Secretary-Treasurer Mervyn E. Wiethaupt which insurance brokers were to receive these fees, said Wiethaupt "would continue as before" to name the brokers, but with the advice and counsel of the president and vice president of the board.

Under the deductible policies, the school board would pay for all damage to a building up to $100,000, and the insurance company or companies would pay for any additional damage, Dyer said.

Not Covered Now.

With one exception, schools at present are not covered by fire and extended damage insurance. Some board members have pointed out that in the case of a major disaster, such as a tornado, in which several buildings might be destroyed, the board could not pay the cost of reconstruction.

Louis H. Antoine, a committee member, voted against the $100,000 deductible plan, which was proposed by Dyer. "Most of our losses occur within the $100,000 range," Antoine said. He added that he thought the proposal would put "a strait-jacket" on Wiethaupt in selecting insurance policies by forcing him to consider only the deductible type. Later, Antoine said the deductible insurance "would be better than no insurance at all."

Dyer said after the meeting that the average annual cost of the deductible insurance would be $45,000. The annual cost of a program suggested last year by an advisory committee of the Insurance Board of St. Louis, which would cover 90 per cent of loss, was estimated at $59,000.

$100,000 in Premiums.

The board has been carrying various types of insurance, with annual premiums totaling about $100,000, including fire and extended damage coverage on non-school properties.

When the proposal to put brokerage fees in a special fund was brought up at the meeting, Dyer said: "As far as we're concerned here, that particular recommendation is out." The plan originally had been included in a series of insurance recommendations made by Wiethaupt last year.

Antoine, who has supported the special fund idea, said, "I'm not going to bully the situation," and did not insist that the question be put to a vote. He said later he would make a

1956 QUESTION AT WHITE HOUSE QUIZ SHOW

STANTON, Ky., Feb. 29 (AP)—The proposed Powell County hospital will get at least 25,000 bricks free—it's all in a day's work for the Sipple Brick Co. and its employees.

H. B. Sipple had offered to donate half the bricks needed for the eight-bed hospital. He raised the offer when his employees asked to donate a day's work to the project.

Sipple estimated 25,000 bricks will be needed. He offered 30,000—a day's production at the plant—if necessary for completion. He said the cost of 30,000 bricks would be about $12,000.

COFFEE TO COST '$10' A CUP

POTSDAM, N.Y., Feb. 29 (AP)—Under the glass top of a desk at the F. J. Bovay plumbing shop was a "10 bill." Someone broke a window near the desk, reached through and smashed the glass top and made off with the bill.

What the burglar didn't know then but probably does now: The bill was an advertisement. The reverse side carried a notation that the bill was good for one cup of coffee at a local restaurant.

Iowa Politician Tells of $2500 Offer by Neff, but He Denies It

Direct Conflict in Testimony of G.O.P. Committeeman and Lobbyist at Gas Bill Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UPI)—Robert K. Goodwin, Iowa Republican national committeeman, testified today that oil lobbyist John M. Neff offered him a $2500 campaign contribution for Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Rep., Ia.).

Neff denied Goodwin's statement under oath. He said Goodwin's testimony was "wrong in many particulars."

Both testified before a special Senate committee investigating campaign contributions to Senators during the Senate debate on the natural gas bill.

The investigation was set off by the disclosure of Senator Francis Case (Rep., South Dakota), that he had received a $2500 campaign contribution from Neff, a Lexington (Neb.) attorney and lobbyist for Superior Oil Co. of California.

Goodwin testified that Neff made the $2500 offer in early November when Neff visited Goodwin's office. On a second visit later, Goodwin said, Neff offered $1000 "as a sort of a down payment, contingent on meeting the Senator" (Hickenlooper).

Neff flatly denied that there was any second visit. His attorney, Ivan D. Evans of Broken Bow, Neb., offered to give the committee a day-by-day, hour-by-hour account to show that Neff could not have made a second trip to Goodwin's Des Moines office.

The direct conflict in sworn testimony by the two witnesses immediately raised a question of possible perjury prosecution.

Chairman Walter F. George (Dem., Ga.), said a transcript of the hearing record would be sent to the Department of Justice. He said the department is the proper agency to resolve the flat conflict in testimony.

Goodwin also gave the committee a list dated last Oct. 19 and showing the membership of the Senate arrayed in three columns labeled "for," "doubtful," and "against." Neff and his law partner, Paul J. Gerdes, left the list, perhaps "inadvertently," Neff said.

PRESIDENT SAYS DECISION IS ALL RIGHT WITH WIFE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UPI)—It's all right with Mamie Eisenhower for her husband to decide whether to run for a second term, she said today.

This was disclosed by Mr. Eisenhower today. He was asked specifically how Mrs. Eisenhower felt about his decision.

Mrs. Eisenhower was in the residential section of the White House, signing some letters when the President made today's announcement.

Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary was pressed for comment from Mrs. Eisenhower on the President's announcement. Finally, Mrs. Eisenhower authorized her to say that she would be at the President's side when he addresses the nation tonight just as she always has been at his side.

TAX COLLECTOR REACHES ALL WAY TO ANTARCTICA

ABOARD U.S.S. EASTWIND, McMurdo Sound, Feb. 29.—For the last few days Chief Warrant Officer Alvin R. Rutz, of Stoneham, Mass., has been patrolling the Antarctic, out a free pamphlet to 195 men aboard this Coast Guard icebreaker.

Rutz, finance officer aboard this ship in the Antarctic, is very popular among the crew but his free reading matter isn't. It is entitled: "Your 1955 Federal Income Tax Forms."

Being good citizens, however, the men, who have been given their W-2 forms, showing exactly how much they earned as sailors last year, have been writing in the dollars and cents on the dotted lines.

Filling out the tax forms so far away from home strikes some of the men as proof that the Government does have a sense of humor of a sort. However what gets the biggest laugh is a sentence on the form that reads: "You can get much help and extra forms, if you need them, at the nearest Internal Revenue Service office."

The nearest Internal Revenue Service office is 12,000 miles away—in the United States.

Aid to City G.O.P.

Charles P. McBride, chairman of the G.O.P. city committee, declared the announcement will "put new life and strength in the Republican party in St. Louis." He said every Republican in St. Louis and the nation "will rejoice over the news."

The President's second-term decision was similarly viewed by Norman Parker, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Committee.

"It will help the Republican party in the county, where there is no anti-Eisenhower sentiment," Parker said. "His being a candidate will bring to the polls some voters who might not have taken the trouble to vote for a lesser man."

Barak T. Mattingly of St. Louis, a member of the "Commodore" group which induced Mr. Eisenhower to run for President in 1952, said he was "tremendously happy" that the President has agreed to run again.

"I feel the President has made this decision reluctantly, believing it is his duty," Mattingly told the Post-Dispatch in Washington. "There is no doubt about his re-nomination and re-election, because the

MISS LUCY TELLS COURT HOW MOB FORCED HER OUT OF ALABAMA U. LINES ARE DRAWN Negro Testifies in Her Contempt Action — Separate Jury Trials For College Officials Denied.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 29 (UPI)—Miss Autherine Lucy, a Negro who was suspended from the University of Alabama three turbulent days after her admission, testified in United States district court today that she was forced to leave the campus "by a mob" that threw stones and eggs at her.

Miss Lucy, 26 years old, began telling her story in a jammed courtroom, where her contempt of court charges against university officials are being heard.

Miss Lucy contended that the university condoned the violence as a means of getting her out of the student body after she had been ordered admitted by the federal courts.

That was flatly denied by university authorities who demanded separate jury trials to exonerate themselves from the "outrageous" accusation. Judge Hobart Grooms, who originally ordered Miss Lucy admitted to the university, turned them down.

Cites the One Object.

Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, assisted in Miss Lucy's case. He said the one object of today's hearing was "to get her back in the university."

Miss Lucy said she was forced to leave the campus Feb. 6, helped along by stones and eggs thrown at her by "a mob."

She said also she was denied the use of university dining and dormitory facilities. She was refused in a written notice from J. Rufus Beale, secretary of the university board of trustees, she said.

She Is Calm Witness.

University attorney Andrew Thomas cross-examined Miss Lucy, who made a calm witness not easily flustered.

She testified there appeared to be no special trouble about her presence on the Tuscaloosa campus until the third day when she noticed a crowd of people standing at a building she was to enter.

Thomas: "Was the crowd unhappy or happy?"

Miss Lucy: "That's hard to describe. I heard shouting."

Miss Lucy said she was escorted to an automobile by the dean of women as stones and mud "spattered the windshield."

She said she was hit by one egg.

"I heard them yell 'there she is' and 'there she goes,'" Miss Lucy said.

To Another Building.

She said she was taken to another building on the campus. Thomas asked if she heard any noise from within.

"I heard some people yelling 'hey-hey, ho-ho, where in the hell did the nigger go' and 'hey-hey, ho-ho, Autherine must go,'" she said.

Miss Lucy said she was frightened and thought once of the "possibility" she might be killed.

Yes, she did pray, she told Thomas, but not with the words "Lord, don't let me be killed."

Calendar and Sun Out of Step, 40-Year Bar on Feb. 29 Urged

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 29 (UPI)—A Presbyterian minister here would like to see today not happen again for 40 years.

This would be the easiest way, he says, to let the sun catch up on our wayward calendar, which is running just a little too fast.

If we would abolish Feb. 29 and the year 2000 A.D. the sun and the calendar would be back in step.

Such a scheme is being advocated in scientific circles by the Rev. George Warren Walker, who is minister of Walden Presbyterian Church and a student of the calendar on the side.

Every astronomer knows that our calendar is imperfect. It was set up by Julius Caesar 2000 years ago and revised somewhat by Pope Gregory XIII in the year 1582. The Pope had to drop 10 days from the calendar to get it back in line with the astronomical year.

"There is a natural point astronomically when the year should begin," says the Rev. Mr. Walker, a former president of the Buffalo Astronomical Society. "Right now we need to make another adjustment of 10 days to get our calendar to begin actually at the time of the winter solstice, the shortest day of the year."

The Rev. Mr. Walker believes if the United Nations accepted his plan to abolish leap year for 40 years it would not stir up resistance anywhere.

He also has an idea for keeping the calendar in step with the stars after the reform is accomplished.

"What we should do is substitute a simpler rule: a leap year every fourth year unless the year number is divisible by 120. This new rule would provide 29 extra days in every 120 years, while the Gregorian rule gives us 97 extra days in every 400 years, which is too many."

The new rule would be so close to the true ratio astronomically that we would have a calendar exactly stable, for all practical purposes, until at least 10,000 A.D.

President Casual in Disclosing Decision, Reporters on Edge

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER as he announced at his press conference today he would be willing to run for re-election.

STOCKS GO UP WHEN PRESIDENT GIVES DECISION

Cheers and Whoops Greet News on Exchange—Shares Rise as Much as $3.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—A holiday spirit prevailed on the stock market today as prices surged upward on news that President Eisenhower would run for re-election.

Cheers and whoops rose above the usual trading din and jubilant shouts of "He's going to run!"

The long-awaited news was like the popping of a cork on a champagne bottle as orders to buy spilled over at such a rate that the high-speed ticker tape could not keep up in reporting them.

The ticker tape fell as much as 19 minutes behind.

Initial Gains Run to $3.

Initial gains ran up to as much as $3 a share on leading stocks then prices backed away somewhat with the best gains ranging to about $2 a share. But trading still went on at a hot pace.

Among late prices were: Standard Oil (New Jersey) up $1.87 at $137.12, Bethlehem Steel up $1.37 at $154.50, Anaconda up $1.37 at $78.87 and Kennecott Copper up $1.50 at $128.12.

When the news from the White House came, the big clock in the center of the exchange read 10:32 a.m. and the ticker screens were showing the quotation for Northrop Aircraft "Noe" at 7 1/2 ($7.62).

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up $1.40 at noon to $181, with the industrials up $2.60, the rails up 80 cents and the utilities unchanged.

By late afternoon trading volume for the day was estimated at about 4,600,000 shares, biggest since the 5,500,000 traded Sept. 27, the second trading session following Eisenhower's heart attack.

There were more than 2000 persons on the floor at the time, more than on a normal trading day. Stock Exchange officials said the increase was accounted for by the number of brokers who came to the floor rather than remain in their offices as usual.

Trading Speeds Up.

By 10:45 a.m. activity had reached a point where the high-speed ticker was about three minutes late in reporting trading. Within the next five minutes, there was a slackening off as traders showed signs of concern while big news was awaited.

The news hit the exchange via telephone from the brokers' offices to the floor clerks. No news tickers are permitted on the trading floor.

As soon as the word arrived, every telephone clerk began writing out buy orders on slips of paper as fast as he was able.

One clerk under the balcony looked up at the crowd of reporters on hand and shouted, "Got your like buttons yet?"

He makes Routine Announcements First, Keeping Jammed Room Tense.

By GEORGE H. HALL, A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—President Eisenhower's "affirmative" answer to the second-term question was almost casual when related to the mounting public tension that preceded it.

It came at the close of some relatively routine announcements by Mr. Eisenhower and was given to a jammed press conference with little emphasis or dramatic inflection.

The President did stress the words he permitted to be quoted directly—"my answer will be positive, that is, affirmative"—but he did not lead up to the phrase so that it came as a grand climax.

The announcement was received in silence by a record attendance at an Eisenhower press conference of 311 men and women crowded into the old Indian Treaty room in the picturesque building once occupied by the State Department.

Reporters Excited.

There was certainly no question but that the representatives of newspapers and news services from the United States and other foreign countries and of radio, television and photographic services appeared more excited than the President.

The first reporter turned up at 6 a.m. and began putting news out on the radio shortly afterward. Radio reports of early arrivals before the closed doors of the conference room stimulated more early arrivals.

At 9 a.m. there was a double line about 100 feet long when the doors opened at 10 a.m., a half hour in advance of the conference, the line was more than 200 feet in length.

About 40 or 50 reporters came too late to gain admittance to the conference. One of them was Mark Foote of the Michigan Beach newspapers who wrote last Wednesday and again last night that the President would run again.

'ANSWER WILL BE POSITIVE, AFFIRMATIVE,' HE ASSERTS

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—President Eisenhower will seek re-election.

He told a record-capacity news conference today that he would give to a nationwide radio and television audience tonight (at 9 o'clock St. Louis time) his answer to the question whether he would run again, and it "will be positive, that is, affirmative" that he would accept renomination.

As to his health, he assured reporters:

"My answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

The doctors who have attended him since his heart attack on Sept. 24 have said that he can reasonably expect to lead an active life, such as that in the White House, for the next five to 10 years.

Mr. Eisenhower declined to say at this time whether he would favor Vice President Richard M. Nixon as his running mate as in 1952.

'Wait for Convention.'

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I wouldn't mention the vice presidency in spite of my tremendous admiration for Mr. Nixon, for this reason: I believe it is tradition that the Vice President is not nominated until after a President is, a presidential candidate is nominated; so I think we will have a Republican presidential victory in November."

Question of Nixon.

The big remaining question for which Mr. Eisenhower will have a decisive voice is whether Nixon, already under attack from some Eisenhower advisers, will be chosen again for the vice presidential nomination.

If Mr. Eisenhower, who is virtually assured of renomination, wants Nixon, he can simply pass the word to Republican leaders and his wish will be met.

Asked whether he, if re-nominated, would like to have Nixon as his running mate, he replied:

"I will say nothing more about it. I have said that my admiration and respect for Vice President Nixon is unbounded. He has been for me a loyal and dedicated associate and a successful one."

"I am very fond of him, but I am not going to say more about it."

The decision is a heavy blow to the presidential ambitions of Senator William F. Knowland of California, Senate Republican leader, who has permitted his name to be filed in several state preferential primaries.

Welcomes Competition.

The Post-Dispatch reminded the President that his announcement "would undoubtedly take many Republicans out of the race" and asked whether he wanted competition for the nomination.

Mr. Eisenhower replied: "I have tried to make it as clear as I can that any Republican

BENSON OFFERS SENATORS FROM SOUTH HIGHER COTTON PROPS

Seeks Backing for Flexible Supports — Cotton Surplus to Be Thrown on Competitive World Market.

By WILLIAM M. BLAIR
The New York Times News Service
Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said yesterday that he had offered southern Democratic Senators a higher support price for cotton in return for their support of the Administration's flexible price support system.

At the same time he announced that the Government would put all Government-owned surplus cotton on the world auction block, effective Aug. 1.

He said this new program will seek to recapture "our share" of the cotton market through sales of surplus cotton at world competitive prices. This is a step long sought by many southern members of Congress and some cotton interests.

Explosive Effects Likely.
Both actions were expected to have explosive effects. His recent dealings with southern Democrats appeared certain to set off new political fireworks as the Senate moved toward a showdown vote on the bitterly-contested farm issue.

The competitive sale of all surplus cotton was regarded as likely to cause world-wide repercussions among countries that already have protested strongly the Administration's surplus disposal methods.

Benson denied intentions of dumping cotton or other products to force down world prices. He said the new cotton program was "notice to the world that we're not going to continue to hold an umbrella over world markets."

He referred to the federal price support program that has held American cotton prices above world levels. He set an export goal of "somewhere in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 bales a year as our share of the world market."

Exports totaled 3,500,000 bales for the fiscal year that ended last July 1. Exports for the current year have been estimated at less than 2,500,000 bales.

12,000,000 Bale Surplus.
Nearly 12,000,000 bales of cotton valued at more than $2,000,000,000 are tied up under federal price supports. Under a special program, cotton is being sold abroad at six to ten cents a pound below domestic market levels. This program was started with an offer on Jan. 1 to sell at competitive prices 1,000,000 bales of low grade cotton. More than 890,000 bales have been sold to date.

In instituting the special program, the United States promised other countries it would not sell more than the 1,000,000 bales between Jan. 1 and Aug. 1.

Benson declined at his press conference to name the southern Democrats or other members of Congress with whom he had talked. He named three Democrats about whom he said it was rumored that they might switch from rigid to flexible supports. They are Senators John Stennis of Mississippi and John J. McClellan and J. William Fulbright of Arkansas.

Benson said he had told the southern Democrats the need for "flexibility" in the cotton support program and "what we would be willing to do in this department" if flexibility was obtained.

He said "we would be willing to move the adjusting support level" by a smaller amount if he obtained adjustments in price and in the staple length upon which price supports are based. "And we have even talked in terms of what amounts," he added in referring to what the support level would be if the southern Democrats were willing to grant concessions.

Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Miss.) gave a clue to the situation Monday in a Senate speech.

Benson said price support of 90 per cent of parity mentioned by Eastland was "a little high." Benson said 85 per cent of parity might be a better figure. Cotton was held at 90 per cent last year the first year of operation for flexible supports.

The United States announced its decision to sell surplus cotton on the world market without consulting a 33-nation committee which has been weighing this issue for years.

The United States is a member of the International Cotton Advisory Committee composed of consuming as well as producing nations.

Diplomatic sources said there was no advance United States notice to the group that Benson's announcement would be made. However, the United States delegation has been saying for years it would have to revise its policy unless other nations try to hold down their cotton production.

Efforts to speed action on the farm bill were blocked yesterday by Senators who said they wanted more time to debate it. Senate leaders lost an effort to choke off debate and begin voting next Wednesday.

G.O.P. Cheers Eisenhower Decision

decision to seek a second term will mean no change in his party's plans. "We can beat anybody," he said.

"Well, that's a matter every President had to decide for himself," he said when first informed of the Washington report. "Every citizen has a right to run for President."

Former Republican President Herbert Hoover said he was glad Mr. Eisenhower had decided to run again and added "I am sure the majority of American people are grateful for his declaration."

Known Reaction.
Senator William F. Knowland of California, who had been preparing to make his own bid for the Republican nomination if Mr. Eisenhower did not run, predicted the President would be renominated by acclamation at the San Francisco convention.

But, he said, the President's news conference statement only "partly clarified the situation." Knowland said he believed there would be full clarification in tonight's broadcast on what the President would do about primaries in California and Wisconsin.

Knowland said it was not yet clear whether Mr. Eisenhower would give his written consent to the filing of a slate of delegates pledged to him in California.

If he does, Knowland said, the President will have the full support of Gov. Knight, Vice President Nixon and himself.

Knowland added: "The campaign of 1956 will be a hard one and must not be taken for granted."

"I believe it is important to unify the party and to make it abundantly clear that all Republicans are necessary. An ample place should be made in the campaign for those who supported the President in 1952 as well as those who supported Eisenhower."

Nixon Statement.
Mr. Eisenhower's official family came out quickly with statements praising his decision to run.

Vice President Nixon led off with a prediction that President Eisenhower will be renominated by acclamation in San Francisco next August and he will be overwhelmingly re-elected next November.

"Only a man completely consecrated to the service of his country could have reached the decision President Eisenhower revealed today," Nixon said, adding:

"With millions of his fellow citizens everywhere, we rejoice that his wise, devoted and tolerant leadership remains available during a period in which it is so urgently needed."

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said he was "deeply gratified."

"Our farmers will be delighted, too, because they know the President's personal interest in their problems and real concern for their well-being," Benson said.

Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana said Mr. Eisenhower's decision "means he will sign our farm bill whatever we put in it." Ellender is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and a leader in the fight to tie to the Administration's farm program a proposal to restore rigid mandatory price supports.

Ellender told reporters Mr. Eisenhower's move to seek reelection "means there will be no veto even if the bill includes rigid supports, as I believe it will."

Millions Will Cheer.
Secretary of the Interior McKay said the announcement "will be cheered by hundreds of millions of people not only in the United States but throughout the world," McKay added.

"It assures that in the crucial period of world history which lies ahead our destiny will continue to be guided by the outstanding leader who has demonstrated repeatedly his unique ability to preserve the peace and advance the welfare of all the people in accord with our country's highest ideals."

Secretary of Commerce Weeks said Mr. Eisenhower's decision is "good news for the American people and for the entire world."

Shivers Declines Comment.
Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, who led the successful Texas Democrats for Eisenhower movement in 1952, declined to comment.

Ohio Gov. Frank J. Lausche, a Democrat, said he happy to learn of Mr. Eisenhower's decision.

"The people of the country undoubtedly are happy, and so am I, to learn that the President finds, and the doctors confirm, that his state of health will make it possible for him to be a candidate for the presidency," he said.

Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois made this comment: "Americans today rejoice in the straightforward announcement of the President for whom they have so much affection and respect. His decision, placing service to his country above personal considerations, will benefit all the people."

Business Men Pleased.
The President's decision was hailed by business and industrial leaders.

"I am extremely happy for the President that he feels he is sufficiently recovered to seek renomination," said President Morse G. Dial of Union Carbide & Carbon Corp.

A. F. Franz, president of Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp., Denver, said:

Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange, said he was "pleased" that Mr. Eisenhower would seek reelection.

"As President, he has done much to increase the faith and confidence of our citizens in the stability of our economy and the probability of a peaceful future," McCormick said.

'Big and Important Thing.'
George D. Woods, chairman of the board of the First Boston Corp., investment bankers, said:

"From the standpoint of business and the general economy of the country, this decision is a big and important thing, particularly because it will aid so much in re-establishing confidence."

Ferdinand Eberstadt, president of Eberstadt & Co., another investment bank firm, said:

"President Eisenhower's decision will be reassuring and confidence-inspiring to the people, not alone of our country but of the free world as well."

Harold L. Bache, senior partner of Bache & Co., Wall Street investment firm, said the President's decision "is encouraging for the people of our country and to the nations throughout the world."

Predicts Arduous Campaign.
By the United Press.
Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, said, "I am happy that the President feels his health has recovered to a point where he is ready for the rigors of an arduous campaign," but he warned: "The campaign will be arduous. The American people will want a full discussion of the vital issues of war and peace before they decide who will be the trustee for their destinies for the next four years."

Representative Sam Rayburn (Dem., Texas, Speaker of the House of Representatives, said: "I thought all the time he was a candidate because in my opinion he has been acting and talking like one."

Senator Earle C. Clements of Kentucky, Senate Democratic whip, said: "All Americans will be happy that the President feels his health has been recovered, but there are many issues to discuss" in the campaign and "the American people will want . . . assurances that the man who will lead the country for the next four years is fully capable of doing so."

Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama, 1952 Democratic candidate for Vice President, said: "I was completely wrong in my opinion that President Eisenhower would not run again."

"Apparently he has been convinced that he can carry the terrific load of the Presidency and also go through the rigors of a political campaign. . . . I am confident the people . . . will in November again entrust the Government to the Democratic party, the party of the people."

WILL OPPOSE ANY EFFORT TO DUMP NIXON, TWO SAY

Senators Goldwater and Allott Want Him on Ticket With Eisenhower.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Senators Barry Goldwater (Rep., Arizona), and Gordon Allott (Rep., Colorado), said yesterday they would oppose any effort to dump Vice President Nixon from a Republican ticket that included President Eisenhower.

Goldwater is retiring chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, and Allott is a staunch Eisenhower backer.

Goldwater said that in his travels across the country he has encountered many Republicans—he added that he does not agree with them—who think that Eisenhower ought to change running mates as the late Franklin D. Roosevelt did twice in his four terms.

While John H. Garner, an opponent of a third term, retired in 1940, Roosevelt picked Henry Wallace for second place on the ticket. Wallace gave way in 1944 to Harry S. Truman, who succeeded to the presidency at Roosevelt's death in 1945.

Goldwater said he did not want to see any G.O.P. shift this year.

"I have run into Republicans who say they want Eisenhower to run again but they don't want Nixon," Goldwater said. "When I ask them why they don't want Nixon and to spell out where he has failed to fill the bill, they don't have any real reason."

"I hope to God we can keep Nixon on the ticket. He is a good vote getter. He has done a good job. His youth isn't against him because he's now four years older than he was when he was elected Vice President in 1952," Nixon is 43 years old.

Allott said in a separate interview he did not agree with those who think Nixon should be replaced. He said the Vice President had "done a good job" and added that it would be "disturbing to the party" to change the ticket.

Those who have been mentioned as possible substitutes for Nixon include Gov. Christian Heister of Massachusetts, former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, former Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado, Secretary of the Treasurer Humphrey. Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. and several House and Senate members.

17 European Nations Vote to Pool Resources for Atomic Power

O.E.E.C. Group's Plan Would Include Six-Nation 'Euratom' Project — U.S. Offer Weighed.

PARIS, Feb. 29 (UP)—Seventeen European nations voted today to pool their resources for the development of an atomic power network which may be fueled initially by the United States.

They left room inside their new co-operative for a parallel development of a six-nation "Euratom" atomic pool with supranational authority.

They also decided to give serious consideration to President Eisenhower's offer of atomic fuel last week. At that time the President authorized the sale or lease of 44,000 pounds of uranium 235 for the peaceful production of atomic power in the United States and the same amount for use abroad by non-Communist countries.

Today's decisions were made by representatives of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation, formed originally to administer Marshall plan aid from the United States.

Specifically, today's vote set up a preparatory committee to lay down the lines of action for translating into fact the O.E.E.C.'s atomic development plan.

The more tightly-knit Euratom supranational pool plan of France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg will function as a unit within the broader O.E.E.C. plan.

One of the major tasks of the preparatory committee set up by today's vote will be to determine the relationship that will bind the Euratom group and the remaining O.E.E.C. nations. The action headed off for the moment any collisions between the highly-organized Euratom group and the looser, more flexible O.E.E.C. program.

The decision has long-range importance for Europe's fuel-short economy. European coal production has remained constant in the face of expanding industry on the continent for the past several years.

Continental oil resources are low and experts say that within 10 years Europe's major nations will have tapped all available sources of hydroelectric power. Nuclear energy, therefore, must provide the power needed for any long-run European economic expansion.

With the limited atomic budgets available in each country, some form of international co-operation is necessary if the European nations are to compete with the atomic giants—the United States and Russia. Through Mr. Eisenhower's gesture last week, the United States got the jump on the Soviet Union in offering to help friendly nations develop their atomic fuel potential.

United States Deputy Under Secretary of State Robert Murphy discussed Mr. Eisenhower's offer with the conferees last night.

SEATTLE, Feb. 29 (AP)—Kim Jai Ho, the alleged leader of five Koreans charged with conspiracy to assassinate President Syngman Rhee admitted in civil court yesterday his group plotted to "eliminate" the President.

Kim told the court the group obtained hand grenades to assassinate elements "harming national interest," but then decided to "eliminate" Rhee because of his "dogmatic" conduct of state affairs.

Kim was a member of the Korean independent party outlawed by the Rhee Government. Four soldier conspirators were tried by a military court on the same charge and two were sentenced to death Dec. 14. One was sentenced to prison and another acquitted.

PEIPING WARNED NEHRU OF PERIL IN BOMBAY VISIT

Indian Premier Went Anyhow, Under Heavy Guard—Message Astonishing.

NEW DELHI, Feb. 29.—Communist China sent Prime Minister Nehru a cablegram warning him his life would be in danger if he visited India's commercial center of Bombay.

The warning, signed by Chou En-lai, was received in New Delhi while plans were being made for Nehru to visit Bombay, the scene of bitter rioting last month.

Despite the warning, Nehru went to Bombay Feb. 29 to observe a naval demonstration next day. He was closely guarded and no incidents were reported.

Nehru's security men took the warning with the utmost seriousness. They recalled that last spring Peiping had warned the British in Hong Kong that Communist China had received information that an attempt would be made on the lives of a Communist delegation going to Indonesia to attend the Asian-African conference at Bandung. An Indian airplane, in which the group was flying, was destroyed by a time bomb, which the British said was planted by a Nationalist Chinese agent.

The handful of persons in New Delhi who know about the message from Peiping regard it as one of the most astonishing ever sent by the leader of one country to the leader of another.

Chou's cablegram said there would be disturbances if Nehru visited Bombay and that his life would be endangered.

These questions are being asked: If the cablegram was based on an actual plot, how did it happen that it was discovered in India by the Chinese Communist intelligence sources? Did Peiping get word of it before Indian security learned of it, and how did Peiping do so?

JAPAN'S BUDGET APPROVED
TOKYO, Feb. 29 (AP)—Japan's House of Representatives brushed aside Socialist objections last night and gave overwhelming approval by standing vote to a $2,785,000,000 national budget for the year starting in April.

Socialists objected particularly to spending $278,000,000 for defense, a 17 per cent boost over last year. The budget was sent to the upper house.

LAWMAKER SAYS U.S. CONTRACTS GAVE M'DONNELL 'SKYROCKET' RISE

Head of Inquiry Questions Extent of Government Role in Building Up Aircraft Corporation.

By DAVID R. WALLIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29—Government orders enabled McDonnell Aircraft Corp. of St. Louis to obtain most of its working capital and "skyrocket" from its starting value to more than $24,000,000 net worth, Representative F. Edward Hebert (Dem., Louisiana), said yesterday.

Hebert is chairman of a House armed services subcommittee which is inquiring into procurement procedures and profits in the aircraft manufacturing industry. Robert H. Charles, executive vice president, appeared as the only witness in behalf of McDonnell.

Charles said the firm started in July 1939 with about $150,000 in capital. It received its first Government contract, a small one, a few months later, he said, but it was not until November 1941 that it received its first substantial Government contract.

$1,600,000 in Capital.

This was for design of the XP-67, a fighter plane. Since then, Charles said, the firm has received about $1,600,000 of its present $1,977,640 total paid in capital. About $500,000 of this was received in 1946 and $300,000 in 1951.

"Then nearly all of your capital came in after you started receiving Government contracts," Hebert said. "The Government has allowed private enterprise in your case to skyrocket from $150,000 to more than $24,000,000 in less than 17 years."

Charles interrupted to reply that "that is the way every successful business is built."

"That's what we are exploring," Hebert continued, "how much the Government should be in this peculiar business. We are comparing it with other businesses, where the owners risk their capital against the possibility of sales of their products."

Only One Customer.

"In this case there is only one customer, and the money comes from only one place—the pockets of the individual who supports his government. The only thing we do with that money is to distribute it, and sometimes, I'm afraid, not too wisely."

Charles pointed out that the firm had spent about $500,000 on the design of its present new Navy fighter, the F-4H, before it received an order for the plane and without prospect of getting the money back unless it did receive an order.

Much of the afternoon session was devoted to questioning by the committee and a spirited defense by Charles concerning the employment by McDonnell of R. Adm. Lloyd Harrison (Retired), former deputy and assistant chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, last Aug. 1, immediately after his retirement.

Adm. Harrison is now McDonnell's vice president in charge of procurement from sub-contractors and suppliers, at a salary of $20,800 a year.

Charles insisted that Harrison had no contact with the Navy, but under lengthy questioning conceded that if requested by the Navy Harrison might appear as a witness in case of a dispute between the Navy and the company.

'Strong Advocate.'

"I'm not saying there is anything wrong with it, but wouldn't he strengthen your position?" Hebert asked. "With his background, wouldn't he be a strong advocate for you before his former associates?"

"Let me say that I know of no director of procurement who has had reason to appear before either the Navy or the Air Force," Charles answered. "He is in charge of letting sub-contractors. If a dispute arose in connection with them, I'm sure we would get the information from him and use it to defend our position."

Charles said the company

Figures in Family Tragedy

people want to continue the policies of his Administration."

'Terrific,' Welsh Says.

A. D. (Bud) Welsh, Republican national committeeman for Missouri, declared: "That's terrific, isn't it? I feel like Moses must have felt when the good Lord handed him the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai."

Mark R. Holloran, Democratic national committeeman for Missouri, said he had been expecting the President to run again since doctors gave a favorable medical report on him.

"However, I feel just as I did before he became ill, that the Democratic party will be successful in 1956," he said. "There has been a Democratic trend running through the President's entire administration."

"I don't believe the President is so strong a candidate as he was in the 1952 election. We rejoice that he is well and able to run, because we like to face the best man the Republicans are able to put up as their candidate."

Dwyer Has Similar Views.

John J. Dwyer, chairman of the St. Louis Democratic City Central Committee, expressed views similar to those of Holloran.

Richard R. Nacy of Jefferson City, former executive vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said President Eisenhower "is the only man the Republicans have who has a chance to be re-elected, but even with him the Republicans can't win Missouri this year."

County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews, a Republican, declared: "There is no question about the President's re-election—only how much larger his majority will be this time."

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, a Democrat, declined to comment on the President's statement.

He had made contributions or dues payments totaling $160,995 and charged it against contracts, in the period starting May 1948. This averaged $22,675 a year, he said. Ten organizations were listed, with the largest amount, an average of $17,330 annually, going to the Aircraft Industries Association. This is an organization of aircraft manufacturers and suppliers.

8 Per. Profit Margin.

As a typical example of procurement procedures, Charles itemized steps in a Navy contract for 430 F-2H Banshee fighter planes signed in 1950. A profit margin of 8 per cent was included in the "target" price, he said. This figure is based on estimates of the company and the Navy, with the profit increasing or decreasing as actual costs prove higher or lower.

The final unit sale price after renegotiation, he said, was $322,480 per plane. This included earnings of $25,080, or 7.99 per cent, each. The profit margin figured in computing the target price for each contract varies, he said, ranging from 7 to 9 per cent and depending partly on the complexity of the plane involved.

Charles, in a long prepared statement given to the committee, said airplane manufacturers would be in position to provide better aircraft at lower cost if they were permitted larger earnings under Government contracts.

Government policies in respect to the aircraft industry have to some extent been short-sighted, Charles told the committee.

GIRL, 6, FOUND DEAD; SLEEPING PILLS BLAMED

Mother Says She Took Handful of Capsules and Believes Child Imitated Her.

Six-year-old Grace Ann Leeson was found dead in bed at her St. Louis county home early today, apparently from an overdose of sleeping capsules. The child's mother, Mrs. Charles B. Leeson, told police she, the mother, had taken "a handful" of the capsules in an effort to end her life.

Mrs. Leeson recovered consciousness after being taken to St. Louis County Hospital from the Leeson residence at 4625 Whitfield lane, Edmondson. She expressed belief Grace Ann had taken sleeping capsules in imitation of her.

Mrs. Leeson said the child was on the bed beside her about 11 a.m. yesterday when Mrs. Leeson took the capsules. The child, who was 6 years old, had been suffering from migraine headaches and had been under medical treatment for some time.

The mother, who is in serious condition at the hospital, said she put the bottle of sleeping capsules on a night table and went to sleep immediately. There were 10 to 15 capsules left in the bottle, she estimated. The bottle was found empty this morning on a dresser.

The child's father said it was possible Grace Ann had taken the capsules without her mother's knowledge, because she often played games involving sleep-inducing medicines, Mrs. Leeson, it was learned, often used sedatives for headaches.

Leeson, a welder, said he found his wife and daughter asleep when he returned home from work about 4 p.m. yesterday. Although he was not alarmed, he telephoned a physician at 8 p.m. and was told not to worry as long as they appeared to be breathing normally, as they did, he said.

At 3 a.m. he changed the girl's pajamas and she and her mother appeared to be all right. Leeson continued, but about an hour later he heard the child having difficulty breathing and tried to comfort her.

Shortly thereafter she stopped breathing, he said, and he called the physician again. The doctor advised him to call for fire department inhalators, and they were used as Mrs. Leeson and Grace Ann were taken to the hospital.

The child was adopted at the age of three months. The Leesons have three grown sons.

County police were told an autopsy of the child was inconclusive, and a more detailed examination would have to be made. There were four different kinds of capsules and pills found in the house. These will be analyzed to determine what they contain.

REMAINS OF MAN IDENTIFIED AS THOSE OF ST. LOUISAN

The skeletal remains of a man, found in Poplar Bluff, Mo., Oct. 6, 1955, have been identified as those of Fred Booker, 70 years old, of St. Louis, it was announced today by Coroner Grover Greer of Butler county.

Identification was made through efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Greer said. It was determined Booker was a Negro.

Poplar Bluff police recalled talking to an elderly man early in 1955. He had gone to that city with $900 to pay for the funeral of a brother. Officers persuaded him to put the money in a bank for safe keeping, which he did. Parts of his skeleton were found in a wooded grove several months after he disappeared. The money is still in a bank there. A St. Louis address for Booker was not available.

PLAZA BODY WILL ADVERTISE FOR BIDS TOMORROW

Offers to Be Opened and Read in Public May 29 at Office of Clearance Authority.

The Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority will advertise tomorrow for bids for the sale of land in the Plaza area, where about 1150 apartment units are to be built, Charles L. Farris, executive director of the authority, announced today. The bids will be opened May 29 at the authority office, 2031 Olive street, and read aloud, Farris said.

He said he hoped to be able to turn the deeds for the property over to the successful bidder by Aug. 1.

The sale of the land for redevelopment purposes has been approved by the Board of Aldermen. Informal approval also has been received from the Federal Urban Renewal Administration, which has said, in effect, that if any technical changes are necessary they can be made by amendments at a later time, Farris reported.

The federal agency said it hoped to complete its review of the sale terms by this afternoon.

The land clearance authority must submit to the Board of Aldermen, probably in June, its plans for disposing of the property. The board has veto power only. If the aldermen fail to act within 30 days, Farris said, the authority may proceed under the plans as submitted.

After all the bids are in, they will be reviewed by the Land Clearance Agency, the Urban Redevelopment Administration and the Federal Housing and Home Finance Administration, Farris said.

The way was cleared for fast action in advertising the sale of the land last Wednesday when the Land Clearance Authority accepted a $100,000 offer by the Catholic Basilica of St. John, Sixteenth and Chestnut streets, for a tract of land adjacent to the church for ingress, parking and other uses.

An offer of $100,000 from Centenary Methodist Church at Sixteenth and Pine streets had been accepted previously for a tract immediately to the north of the church for an entrance to Olive street, additional office space and parking.

The federal Government has authorized a loan of $4,155,775 and a grant of $1,334,675 for redevelopment of the area, bounded roughly by Fourteenth, Eighteenth, Olive and Market streets. The city's share, $1,500,000, will go for a three-block park fronting on Market and for street improvements.

The apartment development, designed for middle-income families, will represent a private capital investment of about $17,000,000, it was estimated. The Urban Redevelopment Corp. of St. Louis, organized by 69 civic and business leaders to check the spread of blight in the heart of the city, is prepared to bid as a redeveloper.

ADMITTS FAILURE TO CHARGE OFF FIRM'S BAD LOANS

Ex-President of Jefferson Loan Co. Testifies at Trial on Fraud Scheme Charges.

Vernon F. Neubauer, former president of the Jefferson Loan Co., admitted to the United States Tax Court today that he did not charge off nearly $1,000,000 in bad debts owed to the company, it was brought out today at this trial on a federal charge of devising a scheme to defraud banks.

In an affidavit introduced in United States District Court, Neubauer said he had "erroneously failed" to charge off $959,000 in losses and bad debts for 12-month periods ending Jan. 31, 1950 and 1951.

It was at that time that financial statements of the loan firm listed accounts receivable totaling $1,800,000. Through the affidavit the Government seeks to show that Neubauer himself admitted that $959,000 of the accounts were worthless.

The Government expects to complete its case today against Neubauer and Marion F. Langenberg, former accountant for Jefferson Loan Co., before a jury in United States District Judge Rube M. Hulen's court. Part of the charge against the former loan firm officials is that the mails were used in furtherance of their alleged scheme to defraud.

Joseph Mitchell, who figured in Congressional tax scandal hearings and was sentenced in 1951 to three years in prison for income tax evasion, paid 49 per cent of a $150,000 loan due a New York bank, a former officer of the bank testified today. Mitchell, now of Mobile, Ala., was principal owner of the Jefferson Loan Co., which lent money to clothing, furniture and appliance firms doing a credit business.

Ferd J. Bissell, former vice president of the American Trust Co. of New York City, testified his bank received a financial statement from Jefferson Loan Co. indicating that the firm was solvent. The bank did not press to collect the $150,000 due it, but eventually collected only 49 per cent, from Mitchell as guarantor.

Joseph Mitchell is a brother of Louis (Champ) Mitchell, credit clothing merchant.

Involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were filed against the loan company, 818 Olive street, by three banks, in 1952. It has been charged that about 12 banks were influenced by the financial statements sent out by Neubauer and Langenberg, and did not enforce payment of past due accounts because of the statements.

Slightly Cooler Than Normal Is Wahlgren Report on Winter

February Warmer Than Usual — Spring Starts Tomorrow by Weatherman's Reckoning.

The three months of winter which came to an end today were only slightly cooler than normal, mostly because of a warmer than normal February, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren reported today.

According to Wahlgren's reckoning, spring starts tomorrow with the first day of March, not—as astronomers compute the seasons—with the vernal equinox, which occurs this year on March 20.

This winter still was the coolest since 1950-51, Wahlgren said, with an average temperature of 34.1 degrees, only slightly below the normal average of 35.4. The month of February averaged 37.4 degrees, 0.7 above normal, helping make up for comparatively cold months of December and January, Wahlgren said.

Total precipitation for the winter months was 4.32 inches, 2.31 inches below normal, and less than the 6.92 inches for the corresponding three months last year. In fact, the weatherman said, there has been only one drier winter—1954—over the last 16 years.

Snowfall over the three-month period was also off, with a total of 12.2 inches as compared to a normal figure of 15.8 inches. Snowfall for the entire fall and winter season has been 13.2 inches, Wahlgren said. But it is still a lot more snow than last year, when saw only 5.3 inches up to this time, he added.

High for February was 74 degrees last Friday with the low of 23 recorded Feb. 4, Wahlgren said. Total precipitation for the month was 3.51 inches, 1.63 inches above normal, making it the wettest February since 1951.

It snowed more in February than usual, too, with a total snowfall of 7.6 inches, as compared to a normal 4.7 inches.

The highest wind velocity for the month came early Saturday, when a wind of 61 miles an hour blew in from the north-west at 12:28 a.m., Wahlgren said. This was part of the tornado which caused extensive damage in the area.

With warmer temperatures predicted for tomorrow, it looks to Wahlgren as if March this year will "come in like a lamb." But he hastened to add that "anything can happen in March," and that previous years have recorded temperatures as high as 92 on March 24, 1929, and as low as zero on March 3, 1848.

Persons listening to Belleville radio station WIBV today were led to believe that Vice President Nixon and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey telephoned the station personally just after President Eisenhower announced his availability for a second term. It was all in fun.

Bill Bailey, the station manager, was doing his program of news and music. A telephone rang, and he said, "Yes, Mr. Nixon, we'll be glad to do that." Then, to the audience, "That was Vice President Nixon, asking us to play 'Happy Days Are Here Again'."

Then he played a recording of the song—campaign theme song of the Democrats in 1936—with background noise of a political rally.

FIRST 'COMIC BOOK' STATUTE CONVICTION

Newsstand Operator at Ninth and Olive Fined $100 in City Court.

Arthur Silverman, operator of a news stand at Ninth and Olive streets, became the first person convicted under the city's "comic book" ordinance when he was fined $100 today by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd.

The defense had attacked the constitutionality of the ordinance, which prohibits distribution to minors of publications containing obscene matter or articles tending to incite children to crime.

Judge Dowd rejected a defense contention that the ordinance was too vague, particularly in reference to the word "indecent." Dowd said the Missouri Supreme Court held recently that "indecent" was a word in common usage and could be used by a judge as the basis for evaluating published material.

Silverman, who also was the first person arrested under the ordinance, pleaded not guilty at his trial Dec. 7.

Police, accompanied by a representative of the city counselor's office, seized seven magazines on display at Silverman's stand when they made the arrest Nov. 16.

The fine was the maximum that can be imposed under the ordinance, although the penalty can also include a workhouse sentence up to 90 days. Attorneys for Silverman, who lives at 6916 Raymond avenue, said an appeal would be taken.

BURGLAR ALARMS TO CURB SCHOOL VANDALS STUDIED

A proposal to install floodlights and automatic burglar alarm systems in St. Louis public schools, as a means of reducing vandalism, will be studied by V. Harry Rhodes, buildings commissioner for the Board of Education.

Rhodes was authorized to investigate the feasibility of such a project yesterday by the Board of Education's insurance committee. Chairman Charles J. Dyer said the vandalism problem was increasingly serious.

The flood lights would be placed around the schools to discourage vandals from entering the grounds. The alarm system would be activated if an "electric eye" beam were broken by someone attempting to break into a school.

Typhoid Epidemic in Italy.

CATANZARO, Italy, Feb. 29 (AP)—Five hundred persons today were reported stricken in a typhoid epidemic at nearby San Pietro. The first death was reported yesterday. Health officials in Rome said the epidemic was caused by bad water from a fountain in the town of 4000.

FAMILY HELD UP IN HOME, $1100 DIAMOND STOLEN

Robber Hits Woman,
80, in Face at J. F.
Lazier South Side Residence.

John F. Lazier, vice president of the J. F. Lazier Manufacturing Co., and his family were held up last night by two masked robbers who invaded the Lazier home, 2918 Accomac street, and took a diamond ring valued at $1100 and a pair of trousers.

Lazier and his wife were on the second floor when the robbers entered the front door of the house. Both men wore stockings pulled over their faces as masks, and each carried a revolver.

They accosted Mrs. Addie Wright, 80-year-old mother of Mrs. Lazier, in a hall. One man struck her in the face with his fist and forced her to accompany him and his companion upstairs.

"Give us the money," a robber told Lazier. When he was told there was no money in the house, the robber noticed Lazier's diamond-set Masonic ring, and ordered him to remove it. Taking the ring and a pair of trousers from a bed, the robbers fled. The trousers contained four keys, Lazier told police.

The Lazier Manufacturing Co., at 1947 Gravois avenue, produces a flavoring extract. Lazier, active in Republican politics, has been a candidate for nomination for State Senator, State Representative and Alderman.

4 in Auto Robbed.

Four men in an automobile were held up and robbed of $161 when making a boulevard stop at Leffingwell avenue and Olive street at 4 a.m. today.

Robert Weldon, 2706A Alhambra court, told police he stopped his machine in Olive street and a second machine stopped nearby. Two Negroes, each armed with a revolver, appeared at the doors of Weldon's automobile and demanded the wallets of the occupants.

Weldon handed over his wallet containing $60. Other victims and the sums taken were: Raymond McPadden, 4011 West Pine boulevard, $53; Floyd Haley, Allenton, Mo., $44; and Eugene Kassman, 5237 Grace avenue, $4. The robbers returned to their automobile and drove south in Leffingwell.

Candy Store Held Up.

Mrs. Alice Hauser, clerk in a Mavrakos Candy Co. store at 3131 South Grand boulevard, was held up last night by a woman armed with a revolver, who was accompanied by a man. They obtained $32.

The pair entered the store and the woman pointed a snub-nosed revolver at Mrs. Hauser, who was ordered to place the contents of the cash drawer in a shoulder type handbag. The man advised Mrs. Hauser, "Don't look at us and you won't be hurt." After obtaining the

'PAINT THINNER' APPEARS TO BE 190-PROOF ALCOHOL

The United States Army Area Support Center here sold 1700 gallons of alcohol last December to a Denver war surplus goods dealer who paid 15 cents a gallon and thought he was getting paint thinner. The "paint thinner," it now appears, was 190-proof grain alcohol.

Ernest Hagler, the Denver dealer, took a closer look at his purchase, which had been advertised by the Government as industrial alcohol, and notified federal officials who seized the 1700 gallons. He told the Treasury Department's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax division where he got it.

A spokesman for the Area Support Center here said the alcohol had been part of the stocks of the old St. Louis Medical Depot and was turned over to the center for disposal as industrial alcohol.

If the 1700 gallons in Denver turn out to be grain alcohol, as reported, it will be restored to the Government's possession, the spokesman said. The alcohol, which cost the Army $1.68 a gallon, was marked "not for medicinal purposes," but nobody said anything about drinking it.

INQUIRY ON DELAY IN NAMING CO-ORDINATOR FOR MISSILES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, said yesterday the atomic energy subcommittee he heads is inquiring into the delay in naming a top civilian administrator to coordinate development of ballistic missiles.

"A month has gone by since Secretary of Defense Wilson said such a special assistant would be appointed, and still the job is not filled," Jackson told reporters.

Jackson in a Senate speech Feb. 1 urged creation of such a post, and said the United States was in danger of losing to Russia the race for an intermediate-range ballistic missile.

Later in the same day Secretary Wilson said an order already had been drawn to create a special assistant who would push missile development.

Charles Schwartz, operator of a tavern at 4755 McMillan avenue, was robbed of $105 by an armed man. Schwartz said the robber was a Negro.

DULLES THINKS RUSSIA WANTS ARMS RELIEF

of Inspection Plan
Would Bar Major
Surprise Attack.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today there is "some reason to believe that the Soviet Union itself would greatly welcome relief from the present burden of armament."

He did not elaborate, but he told a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee:

"We shall not jeopardize the security of the United States by relying on promises which cannot, in all essentials, be controlled."

Dulles accepted an invitation to undergo questioning by the subcommittee. His testimony was to be limited to disarmament proposals by this and other countries, aimed at outlawing atomic and hydrogen bombs. The subcommittee is studying the whole disarmament picture.

Dulles told the group, headed by Senator Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, that Russian acceptance of President Eisenhower's proposal for aerial inspection and an exchange of military blueprints would exclude "a sudden surprise attack of devastating magnitude."

"Major aggression is unlikely unless the aggressor can have the advantage of surprise and can hope to strike a blow which will be devastating because unexpected," he testified.

Dulles described the President's proposal as a "first step" looking to ultimate disarmament and the outlawing of nuclear weapons.

The committee previously had received testimony that the existence of hidden stockpiles of nuclear weapons could not be detected 100 yards away.

Dulles said the preparation of an attack of great magnitude could "hardly be concealed from a combination of aerial and ground inspection."

It would be "reckless to assume," Dulles said, that the knowledge that modern weapons in a major war "would inevitably destroy a great part of the human race" will necessarily serve as a "permanently reliable preventive of war."

"Events could happen which would lead, perhaps by successive stages to the use of these awesome weapons."

PRESIDENT QUICKLY ENTERED IN NEW JERSEY PRIMARY

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 29 (AP)—President Eisenhower's name was entered in the New Jersey primary election today, moments after announcement that he would seek re-election.

State Republican Chair man Samuel L. Bodine, who handed in the petition with 10,000 names, predicted Mr. Eisenhower "will carry New Jersey with a majority of over 400,000 votes" in the November general election. He carried the state by 350,000 in 1952.

The New Jersey primary will be held April 17. So far, no other Republicans are entered.

HAMMARSKJOLD, DULLES TO MEET ON MIDEAST CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UP)—United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles were to exchange ideas today on using the United Nations to keep the peace in the Middle East.

Dulles invited Hammarskjold to a luncheon conference. Hammarskjold has just returned from a trip that included the Middle East.

Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban called at the State Department yesterday in search of a "yes or no" answer to Israel's $30,000,000 arms request. Although the Israeli diplomat forecast a reply "pretty soon," it was understood he was given no assurances on the timing of an answer or what it would be.

Syrian Ambassador Farid Zeineddine told the State Department late yesterday that Israel is making "definite preparations for military activities on a wide scale." The danger of war, he said, "was never greater than now."

17 SEIZED IN GAMING RAIDS AT TWO HOT SPRINGS PLACES

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 29 (AP)—Arkansas state police raiding parties, led by aids of Attorney General Tom Gentry, hit two Garland county night clubs early today, confiscating a quantity of gambling equipment and arresting 17 persons.

Gentry's chief assistant, James L. Sloan, said roulette wheels, dice tables, slot machines and other equipment were seized at the Southern club in downtown Hot Springs and the Pines supper club on the city's outskirts.

Three of those arrested were charged with operating a gambling house, a felony in Arkansas. The other 14 employees of the two establishments were charged in misdemeanor counts of gambling.

Named in the felony charges were H. P. McDonald and Roy A. Wheatley of the Pines supper club and V. L. Miles of the Southern.

EISENHOWER SAYS HE WILL RUN FOR ANOTHER TERM

that would like to do this job, I would like to see him put his case before the public just as earnestly as he knows how."

"Will you campaign actively for the nomination?" he was asked.

"I will tell you those things this evening," he said.

Asked whether he would make an active campaign for the nomination, he said that was one of the things he would answer tonight. Since he has already announced that if he sought re-election he would not "barnstorm" the country, as in the 1952 campaign, it is unlikely that he will say tonight that he will actively seek re-nomination. The nomination is his by the mere announcement that he is available.

The President began the announcement of his big decision with an understatement. Saying that his next comment would be personal, he smilingly told reporters that they would be interested because they had asked so many questions about it.

He recalled that he had promised to let them know as soon as he had reached a decision as to his attitude toward a second term. He continued that he had reached a decision but that so many factors and considerations were involved that his answer could not be expressed in a simple yes-or-no.

To Give Explanation.

Some full explanation, he said, was necessary to the American people. He said that he would not go before the American people without that explanation and the same was true of the Republican convention, which might nominate some man other than he thought.

As in the past, he made an announcement that reporters usually ignore, that he would have no further conversation on this subject at the press conference.

He then announced that he was asking for radio and television time tonight with his positive and affirmative answer.

Reached Decision Yesterday.

Asked when he had arrived at a positive decision to run again, he replied with a grin that he was arguing with himself as late as yesterday morning.

Asked for the names of the persons with whom he discussed his decision, he again smiled while saying that the discussion was with his friends and some he wasn't sure of.

A Texas woman reporter broke some of the tension in the conference room by asking whether he thought his veto of the natural gas regulation bill had helped or hurt his chances of re-election.

He answered that he could not comment on this because he did not know. He added that only a minor section of a vital industry had been criticized in his veto message and that his friends in the oil industry had accepted his decision and would abide by it.

Calls Decision His Own.

A Washington society editor asked what part Mrs. Eisenhower had played in making the decision. He appeared annoyed at this personal inquiry but finally replied that Mrs. Eisenhower and other members of his family had taken part in it, saying it was his own decision to make.

A reporter pointed out that no one had been franker than the President in talking about his heart stroke and recovery and asked: "How do you think the question of your health will be handled in the campaign?"

Mr. Eisenhower replied that for his own part he had been as truthful as he could be and that even his enemies conceded that he was honest even though he might be stupid. This brought laughter from the reporters.

Asked what he thought would be the major issues in the campaign, he replied that the subject was broad and that he did not want to sort out the items.

Emphasizes His Record.

With great emphasis he added that he had a record—that was his campaign.

"What is the present state of your health?" he was asked.

He replied that he would discuss that this evening.

Another reporter, with Democratic Eighty-fourth Congress in mind, asked whether the President considered lack of control of Congress a campaign issue and would he take action to get a Republican Congress.

He replied that if we are honestly dedicated to a two-party system, the legislative and executive branches of government should be in the same hands so that responsibility could be fixed. He added, however, that he had had active and vital Democratic support in Congress for many of his recommendations.

Comment on Warren.

Asked for his reaction to Vice President Nixon's calling Chief Justice Warren a "great Republican Chief Justice" during a political speech praising the court's segregation decision, the President first observed that he would not comment on Nixon's comment but that he personally felt that once a man has passed on to the Supreme Court he is an American citizen and nothing else and he would never admit it as anything else.

When asked whether he would give formal consent to filing his name in state preferential primaries where consent is required he said he had been so busy making up his mind on running again he would have to answer that later. Two states require formal consent in the near future, Wisconsin and California. Friday is the deadline for Wisconsin, March 7 for California.

Asked whether he had consulted Vice President Nixon, he said he had done so many times, as late as last night. He did not make clear whether the discussion had been about his decision to run again.

Half Dozen Knew Decision.

"How many persons were in on the secret?" was another question.

"Since last evening, about half a dozen," he replied. Adding that before that he did not know himself what he would do.

"Had you made up your mind before the heart attack?" he was asked.

"That's one secret I'll never tell anyone," he said amid laughter. He added that the answer might be in his official papers 20 years from now.

Asked whether he would press at this session of Congress for clarification of the constitutional provision about disability of a President and succession of duties, he said that he was all for it. If legislation could be drawn up quickly that would correct the flaws and satisfy the conflicts. As an afterthought he said, "That has nothing to do with me. My answer would not be affirmative if I did not think I could last out five years."

At this point Merriman Smith of the United Press shouted the traditional "Thank you, Mr. President," and the reporters rushed for the door.

PRESIDENT IS CASUAL IN REVEALING PLANS

Service men at the treaty room entrance reserved for the President, looking at the crowd with a happy expression.

The President's arrival outside the treaty room from the White House across the street was made known by three signals on a buzzer. Conversation ceased and reporters turned toward the entrance. Wayne Hawks, a White House aide, came into the room and waved his right hand to the camera men lined up on a platform in the rear.

The President, looking smaller as he always does in a crowd, entered the room at 10:31 a.m. accompanied by his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, and Hagerty's assistant, Murray Snyder.

Hagerty, Snyder and Hawks took seats at the President's left, immediately in front of two rows of chairs that had been reserved for reporters who have "covered" Mr. Eisenhower in Denver, Gettysburg, Key West and Thomasville, Ga., since his coronary thrombosis at Denver, Sept. 24.

The reporters, as is customary, rose as the President entered. One person clapped once but there was no other applause sound. Mr. Eisenhower, carrying a piece of White House stationery, took up his position behind a big desk. He said, "Please be seated," as he always does, and the conference got under way.

The President wore a brown suit the shade of milk chocolate, a deeper brown silk tie and a white shirt. He had a white handkerchief in his breast pocket. He looked less vigorous than at some appearances recently. His eyes appeared tired and the pouches beneath them more noticeable.

Mr. Eisenhower opened the conference in completely routine fashion by stating he had several announcements. A perceptible groan went through the tense audience when he started talking about the Red Cross annual campaign for funds. Poised pencils remained poised. There were not many notes taken about the Red Cross.

Mr. Eisenhower, without any appearance of wanting to torture his listeners with suspense, discussed the Red Cross for two minutes and said he could easily consume half an hour enumerating the merits of the organization.

There was another small groan from the reporters.

The President finished with the Red Cross and looked down at his desk. On this paper was written in letters an inch high—"Red Cross, Italians, farm legislation, upper Colorado, personal." Only a few reporters could see the paper, of course.

The President, speaking in a matter-of-fact voice, went on to his next subject. That was an expression of pleasure at the current visit to Washington of President Giovanni Gronchi of Italy.

Reporters Restless.

As Mr. Eisenhower turned to his third subject, his desire for quick action on the Administration farm bill, the reporters became noticeably restless. They all had no positive knowledge that the Chief Executive would even announce his second-term intentions, but there had been indications in the early morning that an announcement of great importance was impending.

One of these signs was the unusual precautions taken by Secret Service men to prevent anyone from bringing "an electronic device" into the room. The Secret Service meant some sort of radio gadget that might be used to flash word of the decision before the conference ended. The likelihood of such an attempt was remote because of penalties that could be applied by the Government.

The President next—the suspense was becoming intolerable—took up the subject of the upper Colorado basin project, on which legislation is pending in Congress. He talked about the great value of the nation's water resources and said that the objections of persons interested in the preservation of wildlife should have been eliminated by the removal of the Echo park dam from the proposal.

Just Another Item . . .

The President moved into his final subject as though it were just another item on the agenda. He said his next announcement would be something more personal but that he thought the reporters would be interested in it because they had asked so many questions about it. He had, he said, reached a decision, and the reporters knew, of course, that they were about to hear what they had been waiting for.

Mr. Eisenhower went ahead in his earnest, rather quick manner, just as he had when discussing the Red Cross, the Italians, the farm bill and the upper Colorado project. He did not appear to enjoy making the announcement, as, for example, President Roosevelt might have done, nor did he appear to find it distasteful.

He gave the news much as one might tell another of a good round of golf—not a par around and not a very bad one, but one with a reasonable score and enough good shots to make a satisfactory tale in the locker room.

Although the President ruled out a whole category of questions with his statement that he would tell his story in more detail to the people tonight in a radio and television broadcast, some questions were in order and the reporters proceeded with them in a manner as composed as that of the President himself.

Answers With Applomb.

The President handled the questions with aplomb. He refused to reply with firmness but courtesy when the queries touched on forbidden ground, but he did supply a few more facts and he apparently had no objection to answering questions on topics having no connection with the big news of the day.

There were not many extraneous inquiries, however, as under these circumstances most reporters refrain, if they can, from asking unimportant questions to permit important subjects to be explored as fully as possible and to permit the reporters covering the story on a spot-news basis to end the meeting and get out the facts as quickly as possible.

It was a little surprising that Merriman Smith, the United Press correspondent whose "Thank you, Mr. President," is the signal for the end of a press conference, let the session go for 21 minutes. Smith obtained permission for direct quotation of a phrase and ended the conference after the President had said his announcement "would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Smith's "Thank you" touched off a stampede for the double doors at the back of the room. There was a bone-cracking momentary jam-up of about 20 men, waving notebooks and pencils and struggling to get through the doorway at the same time.

Lines were open in telephone booths in the corridor outside the conference room and in moments the news was started around the world by teletype, radio and cable.

In the final seconds of the drama President Eisenhower, the star, was left in seeming solitude, standing behind the big desk with the twin microphones that had caught a few dozen historic words. He turned and made an inconspicuous exit through the side door.

SCHOOL BUILDING INSURANCE VOTED BY BOARD GROUP

minority report to the full board on this and other aspects of the insurance program.

Antoine objected to Dyer's proposal to give the secretary-treasurer specific authority to administer the insurance program "with the advice and counsel" of the board president and vice president.

This recommendation, like the $100,000 deductible plan, was carried by the votes of Dyer and Edward C. Donnelly, the third committee member.

Inclusion of the president and vice president in the proposal, Antoine contended, would be "an usurpation of executive authority by policy-making people."

"No One Man."

Dyer, in an apparent reference to Post-Dispatch disclosures that he had been directing the naming of brokers, including state Senators, declared: "Through all of this publicity, there has been criticism of one man, one man, one man, and that is what I am trying to eliminate."

"There was no one man," he said. It was also disclosed that Dyer had asked at least five other board members whether they wanted to suggest names of persons to receive the fees.

Two of the five—H. Lee Bruns and Dr. James J. McCaffery, who is board vice president—said they recalled mentioning some names to Dyer.

Wiethaupt, who said there is no existing law or regulation giving him or any other executive officer authority to direct the insurance program, asked what he should do in case the board president disagreed with the vice president on some point.

Dyer said he did not think such a situation would arise. Donnelly added that Dyer's proposal would not require Wiethaupt to obtain the approval of the president and vice president, but only their "advice and counsel."

When an insurance question comes up, Dyer told Wiethaupt, "the three of you get together and decide."

Self-Insurance Fund.

The committee also approved a third proposal by Dyer which would maintain the board's present self-insurance fund and call for $30,000 a year to be added to it.

Dyer said this fund, which now totals $400,000, would be needed to cover losses of less than $100,000. Antoine voted in favor of this item, saying he did so in view of the committee's prior approval of the deductible policy plan.

Under Wiethaupt's recommendation last year, which the board did not approve, this fund would have been used to pay premiums.

The majority report of the committee will be brought before the full school board at its regular meeting March 13. Antoine's minority report also will be presented then.

Submarine Teachers.

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UP)—Nuclear physics is included in the curriculum of a school recently opened at the United States submarine base here. The instructors all served aboard the Nautilus, the world's first atomic submarine, which was built here.

ILLINOIS CHECKS TRUCKS FOR STATE LAW COMPLIANCE

Twenty agents of the Illinois Commerce Commission, assisted by state highway police, set up roadblocks in St. Clair county today to check compliance of trucks with the Illinois Motor Carrier Act of 1954 in having proper license plates and markings on their "for hire" trucks.

One roadblock was set up at U.S. Highway 40 and State Route 157, south of Edwardsville. "Quite a few" trucks were found with out-dated markings on the cab, one agent said. Additional checks were made at the state patrol weighing station on U.S. Highway 40 and at National Stockyards.

Truckers found to be violating the truck law are issued a warning notice and must comply with the law within 15 days. If they do not, they are called into court to show cause why their permits to operate should not be revoked or suspended.

Agents, who are informing truckers they must have photostatic copies of registration, permit and certificate by July 1, will continue their check in St. Clair county tomorrow then move to Southern Illinois.

No Favoritism.

HUNTINGTON, Ind. (UP)—City police, who usually hand out about eight overtime parking tickets each day, decided to crack down. They distributed 130 tickets carrying a $1 fine in a single day and declared they had been nonpartisan—the recipients included a Democrat and a Republican candidate for mayor.

Transcript of Eisenhower's Second-Term Announcement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UPI).

The transcript of President Eisenhower's second-term announcement to his news conference:

NOW, my next announcement involves something more personal, but I think it will be of interest to you because you have asked me so many questions about it.

I have promised this body that when I reached a decision as to my own attitude toward my own personal future, I would let you know as soon as I reached such a decision.

Now, I have reached a decision. But I have found, as I did so, that there were many factors and considerations involved, that I saw the answer could not be expressed just in the simple terms of yes and no. Some full explanation to the American people is not only necessary, but I would never consent to go before them unless I were assured that they did understand these things, these influences, these possibilities.

Understanding by Party.

Moreover, I would not allow my name to go before the Republican convention unless they, all the Republicans, understood, so that they would not be nominating some individual other than they thought they were nominating.

So for both reason, because I don't know, certainly for certain, that the Republican convention, after hearing the entire story, will want me, I don't know whether the people want me, but I am—I will say this: I am asking as quickly as this conference is over I am asking for time on television and tell them the full facts, and my answer within the limits I have so sketchily observed; but which I will explain in detail tonight so as to get the story out in one continuous narrative—my answer will be positive, that is, affirmative.

Now, because I do intend to give the details of this story tonight, I do not intend to have it as a subject for further conversation this morning, because I believe that is the only answer I promised this particular group, a yes or no, as far as I could give them.

Questions, Answers.

Here is a condensed text of some of the key questions and answers at Mr. Eisenhower's news conference:

Question: Mr. President, since your answer is affirmative, would you again want Vice President Nixon as your running mate?

The President: I wouldn't mention the vice presidency in spite of my tremendous admiration for Mr. Nixon, for this reason: I believe it is traditional that the Vice President is not nominated until after a presidential candidate is nominated; so I think that we will have to wait and see who the Republican convention nominates, and then it will be proper to give an expression on that point.

Q. Mr. President, should you be nominated by the convention, would you like to have the Vice President (Nixon) as a running mate?

The President: I will say nothing more about it. I have said that my admiration and my respect for Vice President Nixon is unbounded. He has been for me a loyal and dedicated associate, and a successful one. I am very fond of him, but I am going to say no more about it.

Q. Could you tell us, sir, when you arrived at a positive decision?

The President: It probably will be in my message this evening, but I will say that I was arguing about it yesterday morning.

Q. Are you able to tell us with whom you discussed this problem?

The President: Everybody that I thought was my friend, and some that I wasn't so sure of.

Q. Are you planning an active cross-country type of campaign or a more inactive type?

The President: That is one of those things you will be perfectly assured of this evening.

As to Competition.

Q. Mr. President, your announcement will undoubtedly take many people out of the race. Do you want competition in this for the nomination?

The President: I have tried to make it just as clear as I can that any Republican that would like to do this job, I would like to see him put his case before the public just as earnestly as he knows how.

Q. What was Mrs. Eisenhower's reaction to your decision?

The President: Mrs. Eisenhower and other members of my family, at the beginning, have said, "This is your decision. We will conform."

Q. Sir, no one has been franker than yourself in revealing the state of your health. How would you expect this issue to be handled in the campaign?

The President: Well, I hadn't given it any thought, but as for my part, I am going to try to be just as truthful as I can be. And I believe this: I think even people who would classify themselves probably as my political enemies do believe I am honest—they may call me stupid—but I think they think I am honest.

Q. What do you regard at the moment as being the major issues in this campaign?

The President: I don't think I want to sort them out and now define them as issues. . . . I have a record established before the American people; that is my campaign.

Q. Mr. President, would you tell us in your own words or analyze for us what you think of your present state of health?

The President: I will this evening.

Q. Can you tell us whether you consulted Vice President Nixon on your decision?

The President: Oh, yes. I consulted Vice President Nixon all the time, and no later than, I think, yesterday afternoon.

Q. If you are renominated, sir, are you quite hopeful of being re-elected?

The President: This is in the hands of the American people. I say my campaign is the record.

Q. Mr. President, how many persons were in on your secret?

The President: Well, I think since last evening there has been probably half a dozen.

Q. How about before that?

The President: Well, there could have been no one because I didn't know myself.

Q. Will you press in this session of Congress for clarification of the constitutional flaw about succession in the presidency?

The President: As quickly . . . as legislation could be drawn up that would convince us all that it did clarify . . . this thing . . . I would be for it, right away . . . and it has nothing to do, though, with me. And I assure you of this: My answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years.

COURT ON RECORD AGAINST TRIAL PHOTOS, BROADCASTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29 (AP)—All seven judges of the United States Court of Appeals here went on record yesterday opposing photographing or broadcasting of court trials.

Chief Judge William Denman made public a resolution by the seven judges which said "we strongly approve . . . Canon 35" of the American Bar association which holds judicial proceedings should not be photographed or broadcast. The canon was overridden in an order by the Colorado Supreme Court yesterday.

The appeals judges' resolution made these points:

A photograph shows but a single moment in the appearances of the judge, jurors, witnesses and attorneys, and "cannot give to the newspaper reader the knowledge of their continuing conduct."

Knowledge that they may be photographed at any time "is likely to distract" everyone in court and make them "consciously or subconsciously" pose "for how they may appear in the next morning's newspapers."

MISS LUCY TELLS OF MOB ACTION AGAINST HER

lynched," as some published reports had it.

Then Miss Lucy cleared up a report that she had lain on the floor of the car that spirited her away from the campus. That wasn't so, either, she said. She sat on the rear seat.

She said she elected to leave the campus after agreeing with the dean of women that it would be unsafe for her to attend further classes.

Registration Payment.
Attorneys for the university asked whether Miss Lucy's university registration had been paid for by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"No," she replied.

She testified that to her knowledge she has never received any direct financial assistance from the N.A.A.C.P. She said she does not know who is paying her fees or her attorney. She said her expenses at Alabama were paid by a "committee that decided they would like to give me some assistance." The committee was not further identified.

A university official testified later that the campus mob "would have killed" Miss Lucy had it been able to "get to her."

Jeff Bennett, assistant to Alabama president O. C. Carmichael, said, "there is no doubt in my mind that if the crowd had gotten to her they would have killed her."

Bennett said he believes that if Miss Lucy had returned to the campus any time between Feb. 6 and the present she would have gone through "the same experience" as before.

He said that townspeople and factions outside the university campus would have been responsible for further demonstrations. He said he believed the student body and the faculty were "a good deal calmer" after D. Carmichael's plea for restoration of order on the campus.

Bennett said he was with Miss Lucy most of the morning of the Feb. 6 disorder. At one time, he said, 2500 to 3000 persons, "more than half of them students," were gathered around a building in which Miss Lucy was attending class. He said "outsiders were keeping the rhythm going."

Aided by Highway Police.
Bennett told how he and Dean of Women Sarah Healy whisked Miss Lucy out of two class buildings with the help of highway patrolmen.

Bennett said he and other university officials had conferred with highway patrolmen earlier in anticipation of trouble on the campus.

He said he and Dean Healy and highway patrolmen were called "nigger loving."

He said after he had taken Miss Lucy to her second class he drove Dean Healy's automobile away from the building as members of the mob tried to overturn it.

University lawyers argued that Miss Lucy went to the campus only for "publicity" and that she had no honest desire to enroll.

Marshall's first move was to request that conspiracy charges against university officials be removed from the contempt action.

Marshall, assisting Miss Lucy's regular lawyer, Arthur Shores, said an investigation could not turn up evidence that any university official had "anything to do with people milling around the university" during the time Miss Lucy was a court-ordered student.

Judge Grooms accepted Marshall's request, plus another that criminal action against four outsiders who were brought into the case be dismissed because the cases against them were drawn for criminal court when they should have been in civil court.

Miss Lucy arrived by a side entrance and took a place at the plaintiff's table with Shores and Mrs. Constance Motley, an N.A.A.C.P. lawyer from New York.

University lawyers protested vigorously against Grooms's ruling striking contempt charges from the action against them.

"I have studied this matter carefully and it is the court's opinion that this is a case for civil contempt," the judge said.

University lawyer Thomas argued that the conspiracy accusation—that the university condoned the demonstrations so as to get rid of Miss Lucy—had been aired over the world and the university leaders should have the chance to "disprove these scurrilous and scandalous statements."

Citizens' Council Says Gov. Folsom Is Not Competent.
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 29 (AP)—A pro-white organization last night approved the indictment of Negro leaders of a bus boycott and charged that Gov. James E. Folsom "has not proven competent during these grave and grievous times."

The criticism against Folsom was included in a resolution which put the Central Alabama Citizens' Council on record as opposed to a biracial commission which might try to solve racial disputes outside the framework of Alabama's segregation laws.

Reporters were barred from the meeting in the Montgomery city hall, but police estimated 3000 persons attended. The council says it has 12,000 members in this area.

Grand Jury Commended.
Another resolution commended the Montgomery county grand jury which last week indicted 100 Negroes, including 24 ministers, for violating Alabama's anti-boycott law in their protest against racial segregation.

The council also called on state officials to continue the enforcement of segregation laws, and changed its name from the Central Alabama Citizens' Council to the Montgomery County Citizens' Council.

State Senator Sam Engelhardt, chairman of the organization, said the resolution naming Gov. Folsom did not mean the council would not support an "independent" biracial commission that would try to mediate racial disputes.

But he said it was feared a biracial commission carrying authority given by the Legislature might possibly try to erase existing segregation laws.

Special Session Called.
Folsom recommended the creation of a biracial commission in a proclamation ordering a special session of the Legislature beginning tomorrow.

In commending the grand jury which returned the boycott indictments, the council said "sinister" influences are at work in Alabama. The 12-week-old bus boycott, the resolution said, "is a notorious and flagrant violation of all customs and traditions of our city and state."

The boycott began Dec. 5 in protest against segregated seating required on buses by state and city laws. Leaders of the protest movement, many of them Negro ministers, promised at a rally Monday night to continue the boycott despite the indictments.

Ninety Negroes arrested thus far on the indictments were freed in $300 bond each pending trial. The anti-boycott law was passed by the Legislature

In 1921 for use in labor disputes.

Sponsors of Prayer Day Don't Want Work Stoppage.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—Sponsors of a nationwide prayer day on March 28 in support of the Montgomery Negro boycott of buses say they do not want a simultaneous work stoppage.

"We are interested in prayer only," Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem.), New York, said yesterday. Powell is pastor of a 15,000-member New York Negro congregation, and one of three Negroes in Congress.

It was announced after a meeting of New York Negro leaders last Friday that they had agreed no Negroes should attend school or work from 2 to 3 p.m. on the prayer day.

MOTHER BACKS HERMANN STORY AT MURDER TRIAL

Leave Home on Night of Dr. Sharp Killing in Ladue.

Mrs. Marguerite A. Hermann, mother of Thomas P. Hermann, former mental patient charged with killing Dr. Cecil A. Z. Sharp in the doorway of the Sharp home June 29, 1954, was the first defense witness after the state completed its evidence in circuit court at Clayton today.

Hermann is on trial for murder a second time, following a reversal of a prior conviction and 25-year sentence by the Missouri Supreme Court. The second trial is before a jury of 12 men in the court of Judge Noah Weinstein.

Mrs. Hermann testified that on the night Dr. Sharp was shot, her son, Thomas, was playing cards in the Hermann home in Ladue, which adjoined the Sharp property on the east. She said that Thomas did not leave the house. The Hermanns now live to the west of the Sharp home. The witness was cross-examined by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Donald Lasater.

Cecil T. Sharp, 18 years old, told police the night of the shooting that Hermann held the weapon that killed his father. Ladue Police Lt. Olan C. Hahn testified that Cecil Sharp told him he was "80 or 90 per cent certain that Tom Hermann shot my father."

The witness said he saw Cecil again on July 6, and the youth was emphatic in identifying Hermann as the man who shot Dr. Sharp.

Struck in Jaw.

Dr. John Pfaff Jr., pathologist for the county coroner, another witness today, testified the bullet struck Dr. Sharp in the left upper jaw and ranged upward, damaging the brain and lodging at the back of the skull. He said he could not determine from the wound the caliber of the bullet.

Under long cross-examination by Defense Counsel Henry G. Morris, Cecil Sharp, now a high school senior, testified he had been studying geometry in his room at home, 9243 Clayton road, prior to the shooting. Morris pointed out that school had closed and Sharp testified he was not attending summer classes.

"I guess I was not studying geometry," the witness observed. He added that "later events that night made more of an impression than what I had been doing in my room."

Explains Testimony.

On re-direct examination by Lasater, the witness said he testified at the coroner's inquest in his father's death that he "could not say that Tom Hermann fired the shot." The testimony followed legal advice "to be hesitant about saying anything too quickly," he explained.

Cecil Sharp said he was eating watermelon in the kitchen prior to the shooting, and heard voices he identified as those of members of the Hermann family "in a loud argument outside."

"The voices came toward our house, and my father got up from his chair and walked to the door of the den," Cecil related. "I opened the door, and

REFUGEE CLAIMS RUSSIAN TROOPS FOUGHT IN KOREA

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—The American Committee for Liberation from Bolshevism announced today a young Soviet bear-trainer recently defected to the West with evidence that Soviet military units participated directly in the Korean war.

Viktor Ilyinsky, a former non-commissioned officer in Soviet army communications, fled a traveling Soviet circus train in Aachen, West Germany, Jan. 28, the announcement said, and went to Munich with the intention of broadcasting his story over the committee's Radio Liberation transmitters.

The announcement said Ilyinsky joined the circus after being released from service in North Korea. It said he made up his mind to try for a getaway more than three years ago after he heard Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's claim that there were no Soviet units participating in the Korean war or stationed in North Korea.

However, Ilyinsky served with a signal corps unit in North Korea from 1951 until July 27, 1953, when hostilities ended and his unit was moved into Red China. Later it was transferred to Soviet Georgia where he was demobilized.

WEST VIRGINIA GOVERNOR'S NO. 1 AUTO LICENSE STOLEN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Someone in West Virginia has a souvenir license plate he wouldn't dare use.

License No. 1 was stolen from Gov. William C. Marland's big black car while the governor was attending an industrial development meeting in Wheeling. State Police Lt. Roy G. Coen, the governor's driver, said it was the first time it had happened in his many years of driving for five West Virginia governors. The state plant has made Marland a new plate.

my father was standing at my right. There was a shot and I felt the blast. My father fell to the floor."

Cecil Sharp said that when he reached down to pull his father out of the doorway, he saw Hermann standing six feet away.

"He came closer, motioning downward with his weapon," the witness testified. "I closed the door and went to the telephone to call police."

Mrs. Celeste Eaton, who was employed as a housekeeper in June 1954 at 9241 Clayton road, testified she was emptying garbage at the rear of the home about 9 p.m. June 29 and heard angry voices in the yard at the Hermann home. She said she recognized the voices of Mrs. Hermann and her two sons, Thomas and James.

Widow Testifies.

Mrs. Katherine Sharp, the physician's widow, testified to the circumstances of the shooting. After the shot was fired she quoted her son as saying, "He's still out there." She said she asked, "Who?" Cecil replied, "Tom Hermann," Mrs. Sharp testified.

Dr. Sharp, who was medical administrator for the United Mine Workers of America at the time of his death, was killed by a small caliber bullet that ranged upward. Several .22-caliber cartridges were found near the home, but the weapon was never recovered.

Hermann's conviction of second-degree murder was reversed by the State Supreme Court because of the failure of the jury foreman to disclose he had served a federal sentence on a felony charge involving use of the mails.

TUCKER EXPLAINS HIS CHARTER VIEWS

Says Revision Would Cut Overlapping, Thus Boost Efficiency.

Overlapping of authority among various departments could be eliminated under a new city charter and thus administrative efficiency would be sharpened, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said today. He urged members of the Sertema Club in a talk at Hotel Statler to support the movement for a board of freeholders to revise the charter.

Opponents of charter revision often point out that the Constitution of the United States has never been rewritten.

ten and ask why then should the city charter be revised, the Mayor said.

"The Constitution provides a broad grant of power, whereas the city charter provides a specific grant of power," Mayor Tucker said. For example, he said, the charter prevents the city from creating new departments, although such steps can be taken by the Federal Government without rewriting the Constitution.

"Our present charter was written in 1914, and those who wrote it did an excellent job but in the 42 ensuing years many things have occurred which make it essential that it be changed," Tucker continued. "I don't know of any business in St. Louis that hasn't reorganized itself since 1914."

He cited the department of welfare as an example of "confusion" caused by the city charter. "There are 4300 employees in the department, and they are responsible for operating the penal institutions, all hospitals, parks, playgrounds and all recreational programs," he said. The department should be divided to bring about more efficient administrative control, he asserted.

Under the 1914 charter the city has four offices collecting and disbursing money, engineering services spaced in all departments and overlapping of authority between the Board of Public Service and the Board of Aldermen, Tucker pointed out.

Another outmoded provision of the charter is the salary ceiling of $10,000 for any city employee which is making it difficult to obtain certain types of employees, especially in professional and engineering fields.

REDS DEMAND U.N. COUNCIL CONDEMN U.S. ATOM TESTS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 29 (AP)—Russia demanded today that the United Nations Trusteeship Council condemn United States plans to hold new nuclear weapons tests in the Pacific Islands trust territory.

The Russian theme is an old one but Soviet delegate Vasily F. Grubyakov surprised the council by bringing it up at this time. Benjamin Gerig, United States delegate, questioned whether the Soviet demand was in order. The council is not supposed to take up Pacific Islands trusteeship until its summer session. Mason Sears, American president of the council, ruled that the Russian proposal would have to be put in writing and the council took no further action today.

KILLER IS FOUND HANGED

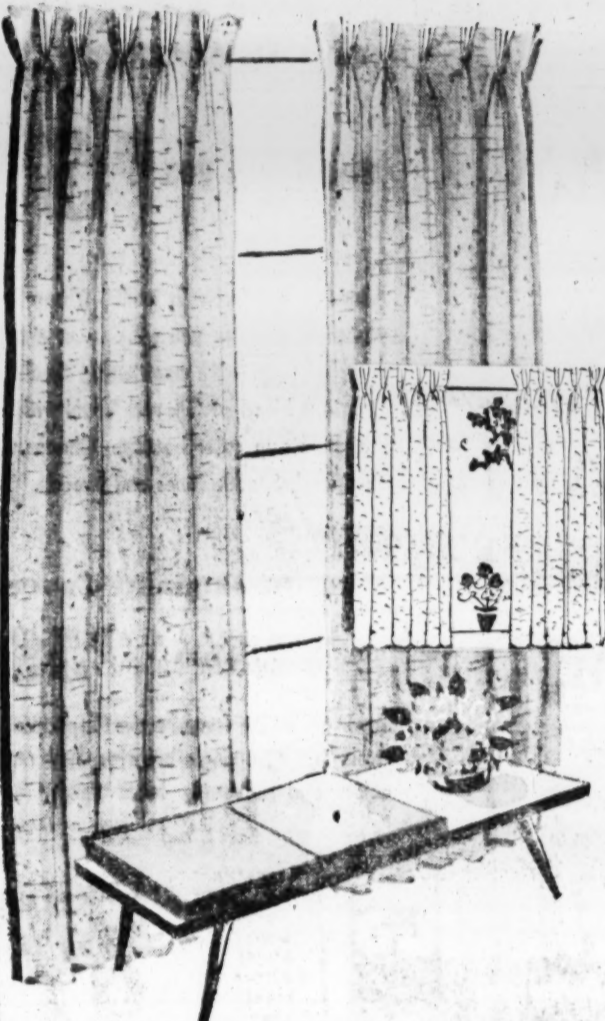

CHICAGO, Feb. 29 (AP)—Jim Go, 76 years old, who admitted fatally stabbing a Cook County Hospital intern last week, was found hanged last night in a jail cell.

Dr. Bruno Epstein, 25, was killed last Wednesday by Go, who told police he thought he was being refused medicine. Go was in jail awaiting action by a grand jury.

Food Rationed in Red China But People Are Not Starving

Controls Unlikely to End Soon as Exports
Are Being Increased to Pay for Industrial Goods.

Lois Mitchison, British newspaper writer, took a two-month tour of Red China as a journalist. This story, written for the Associated Press, was forwarded through Hong Kong.

By LOIS MITCHISON

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29 (AP)—The people of Red China may go hungry sometimes, but they certainly do not appear to be starving.

People can be seen sitting by the doors of their houses at lunch time, eating from large full rice bowls. Children's bellies are not swollen as they are in famine times; adults do not look unnaturally thin.

The Government rations several important foodstuffs, including rice and other grains, flour, cooking oil and sugar. Pork has just been taken off the ration.

Cotton cloth, the staple clothing material in China, also is rationed.

The rations vary according to the individual's work—the biggest for the heaviest labor.

Rations Vary.

Chy Yu-chun of the Shanghai municipal people's council said Shanghai rations vary from 13 to 50 pounds a month. An office worker, for instance, gets 24 pounds of rice a month. A driver of a bicycle cab 41. The Shanghai cooking oil ration is now 10 to 14 ounces a month.

The sugar ration is six ounces for people in the city, four for county people.

The cotton cloth ration for this year is 45 feet for adults in all Chinese cities and 32 feet for children. In the country it's 38 feet for adults, 20 for children.

Some unrationed food are in short supply but vegetables and fish are plentiful. So are relatively expensive canned goods.

Rice in South China and flour for noodles and steamed buns in the north are important to the Chinese. To the poor they are the main—sometimes the only—dish in every meal. Most men will eat three or four small bowls of rice, twice a day. A ration of 30 pounds a month should be enough for most men. Most, but not all, Chinese get this much or more.

Sugar, Pork Luxuries.

Sugar and pork are luxuries to most people in China. Poorer families use pork more as a flavoring than as a main dish for ordinary occasions.

The cotton cloth ration can hardly be adequate for middle class city dwellers. Most Chinese use cotton to make their padded winter clothes as well as their summer clothes. A winter overcoat takes 24 feet of cloth, more than half of the year's ration.

IOWA POLITICIAN TELLS OF OFFER BY NEFF, HE DENIES IT

Neftly, on the first visit to his office, Goodwin said. Some of the names of Senators in the "doubtful" column were checked with check marks and a couple of the names in the other columns were marked at the side with short lines. The list was encased in a clear cellophane envelope, and Goodwin said no one else has touched it except his secretary.

Fingerprint Check.

Committee Counsel Charles W. Steadman questioned Neft extensively about the list and then announced that it would be turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a fingerprint check.

Earlier, Superior Oil Co. attorney Elmer Patman testified that he hired Neft to work in Nebraska and did not "send him over this nation" to round up Senate support for the gas bill. This was a reference to testimony yesterday that Neft concerned himself with five states—Nebraska, Wyoming, Iowa, South Dakota and Montana—in determining how Senators stood on the gas bill.

Patman said Neft was given some latitude in his work but that he had told him in a positive fashion that his work was to be confined to Nebraska.

The investigating committee recessed its public hearings until Friday. It planned then to question Patman about the check-off list of Senators' names.

Neff said his recollections about the list were somewhat hazy. He "presumed" he had seen it and "may have had a copy" with him on his first visit to Goodwin. He did not believe he had made the check marks, but could not say positively.

Several Contradictions.

The sworn testimony of Neft and Goodwin conflicted at several points.

Goodwin said that Neft, on his first visit to Des Moines, expressed a desire to learn Hickenlooper's views on the gas bill or to see the Senator. Goodwin said that Neft definitely offered him $2500, not for Republican funds, but for Hickenlooper's campaign.

Goodwin said Neft called a couple of weeks later "a little impatient" because no date had been arranged with Hickenlooper. Later—Goodwin was unable to say just how many weeks later—Neft came back to his office alone, Goodwin said. On this visit, Goodwin said, Neft made the $1000 offer which "sounded like a down payment on a purchase or something."

"I told him, 'Don't even take it out of your pocket, we don't do business that way,'" Goodwin said.

Neff contended that Goodwin was "wrong" in asserting that Neft had arranged the first visit. Neft said Gerdes arranged it through a friend.

Denies Mentioning Funds. Neft said also that Goodwin was "wrong" in saying that there was a second visit, in saying that campaign funds were discussed, and in his mention of $1000 and $2500.

Gerdes was not called. His previous testimony generally bore out Neft's statement that the visit was to seek out Hickenlooper's views on the gas bill. Like Neft, Gerdes said no campaign contributions were offered, to the best of his recollection.

In other testimony today, Jarvis Davenport, Sturgis, (S.D.), finance chairman for Case's campaign, said he has solicited no contributions from oil and gas interests and has received none, except for $65 from two local fuel dealers. Davenport agreed to furnish letters soliciting out of state contributions in behalf of Case and the names of "electric and water" utilities that have contributed to Case's recent campaigns.

Bridges Wants Lobby Inquiry on Dixon-Yates.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, said today a proposal for investigation of lobbying activities in connection with the canceled Dixon-Yates contract will be laid before a new Senate inquiry committee. Vice President Richard M.

Nixon called together the committee's four Democrats and four Republicans, instructed by the Senate to look into campaign contributions, improper influence and lobbying.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, a critic of the Dixon-Yates power contract which President Eisenhower first directed be signed and then ordered canceled, may be chosen chairman of the new group. Bridges is expected to be elected vice chairman.

Bridges said in an interview he has received information there were "widespread lobbying activities" in connection with the congressional controversy which arose over the Dixon-Yates contract.

On Both Sides.

"I think the new committee ought to look into activities on both sides of this issue," Bridges said. "I am especially interested with respect to a reputed $90,000 raised by Citizens for TVA and what part of it, if any, was spent in opposing the Dixon-Yates contract."

Citizens for TVA was organized in Nashville, Tenn., in July 1953 by municipal and civic leaders of the Tennessee Valley states. The Tennessee Municipal League had a leading role in its formation.

The organization had as its announced objectives the seeking of favorable TVA legislation, counteracting private power activities and telling the TVA story. It raised about $100,000 from donations by businessmen, labor unions and civic groups.

Eisenhower Criticized.

Many Democrats assailed Mr. Eisenhower's action in directing the Atomic Energy Commission to sign a contract with the Dixon-Yates private power group for construction of a power plant to be linked into the TVA system at Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Eisenhower canceled the contract after Memphis took steps to construct its own power plant and sever its contract to buy TVA power.

Bridges made it clear he was acting only for himself in planning to lay the investigation proposal before the new committee. He said there have been no informal meetings of the Republican members to discuss proposed investigations.

Other Republicans on the group are Senators Edward J. Thye of Minnesota, Barry Goldwater of Arizona and William A. Purtell of Connecticut. Besides Gore, Democrats are Senators John L. McClellan of Arkansas, Clinton Anderson of New Mexico and John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

DENIES BAR ON STOCK DEAL

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (AP)—United States District Judge Perry today refused to grant an injunction barring an exchange of 150,000 shares of stock by Fairbanks, Morse & Co. and Canadian Locomotive Co., Ltd.

Immediately after the ruling, W. M. Kennedy, attorney for Penn-Texas, said he would appeal it to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Miami's Hottest Feb. 28.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 29 (AP)—Yesterday was the hottest Feb. 28 in Miami's history—85 degrees officially. The Weather Bureau reported it was 88 in Bayfront Park along the Miami waterfront and 89 degrees at Miami Beach.

AIR FORCE STUDIES SCOTT BASE CHANGE

Considers Moving Training Command Headquarters to Randolph in Texas.

Plans to move Air Training Command headquarters from Scott Air Force Base to Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, are being considered, Brig. Gen. Henry R. Spicer, A.T.C. chief of staff, said last night at the sixth annual "G.I. Pal" dinner at the Belleville U.S.O. center. Gen. Spicer said the plan is in the formative stage at present and has not been submitted to Air Force Headquarters in Washington for final approval. Purpose of the move would be economy, and present indications are that $6,000,000 would be saved if the shift is carried out, Gen. Spicer said. He spoke on behalf of Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, commanding general of the A.T.C., who is in a hospital with pneumonia. Tentative plans provide for consolidation of the three sub-command headquarters: crew training headquarters at San Antonio, Texas, technical training headquarters at Gulfport, Miss., and flying training headquarters at Waco, Texas.

If approved, the shift would free about 600 persons for reassignment by the Air Force, Spicer said. A similar proposed shift last November, which claimed a potential annual savings of $3,900,000, was vetoed by Air Force Secretary Donald Quarles.

A.T.C. headquarters were transferred from Barksdale, La., to Scott Air Force Base in 1949. At that time, Lt. Gen. Robert W. Harper, A.T.C. commander, explained that reorganization and centralization of the A.T.C. at Scott Air Force Base would result in greater efficiency and economy. Headquarters personnel were transferred from Barksdale and from Randolph Field to Scott Air Force Base. Gen. Harper said the Belleville base was selected as the new headquarters because of its superior physical facilities, central location and nearness to communities where housing accommodations could be found. About 30 persons attended the "G.I. Pal" dinner, which is given each year by civic leaders of Belleville in honor of airmen at Scott Air Force Base.

FLAT RIVER MAYOR RESIGNS IN DISPUTE

Differed With Aldermen on Contract Exceeding Bond Authority.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
FLAT RIVER, Mo., Feb. 29.—Mayor Herman H. Province of Flat River said yesterday he had resigned his office because of disagreement with the Board of Aldermen over the latter's approval of a $68,101 contract for construction of a municipal swimming pool.

Province, whose resignation was submitted and accepted Monday, said he disapproved of the contract because the amount was in excess of the $65,000 authorized by Flat River voters for the swimming pool in a bond issue election last May.

Jeff Matkin, chairman of the aldermanic board, was designated acting Mayor pending the city election April 3. Province, 44 years old, had been Mayor since 1953. Before that, he was alderman and street commissioner for three years.

Province said early bids for construction of the pool, which is to be built in a city park, had been rejected because they exceeded the $65,000 authorization. Subsequently, he said, an Alabama concern had offered to build a slightly smaller pool for that figure.

He said the contract for the 50-by-150-foot pool finally had been let to contractor Jake Chilton of Esther, Mo., for $68,101. The cost would be increased to about $70,000, he said, by legal, engineering and architectural fees. "I did not feel I wanted to be responsible for signing a contract for more than the voters authorized," Province said. He added that he had no plans at present for getting back into politics. He is an employee of the St. Joseph Lead Co.

BECK DENIES DEAL TO STEP DOWN AS TEAMSTER HEAD

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 29 (AP)—Dave Beck said last night there is no truth to a magazine report that he has made a deal to step down as president of the AFL-CIO Teamsters Union. The report is in the current issue of Fortune magazine. The publication says Beck and Teamster Vice President James R. Hoffa have made an agreement under which Beck will be re-elected in 1957 and then step aside six months later in favor of Hoffa. The Fortune article says Beck was "so busy becoming a labor statesman that he didn't see Jimmy Hoffa stealing control ... out from under him." Beck said he has announced "a hundred times" that he will seek re-election in 1957 to a final five-year term. The 61-year-old union president, who is vacationing here, said he expects to be President until 1962.

MERGER WOULDN'T BENEFIT COUNTY, BOEDEKER ASSERTS

Merging St. Louis and St. Louis county would be of no benefit to residents of the county, Edgar Boedeker, a former member of the Legislature and a former member of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, said last night at a meeting of the Gravois Township Republican Club at Edgar Road School, 1131 Edgar road, Webster Groves.

Boedeker, Clayton attorney, said merger would result in the loss of "free political expression" for county residents and inferior municipal services. He called for working toward "reasonable consolidation of those governmental units in the county which should be consolidated."

Vernon Riehl, former St. Louis alderman and now a resident of Webster Groves, declared the city was interested in merger for the increased taxes it would bring. He described St. Louis as crime-ridden and the county as having "very little crime."

AMVETS, D.A.V. ASSAIL LEGION, V.F.W. ON PENSION

Bills Before House Group Called 'Preposterous,' Threat to Disabled Veterans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UP)—General pension bills sponsored by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars were denounced today by Amvets as "preposterous" and by the Disabled American Veterans as a threat to care of the service-disabled.

Amvets, an organization of World War II veterans, and D.A.V. attacked the two big pension proposals in testimony prepared for the House Veterans Committee.

The committee is considering the pension plans and 74 other proposals to increase or liberalize veterans pension payments.

Compensation Not Involved. Pensions are payments for disability not related to military service. Compensation—payment for disability incurred in or as a result of military duty—is not involved in the committee's hearings.

D.A.V. and Amvets said care of the service-disabled should come ahead of general pensions. Government experts told the committee existing pension laws, with no liberalization and no more wars, eventually will cost $3,600,000,000 yearly.

The Veterans' Administration has estimated that V.F.W.'s proposed $100 a month basic pension for needy veterans of World War I, at age 62, will cost an extra $1,900,000,000 the first year. It said the Legion's plan for increased pension payments, with presumption of disability at age 65, would cost $528,000,000 extra.

D.A.V. Commander Speaks. Maj. Gen. Melvin J. Maas, retired and blind Marine Corps officer, spoke for D.A.V. as its national commander.

"Too many of our members are actually apprehensive and fearful that such a generous pension program will sound the death knell of the whole compensation-for-the-service-connected structure, and, in the end, the dissolution of the hospital and medical program of the Veterans' Administration."

Rudolph G. Pesata, national commander of Amvets, in his statement, took the Legion plan as the "most conservative" of several providing pensions for age and said, "because no other word is sufficient, we submit that such a proposal is preposterous."

JOPPA STEAM GENERATOR COST PUT AT $183,000,000

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JOPPA, Ill., Feb. 29—Electric Energy, Inc.'s steam generating plant at Joppa was completed at a cost of $183,000,000, the Illinois Power Co., which owns 20 per cent of Electric Energy, said in its annual report yesterday.

Construction of the 1,000,000-kilowatt power station was finished last Aug. 5. It now supplies 735,000 kilowatts of electricity to the Atomic Energy Commission plant at nearby Paducah, Ky., which produces fissionable uranium-235.

The final cost of the project was $44,000,000 above original estimates. Management blamed this primarily on work stoppages and other labor trouble while some labor leaders placed the blame on inept management. The Joppa labor boss, Evan R. Dale, president of the Southern Illinois District Council of the AFL Laborers, is serving a 15-year prison term for an attempt to extort $1,030,000 from the general contractor.

MARINE RECRUIT GOAL 150

A Marine Corps recruiting quota of 150 men has been set for March in the eastern Missouri and southern Illinois areas, it was announced today by Lt. Col. John J. Jarvis Jr., officer in charge of recruiting activities at the Marine Corps Recruiting Station in St. Louis.

Flashes of Life

Tired of It All.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Three weeks ago, police began a series of raids against Oklahoma City bootleggers.

One of them, Ray Haynes, paid $1500 in fines and bonds plus attorney's fees in that time. After two arrests.

The police returned for a third time. On the door was tacked a huge funeral wreath, and the words: "Left town."

Likewise.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Paul E. Unnewehr filed a petition in court asking that his name be changed to Wehr because his four children are continually ribbed about the name at school.

Too Conscientious.

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—A former student who mailed $5 for a library novel she borrowed—and failed to return—35 years ago is getting her money back.

Bob Jones, librarian at Colorado State College of Education, said the check came from Kentucky. He declined to identify the one-time student.

"A novel over 35 years old might well have been discarded by now anyhow," Jones wrote in returning the check, "and I'm afraid my conscience would bother me if I accepted your money."

REFUGEE FALLS TO DEATH

FRIEDLAND, Germany, Feb. 29 (UP)—Franz Kuessner, 86-year-old German, waited 11 years before Polish authorities would let him leave his home in what was once Germany. When he finally received permission this week to depart from the Communist-controlled territory to the free world, he excitedly leaned against an unlocked door of his railroad coach and fell to his death.

FIRECRACKER IN MAIL BOX SET OFF, LETTERS DAMAGED

A firecracker was exploded in a mail box yesterday in front of a drug store at 2602 North Kingshighway.

Vernon Swinney, owner of the store, called police after he heard the explosion and saw smoke coming from the mail box. The Post Office sent an employee who opened the box and found remnants of a firecracker.

Two letters, one containing a money order, were found damaged in the box, but names of the addressees were legible.

Polio Spreading in Argentina. BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 29 (UP)—An outbreak of infantile paralysis in Buenos Aires has spread to other Argentine cities with more than 600 cases registered since Jan. 1, it was reported yesterday.

6 FREIGHT CARS DERAILED IN MILL CREEK VALLEY

Six freight cars of a Missouri Pacific train were derailed early today in the Mill Creek Valley, yards near Spring avenue. No one was injured and other rail traffic moved on schedule, a railroad spokesman reported.

A part of the braking mechanism fell from one car to the tracks, causing the derailment, he said. The loaded 70-car train was moving at six miles an hour preparing to stop in the Twenty-first street yards when the accident occurred.

Three of the cars, which were tilted and pushed across another set of tracks by the derailment, were damaged and one lost a set of wheels. The accident occurred about 2 a.m. The railroad expected to have the tracks cleared by early afternoon.

EASTLAND IS SET TO HEAD SENATE JUDICIARY GROUP

Right-Wing Mississippi Democrat Almost Certain to Get Powerful Post.

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29—A far right-wing Democratic Senator, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, is now almost certain to become chairman of the powerful Judiciary Committee.

Eastland was the ranking Democratic member of that committee before the death yesterday from a cerebral hemorrhage of its Democratic chairman, Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia.

By the long custom of seniority Senator Eastland will move up to the chair barring some wholly unlikely decision of the committee's Democratic majority and the Democratic Senate leadership to attempt to shunt him aside. Even if such an effort were made, it would be very likely to fail.

There was some anxiety last night among the liberal Democrats at this prospect, but there was little sign that any effective liberal protest could or would be made. To attempt to bar Eastland from moving up would be to challenge one of the most sensitively held of all Senate prerogatives.

Most Active Committee. The Judiciary Committee is in major matters the most active in the Senate. It has immediate jurisdiction, among other things, over all proposed constitutional amendments, over all the federal courts, over immigration and internal security policies, over monopoly issues, and over any federal legislation that might eventually be sought for enforcing racial desegregation.

Where the late chairman, Kilgore, was an advanced liberal Senator Eastland stands at the extreme right of the Senate, relative to either party.

Eastland has been a strong backer of the amendment proposed by Senator John W. Bricker (Rep., Ohio), to limit the President's treaty-making power.

Though the committee has the power to pass initially on presidential nominations to the Supreme Court, Eastland denounced the court's anti-segregation decision as the work of a bench that had become "indoctrinated and brainwashed by left-wing pressure groups."

Wants Court Investigated. He has called for a Senate investigation of that decision, which he has repeatedly urged the South to refuse to accept by the tactic of organized delay in compliance.

He has appeared as a speaker before White Citizens' Councils in the South.

On immigration matters Eastland was commonly considered a close supporter of the late Senator Pat McCarran (Dem., Nevada).

McCarran was co-author, with Representative Francis Walter (Dem., Pennsylvania), of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, which the Eisenhower Administration, many Republicans and a majority of the congressional Democrats have long sought in vain to liberalize.

As to investigations, Senator Eastland took over the chairmanship of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee from McCarran. He has worked on that subcommittee in close association with its principal Republican member, Senator William E. Jenner of Indiana.

Vacancy on Committee.

Though Eastland's election to the chairmanship of the full Judiciary Committee and his continued control of the Internal Security subcommittee are all but assumed, a substantial question remains as to the identity of the Democratic replacement on the full committee that now will be made. When Eastland moves up there will be a vacancy lower down on the Democratic side of the committee.

This selection will be made by the Senate Democratic steering committee, though probably not before a week or 10 days out of respect to the memory of Senator Kilgore.

The appointment of a conservative or ultra-conservative would further weight the committee on the conservative side, while the choice of a liberal would to some extent restore the imbalance resulting from Senator Kilgore's death.

Committee Membership. The full membership is 15—eight Democrats and seven Republicans.

Present members of the committee, in addition to Eastland, are Democratic Senators Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, Thomas C. Hennings Jr. of Missouri, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, Price Daniel of Texas and Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Republican Senators Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, William Langer of North Dakota, William E. Jenner of Indiana, Arthur V. Watkins of Utah, Everett Dirksen of Illinois, Herman Welker of Idaho and John Marshall Butler of Maryland.

Three of the Democrats are commonly catalogued as liberals. Only one of the Republicans, Langer, is usually so considered—on some but not all issues.

Kites Hamper Aviators. Arthur Harris said the kites have forced some planes to pull up abruptly while trying to land.

5 KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

LAKE WALES, Fla., Feb. 29 (AP)—Five visitors from Illinois were killed and a sixth was injured yesterday in a two-automobile collision in front of a motel.

The accident took the lives of Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Anton Herrmann of Harrisburg, Pa. and Mrs. Jasper O. Edington of Champaign, and Dempsey James Weston of Champaign. Mrs. Weston suffered a fractured rib and bruises.

TELLS OF $80,000 POLITICAL USE FUND

Head of Insurance Firm Testifies in Texas Receivership Action.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 29 (AP)—An Arkansas insurance company executive has sworn that the president of the defunct

U. S. Trust and Guaranty Co. got $80,000 in cash to use for political purposes between September and December 1955. What the purposes were was not revealed.

The affidavit was made by Willis V. Lewis, former employee of U. S. Trust and now president of the Arkansas Fire and Marine Insurance Co., Little Rock.

A. B. Shoemaker, head of U. S. Trust and Guaranty, now in permanent receivership, was reported to be making "gradual improvement" from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head. He shot himself soon after the $7,000,000 firm was put into receivership.

Lewis's affidavit accompanied an application filed yesterday with District Judge Charles O. Betts by State Insurance Receiver J. D. Wheeler.

Wheeler asked court approval of a settlement of the receiver's $500,000 claim against the Arkansas company's funds.

The settlement would net the receivership about $370,000 of the $500,000, which U. S. Trust and Guaranty allegedly lent for organization of Arkansas Fire and Marine, in August, 1955.

Butler Urges Papers to Carry 'Battle Page' During Campaign

Idea Would Give Both Parties Chance to Present Cases 'in Own Words,' Democratic Leader Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler today urged the nation's newspapers to set up a "battle page" during the fall election campaign so both major parties can "present their cases in their own words."

Renewing a charge that "a large segment of the press" is one-sided in favor of the Republicans, Butler told the National Press Club in a speech that the "battle page" would be a "constructive step toward righting the balance in press coverage of political affairs."

Butler made public at the same time a letter asking the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors to consider the merits of such a page at their conventions this year. He said he hopes the organizations will promote adoption of the idea "on a general scale."

The Democratic chief described the "battle page"—used on a limited basis in past national campaigns—as "a page which is open to the two major parties, giving them equal space and position, letting them present their cases in their own words in opposite columns."

Butler suggested the "battle page" ought to be run in the last eight or nine weeks before the November election.

In his letter to the ANPA and the ASNE, Butler said a "battle page" will not in any way interfere with regular coverage of the campaign and the issues in news and editorial columns.

Neither, he said, would such a page "in any way curtail a publisher's or editor's freedom of choice or action in the exercise of his independent judgment."

What it would do, Butler stated, is serve "both the standard of adequate coverage of public questions . . . and the ideal of equal treatment."

In his speech to the Press Club, Butler said newspapers which object to the phrase "one-party press" will have a chance to show their fairness by carrying the battle page.

He appealed for press support of a proposal to change the communications act to permit radio and television stations to offer free time to major candidates in presidential campaigns "without being required to give equal time to fringe or frivolous candidates."

Butler also plugged for the Democratic National Committee's proposal for a series of debates between the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates. He said the response to this idea from the G.O.P. National Committee "has not been favorable."

He said "still another campaign improvement measure" is a plan to solicit "broad and bipartisan grassroots contributions to both Republican and Democratic coffers." This idea was originated by Philip L. Graham, publisher of the Washington Post and Times-Herald.

Butler said the Republicans have lost interest in "bipartisan fund raising" since they "raised $5,000,000 at the salute-to-Eisenhower dinners" last month.

AIR SPOTTERS TO AID IN STORM WARNINGS

535 Defense Filter Center Observers Will Report Weather Data.

The St. Louis Weather Bureau's storm warning service, which reports tornadoes and other severe disturbances, will be augmented by personnel of the St. Louis Air Defense Filter Center, 9011 Manchester road, Brentwood, it was announced yesterday.

Primary purpose of the center's 535 observer posts, covering 38,000 square miles in southern Illinois, eastern Missouri and southern Iowa, is to report on aircraft. Personnel are to be trained, however, to report weather information as well.

At present the Weather Bureau's severe storm network includes 44 counties in Missouri and three in Illinois. Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said the filter center's help would greatly increase the efficiency of the warning system.

Air Force field teams will begin training observers in techniques of weather reporting within a few weeks, it was said. Observers will relay information to the filter center, which will pass it to the Weather Bureau.

Tornadoes caused more deaths in Illinois than in any other state in a 35-year period ended in 1950, the Weather Bureau office in Chicago said yesterday. In total property damage, Illinois was second only to Oklahoma.

Although Illinois ranks only tenth among states in tornado frequency, its death total was 914 and property damage nearly $49,000,000 for the 35 years.

The number of Illinois tornadoes rises sharply in March, reaches a peak in May and starts to decline in June, the Weather Bureau said. Many of the most destructive storms have occurred in southern and central Illinois.

State officials have asked for federal funds to build a temporary school at Pinkstaff, where the grade school, with 108 pupils, was heavily damaged by Saturday's tornado. Pinkstaff is about 150 miles east of St. Louis.

NON-PARTISAN CITY VOTING SAID TO HURT PARTY SETUP

Local party organization is affected adversely by nonpartisan elections at the municipal level because some voters tend to drift away from major political parties, Norman C. Park, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Central Committee, said last night.

George W. Cloyd, Democratic Central Committeeman, of Clayton township, replied that lack of local patronage did not have a bad effect on the local party organization.

They participated in a television discussion on KETC, Channel 9, with Prof. Thomas H. Eliot, chairman of the political science department at Washington University.

RED MAGAZINE CITES
LABOR LAW FLAWS

Article Apparently Heralds
Shake-up in Russian Code for Workers.

MOSCOW, Feb. 29 (AP)—Soviet trade union magazine Socialist Trud yesterday called for revision of Russia's labor laws to eliminate malpractices and obsolete wartime provisions.

The article apparently heralded a big shake-up of the labor code, since no Soviet publication would indulge in such criticism merely to say the nation's work provisions were at fault.

Here are some of the things the magazine listed as wrong with labor laws and their administration:

Workers being wrongly dismissed, frequent cases of unlawful overtime, trade union disregard of working hours, management arbitrariness in firing factory and office workers.

Gross violations by the heads of some enterprises who refuse to comply speedily with labor court decisions, attempts by some leading officials to circumvent labor laws by applying the principle of "local conditions," the lack of formal abolition of certain labor laws instituted as wartime measures.

The magazine said, "There are still manifestations of arbitrariness on the part of management . . . this is evidenced by the high percentage of court decisions favoring fired or transferred workers."

The article was the latest addition to what appears to be a call for better working conditions and more pay for Soviet labor.

Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev outlined plans at the recently concluded twentieth party congress to shorten the work day to seven hours. Other speakers at the congress proposed special worker relief measures.

British Auto Curtailment.

LONDON, Feb. 29 (AP)—The big Rootes automobile plant switched 10,000 men to a four-day week yesterday. Already 20,000 workers at the giant Austin plant are on short time. Overtime has been virtually wiped out in other plants.

ANTI-TRUST STUDY OF TV INDUSTRY

Justice Department Seeks to Determine If Monopolistic Practices Exist.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Assistant Attorney General Stanley Barnes said yesterday the Justice Department is studying the television industry to ascertain whether any monopolistic practices exist.

He outlined the aims of the inquiry before a Senate Commerce subcommittee, emphasizing that the study does not necessarily mean the government will take any legal action against the industry.

One thing the Government is looking into, Barnes said, is reports that TV network policies call for the use by advertisers of a network's own programs during some of the better evening viewing hours.

"Block Booking" of Films. He said a preliminary investigation is also being made of complaints that motion picture films are being licensed for telecasting under what may be a revival of the outlawed "block booking" system. This practice required purchasers of films to take other movies to get the ones they desired.

When the discussion turned to sports on television, Senator Magnuson (Dem., Wash.), subcommittee chairman, suggested that wrestling "probably should be thrown out of the window."

"Some of our investigation seems to indicate that maybe the criminal division of anti-trusts—should have a look at this wrestling rather than the anti-trust division," Barnes commented.

Plea For More Stations. Philip Merryman of Bridgeport, Conn., president of New England's "committee for home-town television," came before the subcommittee with a plea for prompt action to provide TV service to more communities throughout the nation.

Under the present allocation system, Merryman said, only 350 communities "can ever have television facilities of their own." He operates WICC-TV in Bridgeport.

Benjamin Adler, president of Adler Electronics, Inc., testified that a lower power television station has been developed with a radius of from five to 10 miles.

He said the station equipment would cost approximately $36,000 exclusive of land and buildings, and other miscellaneous costs.

This cost, Merryman told the committee, should make it possible for a community of as few as 2500 persons to support its own television station.

FIREMEN GET INSIDE DOPE ON MAN'S OUTSIDE JOB

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—In a survey of outside jobs held by New York firemen, the department came across one who listed his as a "liquor picker."

For half a day the department tried to find out from various trade sources what a liquor picker is. Finally, they traced the unsigned questionnaire to the engine house where it came from. The fireman in question was out but his captain knew all about it.

"Why, you see," the captain explained, "he works for a wholesale house. He picks bottles of booze out of bins in the basement and carries them upstairs."

"You mean something like a stock clerk?" he was asked. "That's it," replied the captain.

MENCKEN, DEAD,
REMAINS CAUSE FOR CONTROVERSY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 29 (AP)—The name of H. L. Mencken—one month after his death—still causes controversy. The latest flare-up was caused by a joint resolution "expressing the sorrow of the General Assembly of Maryland over the passing of Louis Henry Mencken," word expert, author and champion critic, when it came up for a vote in the Senate last night.

Such resolutions normally are passed without a dissenting vote. In the midst of last night's roll call Senator Frederick C. Malkus Jr., of Ditchester county on Maryland's eastern shore jumped up to insist he be recorded against it. Mencken once described residents of the eastern shore as "barbarians" and suggested those "remote and malarious counties" on the other side of the Chesapeake bay "be detached from the rest of the state and handed over to Delaware." Also voting "no" were four others, three of them from the shore.

Twenty-two Senators voted for the resolution, which now goes to the House of Delegates.

BOY KILLS SCHOOLMATE
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 29 (AP)—Police reported a 13-year-old boy who weighed less than 100 pounds picked up an iron pipe and beat a 190-pound schoolmate to death yesterday in a fight on the way home from school.

Police said Eugene Psota of suburban West Homestead tearfully admitted killing John W. linski, also 13. Young Psota was held on an open charge. Police said he claimed the Wlinski boy often had taken his homework and had bullied him.

Ship Sunk in Collision.
ANTWERP, Belgium, Feb. 29 (UP)—A 3903-ton Turkish freighter sank yesterday after colliding with a Dutch vessel at the mouth of the Scheldt river. Authorities reported that all crew members of the Turkish ship Sapanca were rescued.

Council Today.

A resolution setting March 28 for opening of bids and sale of $10,725,000 in St. Louis county bonds under the program approved by the Citizens Public Works Advisory (Watchdog) Committee will be introduced in the County Council today, Council Chairman Harold D. Carey announced.

Bond expenditure items were approved by the watchdog group's executive committee Feb. 16 but were subject to reconsideration on objection by 25 per cent or more of the 59 members of the full committee.

There were no objections so the program, originally drafted by Supervisors Luman F. Matthews, now is final.

Bond experts said about 60 days after opening of the bids would be required for printing of bonds and other details, but that the county meantime could advertise for bids on bond projects and take other preliminary steps short of actually entering contracts.

Included in the program are $5,000,000 for expressway right-of-way costs, $3,790,000 for 58 supplementary road projects, $675,000 for voting machines, $800,000 for health and hospital construction, $250,000 for preliminary work in connection with the Innerbelt Highway, $200,000 for park and playground acquisition, $100,000 for sanitary landfills, $100,000 for civil defense and $10,000 for a study of children's building needs.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DALTON FILES TO SEEK SECOND TERM

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 29 (AP)—Attorney General John M. Dalton of Kentucky today filed his formal declaration of candidacy for a second term.

Dalton, a Democrat, previously considered running for Governor, but announced at the Democrats' Jackson Day dinner at Springfield last month that he would seek re-election as Attorney General.

He is the only candidate of either party to file in this race so far. Former Congressman Clare Magee of Unionville was the first candidate to file for Democratic nomination for Attorney General, but he later withdrew on advice of his physician.

200 AIR OFFICERS REPORTED HELD IN BRAZIL REVOLT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 29 (AP)—About 200 Brazilian air force officers are under arrest as a result of Maj. Haroldo Veloso's pocket rebellion, a source close to the air force said today.

The officers, representing more than 13 per cent of the air force's 1500 commissioned men, were reported rounded up for refusing to fly against the rebels or for expressing sympathy for them in barracks talks. Veloso and his chief aides are air officers.

President Juscelino Kubitschek's Government, seeking to minimize rivalry among the armed forces, has made no formal announcement of the number of arrests.

Foot soldiers slogging through swamps south of the Amazon captured the villages of Pimentel and Pariquita today in their campaign to crush the uprising. Veloso is leading with a band estimated to number no more than 200 men.

SYMINGTON REBUKES MAKINS ON RED TRADE

Takes Issue With British Envoy's Denial That Shipments Continue.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Senator Stuart Symington (Dem., Missouri), took issue yesterday with British Ambassador Sir Roger Makins' denial that his country is shipping strategic materials to Soviet bloc nations in Europe.

Symington cited testimony received by the Senate investigations subcommittee in its inquiry into trade with Communist nations.

Symington told the Senate the subcommittee had received testimony that more than 250,000,000 pounds of copper products have been sent to the Soviet Union since copper was removed from the embargoed list in August 1954. He said more than 75,000,000 pounds went from the United Kingdom.

"It is my understanding that licenses have been received for the sale of many more millions of pounds of copper wire during 1956," the Senator added.

Perhaps Sir Roger Makins would inform us as to the amount of licenses that have been granted by the United Kingdom for the shipment of copper wire during this year," Symington repeated the British Ambassador as saying he did not know of any horizontal boring machine being sent to the Soviet bloc.

"I would like to inform him at this time that one and possibly two of these machines have been sent and that four are to be sent by a British manufacturer," Symington asserted.

SCHOENBECK URGED TO ENTER G.O.P. RACE

Wabash Attorney Asked to Seek Gubernatorial Nomination.

Albert E. Schoenbeck, general attorney for the Wabash Railroad, is being urged by members of the Republican City Committee and friends to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Schoenbeck's leading political backer is Ansel A. Skaggs, former chairman of the city committee and Republican committeeman of the Twenty-fourth Ward.

"I am hoping Schoenbeck decides to run because I believe he would give the Republicans an outstanding candidate for Governor," Skaggs said. "He is well known in St. Louis, and with his background of public service here, he would add strength to the state ticket."

Schoenbeck said he has been giving "serious consideration" to entering the gubernatorial race. He said he expects to reach a decision within a few weeks on whether to run.

He reported he was first approached on the subject at the annual Lincoln day meeting of Missouri Republicans here Feb. 11. Since then, he said a number of committee members and friends have talked to him about it.

Schoenbeck, 40 years old, was a member of the citizens committee which sponsored the merit system amendment to the city charter, adopted by St. Louis voters in 1940. He later served as a member of the City Civil Service Commission under appointment of former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann.

He is former president of the John Marshall Club, an organization of St. Louis Republican lawyers, and of the Missouri Association of Republicans, the group which sponsors the annual Lincoln Day meetings. He engages in a general law practice in addition to his work as general attorney for the Wabash.

The only candidate who has filed so far for the G.O.P. gubernatorial nomination is Joseph M. Whealen, 37-year-old division manager of Ralston Purina Co., and an outspoken critic of the state Republican leadership. Others being mentioned as possible candidates in this race are State Senator Leo J. Roizer of Perryville and Circuit Judge Randolph H. Weber of Poplar Bluff.

Former Governor Divorced.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 29 (AP)—Former Gov. Johnston Murray and his wife, Willie, ended their 23-year marriage in divorce yesterday. Mrs. Murray was granted the divorce on grounds of incompatibility. She was awarded $25,000 alimony.

ENGINEER IN FATAL

Rail Wreck in Which 13
Died Is Laid to 'Human Failure.'

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Feb. 29 (AP)—The Boston & Maine Railroad today blamed "human failure" for the collision of two commuter trains which killed 13 and injured 100 in a blinding snowstorm here yesterday.

The B. & M. said its preliminary investigation showed a train passed two warning signals and a flagman before ramming the rear of a halted passenger train about 12 miles north of Boston.

A statement by the railroad said the engineer of the second train Ernest Tourtelotte of Winchester, who was killed in the crash, violated operating rules. A less serious rear end collision of two Boston & Maine railroad trains occurred in Revere, about 10 miles away, an hour later and the railroad said that was caused by "similar circumstances."

Twenty persons were injured in the Revere accident. Some of those injured in Revere had escaped injury in the Swampscott wreck and had boarded the other train to continue to Boston.

In the Swampscott wreck, a four-car, self-propelled train headed from Danvers to Boston, hit a train bound from Portsmouth, N.H., to Boston, which had stopped because its engineer couldn't read a snow-plastered signal.

The two trains carried about 1000 passengers, most of them en route to work and school.

The Interstate Commerce Commission said it would hold a public hearing into the two wrecks, in conjunction with a Massachusetts department of public utilities inquiry, next Tuesday in Boston.

Wage Angle of Khrushchev Talk
Is Chief Concern of Russians

Possible Pay and Pension Increases Discussed in Public Places by Soviet Citizens.

MOSCOW, Feb. 29 (AP)—The average Soviet citizen is talking about Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev's recent speech to the party congress in terms of possible wage and pension increases.

Eavesdropping westerners are astonished at the freedom with which the Russians discuss the speech in public places.

"Darling," one elderly woman said to a Russian girl reporter, "they tell me Khrushchev said something about pensions. Do you know about it?"

"Here is the speech," the girl answered, handing over the 50,000-word text.

"Oh no," the woman answered. "I am not interested in all that. Just tell me what he said about pensions."

FOUR-DAY RADIO BLACKOUT ON ANTARCTIC SHIP ENDED
The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

ABOARD U.S.S. EASTWIND.
McMurdo Sound, Feb. 27 (Delayed)—A radio blackout that prevented the current United States expedition in the Antarctic from communicating with the outside world for almost four days came to an end this morning. The blackout was blamed on "ionospheric disturbances" which are not uncommon in the South Polar continent.

At 8:15 a.m. today this Coast Guard icebreaker, the only United States ship now operating in the Antarctic, was finally able to radio off its first message since Thursday at 3:30 p.m. Altogether 59 operational dispatches—12 for Little America, only 400 miles away, and 47 for the United States, 12,000 miles away—piled up during the blackout. Most of them originated with R. Adm. George J. Dufek, commander of Task Force 43 who is now aboard the Eastwind.

Actually, Khrushchev said plans call for increasing unduly low pensions and cutting some unjustifiably high ones, but he gave no figures.

A mother, her son and an old woman were talking on the subway. The son said, "I told you we should have bought that wardrobe when it was at our corner store. Now they don't have any wardrobes."

"What are you talking about?" the mother asked sarcastically. "Have you gotten a raise suddenly? Where are you getting the money for wardrobes?"

"Of course I haven't had a raise," the son replied, "but Khrushchev said we were going to be getting more money, so I want to buy a wardrobe."

He spoke at a House hearing on health problems.

HELL'S CANYON PROJECT WORRIES CONSERVATIONIST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UP)—The Citizens Committee on Natural Resources called yesterday for a "reappraisal" of the controversial Hell's Canyon project because of the indirect threat it poses to wildlife on Idaho's Clearwater river.

Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, chairman of the conservation organization, said the group is not concerned with "the battle between public versus private power interests."

"But it is apparent," he said, "that reduction in reservoir capacity at the Hell's Canyon site is forcing power and water interests to advocate high dams on Idaho's Clearwater river."

He said that these high dams would have a "disastrous effect on fish and wildlife resources of national importance."

The Administration has requested funds to build a huge dam at Bruce's eddy on the Clearwater river which joins the Snake river downstream from Hell's Canyon. Another Clearwater dam is planned at Penny Cliffs. There are plans for still another on the Salmon river, Gabrielson said.

VOROSHILOV SEES FORMER FRENCH PRESIDENT AURIOL

MOSCOW, Feb. 29 (AP)—Soviet President Klement Voroshilov today conferred with former French President Vincent Auriol as the Kremlin stepped up its campaign to establish united Socialist-Communist fronts throughout the world.

Auriol and his wife arrived in Moscow last night on a visit as Voroshilov's personal guests. The conversion of Auriol, a Socialist, to a belief in joint parliamentary action with the French Communists would be a triumph for the Soviets.

COALITION RULE ENDS IN AUSTRIA, 2 PARTIES SPLIT

Leaders Disagree Over Domestic Policies — Elections Called for May 13.

VIENNA, Feb. 29 (AP)—The two-party coalition government which won Austria its independence from four-power occupation collapsed yesterday. The leaders disagreed over domestic policies, chiefly nationalization of industries.

New parliamentary elections were called for May 13 in the hope that one of the parties—the Conservative People's party—the Socialists—would win at least a margin of public support which would guide another coalition government. Neither party is expected to win an outright majority.

The breakup of the 10-year-old coalition, one of Europe's longest governments, was caused mainly by disagreement over the future of the little country's rich oil fields and former German property in Austria. Control of both was turned over to the government by the Russians under last year's independence treaty. Since then the partners have failed to agree on what to do with the properties.

Chancellor Julius Raab's Conservatives want private capital to share in the oil fields. The Socialists want them wholly nationalized.

The big former German assets include many factories seized by the Russians after World War II. The Conservatives want some of them returned to private ownership, while the Socialists demand government control.

Differences on civil aviation control, taxation, pensions and milk prices further divide the parties.

As the breach widened, Raab and Socialist Vice Chancellor Adolf Schaerf tried to settle the dispute after yesterday's cabinet meeting. They failed and decided to hold elections. The Conservatives issued a communique accusing the Socialists of rejecting all compromise offers. Government officials said a formal announcement would be made tomorrow that the present Parliament was dissolved. The coalition government will hold office until after the elections.

In the present Parliament the Conservatives hold 74 seats, the Socialists 73, the rightwing League of Independents 14, and the Communists four.

NEW TAX RULING GIVES REFUNDS TO CLERGYMEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—A new ruling by the Internal Revenue Service makes tax refunds available to some clergymen back through 1932.

Since 1923, the service has held that allowances paid to clergymen to cover the cost of their parsonage were taxable.

However, in the light of a recent court ruling of the subject, the revenue service announced in its current bulletin that sums paid to a minister as part of his compensation "for house allowance" are exempt from federal income tax. Tax law allows refunds to be claimed for a period of three years after the filing date for any tax year.

The revision of the internal revenue code carried out in 1954 incorporated a specific exemption of cash allowances to ministers covering the cost of a home. Ministers who have not taken advantage of this change in the law on their 1954 or 1955 incomes may claim refunds.

TRANSIT COMMITTEE HEARS 3 FIRMS' SURVEY PROPOSALS

Proposals of three engineering firms for a survey of mass transportation problems of the St. Louis area were heard yesterday by the Citizens' Metropolitan Transit Committee.

Members of the committee will meet tomorrow to study the proposals and may decide at that time which firm will be recommended to conduct the survey. Mrs. Jerome Spector, secretary of the committee, said.

The committee also agreed to make a formal appeal by letter to the State Highway Department that the state share the cost of the survey with St. Louis and St. Louis county.

CHARGES AGAINST MOTORIST WHO HIT MAN NOLLE PROSSED

Charges of driving when intoxicated and careless driving against David Stack, whose automobile struck and killed a pedestrian Feb. 19, were nolle prossed yesterday by Provisional Police Judge John D. Flynn.

The action followed testimony by M. Ralph Walsh, an assistant city counselor, who said an intoximeter test taken by Stack indicated he was not drunk.

Stack, 19 years old, of the 7700 block of Paddington drive, Normandy, was driving in Union boulevard at Lillian avenue when his car struck Frank Hanlon, 5000 Union, who was crossing Union.

JUSTICE DOUGLAS SETTLES LIBEL SUIT BY APOLOGIZING

LONDON, Feb. 29 (AP)—An apology by United States Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas brought settlement here of a libel action growing out of a reference to a former British colonial official in Douglas's book "North From Malaya." The publisher, Victor Gollancz, Ltd., agreed to delay issuing the book until the text was amended.

Douglas wrote that Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith, governor of Burma from May 3, 1941, to Aug. 5, 1946, followed an imperialistic policy which "produced mostly disorders, political disaffection and defiance of authority."

Dorman-Smith's counsel brought out in court that he did not seek to block self-government and had urged a more liberal policy. Since Dorman-Smith was under the authority of Parliament he could not impose a policy of his own. The defendants agreed to pay costs in the action.

RULING ON KAISER MOTORS, PERON CONTRACT EXPLAINED

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 29.—Adm. Leonard McLean, president of the National Investigating Commission, said yesterday he was handed down a judgment against former President Juan D. Peron's $25,000,000 contract with Kaiser motors for the production of automobiles in Argentina.

Adm. McLean said he found that Peron and his ministers were guilty of criminal negligence or of betraying the public trust by concluding a contract with Kaiser "which was against the interests of this country."

Since the contract was legally in order, Adm. McLean said he turned the case over to President Pedro E. Aramburu for executive action, rather than to the courts for criminal prosecution. He recommended that the Argentine government reopen and renegotiate the Kaiser contract.

Britain to Ask Manila Pact Countries to Shift Emphasis From Military to Economic Aid

Switch Regarded as West's Answer to Soviet Union's New Tactics — Lloyd Leaves on Important Mission—To Visit Nehru, Nasser and Ben-Gurion.

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, Feb. 29.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT has decided to ask the United States and other allies to switch the emphasis from military to economic assistance in the Southeast Asia collective defense treaty alliance.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd will suggest this shift at a meeting of the treaty council in Karachi, Pakistan, next week. The change is regarded here as an essential part of the West's answer to the Soviet Union's economic challenge in Asia, authoritative sources said.

Lloyd left London today on what was generally considered one of the most important missions ever undertaken by a British Foreign Minister. The government viewpoint is that the Western position in the Middle East and Asia has deteriorated sharply in some countries, notably India, and needs reinforcement in others such as Egypt.

Official insistence on this point of view can be considered a commentary on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles's statements on the weakness and failure of Russian policies. These statements were received originally with disbelief and now with bewilderment. They contrast sharply, it is said, with what Dulles told Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Lloyd four weeks ago in Washington.

Political Year. The politicians who draft British foreign policy, with the assistance of foreign office officials, understand the exigencies of domestic politics in the United States in an election year. But they cannot believe that the Administration's situation is serious enough to warrant the Secretary of State's "wildly optimistic" observations before a Senate committee.

Eden's highly critical comments in the House of Commons on the recent developments in Russia and his refusal "to gloss over the attitude which the twentieth century Communist party congress revealed" can be regarded, it is understood, as the government's view of events which moved the Secretary of State to discern the failure of Soviet foreign policy.

The present situation in the Middle East and Asia calls for greater stress on the economic aspects of all treaty groupings of which the United Kingdom is a member. This has already been done in the case of the Baghdad pact, of which Britain, Pakistan, Iran, Iraq and Turkey are members. Now, it is said, it must be done for the Southeast Asia treaty.

The Foreign Office announced last night that Sir Walter Monckton, Minister of Defense, would lead the British delegation to the Baghdad pact council meeting, opening in Tehran on April 16. This will be the second meeting of the council. The inaugural meeting was held in Baghdad last summer, when Britain was represented by Harold Macmillan, then Foreign Secretary.

In the military and economic committees that have been set up and will report at the Tehran meeting, the United States, it is expected, will be represented by observers.

Unfavorable Reaction. The Asian reaction to the recent war games held by some of the Southeast Asia treaty nations in Thailand has not been favorable, according to officials here.

No responsible official wants to end or slow down the steady build-up of military forces in the area. One senior official pointed out that economic improvement would be possible only behind a military shield. But the signatory powers must realize, it is said, that emphasis on the military side of the President's Decision to Run for Second Term Ends Five Months of Uncertainty and Speculation

His Comment on Health Most Optimistic Since Illness Began.

By JAMES DEAKIN

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S announcement that he will be available for renomination brings to an end five months of uncertainty and speculation which began almost at the moment he suffered a heart attack.

The coronary thrombosis which struck Mr. Eisenhower last Sept. 24 made it seem possible for a time that he might not finish out his present term. It cast even more doubt on his ability to run again.

His steady recovery and the optimistic reports of his doctors pretty well allayed the first fear, and Mr. Eisenhower commented directly on the future at his press conference today. Referring to a second term, he said his answer would not be affirmative if he did not think he could serve another five years.

The comment was the most optimistic he had made on his health since his illness. His previous statements had been generally optimistic, but always with the reservation that the heart attack was very much on his mind.

The events which led up to the heart attack began in an spectacular fashion last August.

Denver Vacation. With two years and eight months in the presidency behind him, Mr. Eisenhower flew to Denver, Colo., on Aug. 14 to begin what was planned as an extended "work and play" vacation.

He stayed at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud, and set up a temporary office in the administration building, known as the "White House."

Then, looking hale and hearty, the President relaxed in a familiar vacation routine. He was out on the golf course frequently, and he made two trips to Fraser, Colo., high in the Rocky Mountains, where he fished for trout in the icy waters of St. Louis creek.

He took time out to transact some official business, mostly in the mornings, and to address a breakfast meeting of Republican chairmen of the 48 state party organizations.

The Chief Executive, then 64 years old, told the G.O.P. leaders they should rid themselves of the idea of an indispensable man. Do not "pin your flag ... tightly to one mast," he warned them.

He had spoken publicly of the fact that if he were elected to a second term, he would be 70 years old when he completed it. No President of the United States had ever reached 70 in the White House.

More Young People.

Urging the state chairman to bring more young people into the Republican party, Mr. Eisenhower declared: "Humans are frail, and they are mortal." His words proved prophetic.

On Sept. 23, a Friday, he returned from his second trip to the isolated mountain camp of his friend, Aksel Nielsen, a Denver banker. That afternoon, Mr. Eisenhower played 27 holes of golf and ate two big hamburgers, with extra slices of onion.

He went to bed early Friday night at the Doud home. About 2 a.m., he awoke with a severe pain in his chest. Mrs. Eisenhower summoned his personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, who administered morphine and made a tentative diagnosis of coronary thrombosis, a form of heart attack, but with the reservation that it might be a "digestive upset."

When Mr. Eisenhower woke in the morning, Snyder called for a portable electrocardiogram machine and confirmed the diagnosis. The President was develops in the arteries, reducing their size.

However, Dr. Watts told reporters there was "no reason" why Mr. Eisenhower could not overcome his illness and "live a long life."

Recovery Prospects. A somewhat similar view was expressed by Dr. White at his first press conference two days after the heart attack. He said the President's prospects for recovery were "reasonably good," although he did not minimize the dangers that lay ahead.

If Mr. Eisenhower progressed satisfactorily, would he be "physically able" to serve a second term, the physician was asked. "Oh yes, it's up to him," Dr. White replied.

For the first two weeks, he said, the President would be kept almost completely quiet and watched closely. He would be confined to bed throughout this two-week "danger period," and his governmental activities would be rigidly controlled to prevent excitement or strain.

With this schedule outlined, a long period of recovery and convalescence began for Mr. Eisenhower. Following are the highlights of his recuperation over the last five months.

First month: Sept. 24-Oct. 24. The heart attack, first described as a "digestive upset," then as a "mild" coronary thrombosis, was finally characterized by Dr. White as a "moderate" attack, somewhere between "mild" and "severe."

He reported that the President had "withstood the attack well" and was "resting comfortably" with no complications. Mr. Eisenhower stayed in the oxygen tent for six days, although toward the end of that time he was using it only at night.

Wife in Room Nearby.

His wife moved into a room near his own on the eighth floor of the hospital. Mr. Eisenhower was being given mild sedatives and anti-coagulant medicines to slow down blood clotting, but the main element in his treatment was rest. His diet was held at 1600 calories a day to prevent a gain in weight.

At one point in the second week, the doctors reported that his patient was "a little tired" and did not feel as well as usual, but he bounced back quickly. This was the only instance in which fatty tissue

Chile's Campaign on Communism Is Part of Bid for U.S. Help

President Hopes International Monetary Fund Soon Will Make $75,000,000 Available to Stabilize Currency.

By DONALD GRANT

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SANTIAGO, Feb. 29.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT by the government of Chile yesterday that a new campaign was being launched against Communism has an interesting background. It is a part of a larger campaign by President Gen. Carlos Ibanez del Campo to prove to the United States that he deserves every possible support. It also is one item in a sequence of events in Chile that are moving swiftly toward a climax.

In the face of raging inflation Ibanez has moved along the political scale to the right, losing support from the left, but gaining support from the Chilean big business community. He is making every effort to help support with direct United States financial help.

Getting United States support in Latin America has come to be associated with hiring the United States firm of management consultants, Klein & Saks, and following its recommendations. Klein & Saks has recommended fiscal measures for Brazil and Peru in the past and now has a mission in Guatemala as well as the mission in Chile.

Ibanez has endorsed most of the Klein & Saks recommendations. Now he is offering a further demonstration by his anti-Communist campaign.

Ibanez is playing against time, for the Chilean Parliament resumes sessions Monday. Among the first items before the Parliament will be the implementation of the Klein & Saks recommendations.

Expectation of Aid.

It will be a keen disappointment to Ibanez if before Monday the International Monetary Fund does not support the Klein & Saks recommendations for Chile by making an announcement that some $75,000,000 or so will be earmarked for promoting stability of Chile's currency as Chile attempts to free itself from artificial currency convertibility regulations. This is a technical point, but to the man in the street in Santiago it means that prices will go even higher without such support, as they may anyway.

Ibanez also expects that the World Bank loan for some $186,000,000 for the development of Chile's agricultural resources which has been under discussion for some eight years will at last come through in the not too distant future. Further expectation of help from the United States Export-Import Bank are less definite but no less real.

This is a lot of money and most of it will come from the United States if anywhere, for the United States generates most of the world's new capital and furnishes most of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund capital in particular. Is there any reason why the United States should furnish hard cash to support Ibanez in Chile?

A few homely facts must be considered in any attempt to find an intelligent answer.

6,000,000 Population. The first fact of Chile is its people. There are only about 6,000,000 Chileans. A high proportion of them are concentrated in the three largest cities—Santiago, Valparaiso and Concepcion. The rest live in small towns or on farms.

In recent years, many have moved off the farms to the cities looking for a higher standard of living. As the farm workers moved to the cities and as Chile became semi-industrialized, the old feudal pattern inherited from Spanish colonial times was broken though remnants still remain.

Another effect of the population shift was to cut food production. Chile must now import a part of its food.

Racially, Chileans present a fairly homogeneous appearance—basically Spanish and European with some admixture of Indian. There are no sharp race lines.

In the census statistics it would appear that there are more manual workers than white collar workers or business men. The average man in Chile is called a "roto" which means "ragged."

Chile is poor certainly by United States standards. In its present stage of economic development it stands perhaps a little higher than Brazil, but considerably lower than Argentina.

The Chilean "roto" has traditional characteristics. He is good humored, unshaven, clever in a sly way, but he drinks too much good Chilean wine. To these traditional characteristics

Big Labor Leaders Frightened By Inquiry Into Political Gifts

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

THE senatorial investigation of political contributions by big business looks very much like turning into an investigation of political contributions by big labor. Not to put too fine a point on it, the grandees of the AFL-CIO are scared pink.

What scares them is the composition of the select committee that the Senate has named to look into the whole problem of campaign financing. Sticking out like a sore thumb among the four Republican committee members is Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who has been raising the roof about the political activities of labor organizations for some time.

The committee chairmanship will be allotted, in defiance of the seniority rules, to the young, evangelical Democrat, Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee. If Gore wants to let the chips fall where they may, it is unlikely that there is deep fear in the Senate of any suspicion of a cover-up.

Labor Chips. But Gore is clearly going to be made to understand that the chips will be large indeed and that some of them will fall on members of his own faction of the Democratic party.

Besides Goldwater, the other three Republicans on the committee, Bridges of New Hampshire, Thye of Minnesota and Purtell of Connecticut, will certainly go along with a move to look into the political money that comes from big labor as well as the money that comes from big business. Equally certain, at least one of the Democratic committee members, Senator John McClellan of Arkansas, will favor such a move.

Some labor leaders have already warned the Senate Democratic leadership of danger ahead, and well they might. Labor contributions take the form of under-the-table money almost as often as business contributions. And it is a reasonable bet that almost every Democratic Senator who is even moderately pro-labor has received some campaign help of this kind.

Every practical politician knows, of course, that there is no truth whatever in the extreme rightwing view that labor money in politics equals or exceeds business money. The total political outlays of the labor organizations certainly do not amount to one-fifth, and probably not to one-tenth, of the political outlays of big business. Furthermore, except

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"Tradition of Conscience"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Refreshing, stimulating and reassuring—that's how I found "A Tradition of Conscience," delivered by Joseph Pulitzer Jr. in memory of his father, to start the Joseph Pulitzer lectures at the Graduate School of Journalism, Columbia University.

No one who reads it can fail to be inspired with faith in the stewardship of journalism and moved to give thanks for the American institution known as the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

We are so steeped in production efficiency and the enjoyment of material benefits that we forget philosophic principles. We need their expression.

ALFRED LIEF.

New York.

I have just finished reading the address at Columbia University. As an old New York World staff man, 1925-28, I would like to say how refreshing it was—as so aptly keynoted, "A Tradition of Conscience."

May the Post-Dispatch continue the ideals of its founder.
Thanks for bucking my hopes!
S. J. FITZGERALD,
Democrat and Chronicle,
Rochester, N.Y.

At a conference of the faculty of the Graduate School of Journalism we have decided to use "A Tradition of Conscience" as the subject for the bulletin of the school next year.
CARL W. ACKERMAN, Dean,
Graduate School of Journalism,
Columbia University,
New York.

I have read with deepest interest the address of Joseph Pulitzer Jr. at Columbia University. I found the presentation fascinating and want to applaud the "tradition of conscience approach." It is one of our newspaper's needs.

NORMAN E. ISAACS, Managing Editor,
The Louisville Times,
Louisville, Ky.

The address was based upon some of the deepest newspaper thinking I have heard in years. The documentation was most expert.

Through a Child's Eyes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Your editorial of Feb. 26, "What Outsiders?" sure is a masterpiece. I am a girl 13 years old, but I like to read. I asked my daddy if he was going to stop work March 28 for one hour.

He said he does not intend to stop work one minute because he said it positively would not help our people in Montgomery and he does not want me to remain out of school. I, too, can't see that it would help. My daddy was born in Alabama and I am sure if he thought it would help he would be glad to stop work one hour. I don't believe very many of our people will go along with Representative Powell of New York. It just doesn't make sense.

BRENDA L. DENSON.

Cause and Effect

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
There is a very simple way of eliminating professionalism in "amateur" college sports. That is to cut out the gate receipts which are augmented in a vicious spiral by the need for "star attractions." Add a few dollars to student tuition fees to carry legitimate expenses of athletic teams thereby returning the games to the undergraduates—where they belong. S. R. McCULLOCH.

Crestwood Going to Dogs

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
You read so many fine things these days about the little community of Crestwood in southern St. Louis county: the new fire department, good government, low taxes, the city of trees and shrubs.

I am a resident of Crestwood and for the past two years I have spent approximately $65 to beautify the surrounding area of my home. As of today my shrubs are worth about 30 cents. Why do the city fathers permit packs of dogs to roam the streets endangering our children and killing our shrubs?

I am a dog lover. This past Sunday, I counted a total of 12 dogs roaming in a pack through the streets of Crestwood. The police come and give you the story you have to sign a complaint. Now tell me, how can a person go into a pack of dogs, single one out and say to one, I am going to sign a complaint against you?

A CRESTWOODIAN.

As a P.T.A. Sees It

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
When I read how Mayor Tucker had vetoed a bill to close Moffitt avenue from the west side of Clara avenue to the west boundary of St. Edward's School daily between 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., and noon to 1:30 p.m., I was indeed shocked!

Cheers for Alderman Alfred I. Harris for his heroic effort in introducing and fighting for a bill designed to uphold an object that I, and women before me, for years have pledged themselves: "To secure adequate laws for the care and protection of children."

MRS. ANN M. RIVOLTA,
President, Laclede School Parent Teacher Association.

Not the Place for Eastland

The prospect of Senator James O. Eastland of Mississippi presiding as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee is inappropriate in the extreme. A Senator who is in open defiance of the Supreme Court's decision against segregation in public schools would be the ranking officer of the legislative branch in matters pertaining to the very law he flouts.

This is the same James Eastland who only a few nights ago egged on a mass meeting of the White Citizens' Council—the new Ku Klux Klan—in Montgomery, Ala., by calling for "grass roots" entrenchment against the Supreme Court ruling.

"You are the hard inflexible core of resistance in Alabama," he declared. "We must organize every county, every city and every community into a grass roots organization such as you represent. We must be militant."

These words are shameful and shocking enough coming from a United States Senator. How would they sound coming from the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee? Yet that is the post to which, by virtue of the dubious seniority rule, Mr. Eastland has become eligible because of the death of Senator Harley Kilgore of West Vir.

The senior rule is deeply entrenched in Congress. It is prevailed for more than a century in the Senate and for nearly half that time in the House. The framers of the most recent reform of Congress, the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, avoided it like the political plague. We do not underestimate the difficulty of existing it either in the particular or in the general.

But if there has been a time in recent years when Senators should be inspired to stand up and fight for the dignity of the Senate and the good of the country, that occasion is the impending elevation of Eastland to the Judiciary chairmanship. This is the imitation McCarthy who recently abused the authority of his chairmanship of the internal security subcommittee to pillory The New York Times.

What do other members of the Senate Judiciary Committee like Hennings of Missouri, Kefauver of Tennessee and O'Mahoney of Wyoming—like Wiley of Wisconsin and Dirksen of Illinois—think about it? What do they propose to do about it? A determined fight on their part to block Eastland for chairman conceivably could succeed and even its failure would be a gain if it focused national attention on the evils of the seniority system.

"Any member who tried to buck the system would be howled down as an upstart or maverick and probably subjected to such political punishment as denial of patronage," Mr. Kefauver wrote in his book, "A 20th Century Congress." And he added: "It has happened."

Indeed it has happened. But it will continue to happen, and worse along with it, until there are enough Senators willing to take the risk who insist upon a method of selection more rational and more soundly based on merit. If the Eastland case does not offend enough Senators into sufficient action, what, it might be asked, may be expected to?

A Mayoral Disappointment

One thing a man has to be prepared for is disappointment—and where it hurts most. Here we were quietly reflecting that Ray Tucker was making a mighty fine mayor—getting the plazas put together, persuading the Aldermen to call for an election of charter freeholders and all that. Then he refused to issue a proclamation calling on all good and loyal citizens to observe National Laugh Week.

It is true that we counted 143 weeks last year, and probably missed a few. So it may be that the Mayor was motivated by compassion for the calendar people who have space for only 52. And that would be nice of him. But could he not have honored this request and turned down a lot of others? After all, it is a laugh!

Of course, a Mayor must be just a little cautious or he will end up like Mayor Morgan of Birmingham, Ala., who proclaimed Nothing Week and was taken up by the members of his office staff who decided that all week they would do exactly nothing.

Interest Funds for Schools

A resolution calling for a constitutional amendment which would permit Missouri to collect interest on bank deposits has been introduced in the special session of the Legislature. Offered by Democratic Representative Warren E. Hearnes of East Prairie and Republican Representative A. Clifford Jones of Clayton, it faces a challenge on the ground that the subject was not mentioned by Gov. Donnelly in his call for the special session.

Its sponsors contend, however, that it does not come under the rule forbidding legislation not called for by the Governor. It is not legislation at all, they say, but only a move to permit the voters to accept or reject the proposed amendment at next November's election. There is logic in this argument and we trust it will be accepted by the legislators—and by the courts, if the issue is carried to them. The Legislature cannot settle the interest question. Only the people can do that. And they should have the earliest possible opportunity to do so.

However explained, it is worse than illogical that banks should be able to earn profits on state deposits while the state itself may not do so. This situation "forces" the State Administration to give favored banks quite nice windfalls. Missouri can use the 2 per cent or so which it should be collecting on these millions of dollars. And it is gratifying that the proposed amendment would earmark such earnings for the state's schools.

This would provide at least some of the money needed for public education, money which the men in Jefferson City find it so difficult to raise. Surely this issue will not be sidetracked for a doubtful technicality.

Wise Second Thoughts

Some Negro leaders are beginning to take a second look at Congressman Adam Powell's proposal for a nationwide one-hour strike in sympathy with the indicted bus boycott leaders of Montgomery, Ala. They are wise. A national work stoppage would complicate the issues, bring out irrelevant and unnecessary opposition, and dilute the attention which ought to be fixed exclusively upon events in Montgomery.

As things now stand, without "outside interference" and with the area of controversy narrowed to the single, comprehensible issue of a seat on the bus, the Negroes of Montgomery have a splendid chance of winning a notable victory for their cause.

To bring down the penalties of the law against peaceful people whose only crime is to stop riding busses until they get an equal chance at the seats on busses—this is so raw, so inherently unjust, that it must be doubted whether even the local courts acting in the framework of an inflated public opinion can sustain it. At any rate the injustice cannot be sustained indefinitely, provided the fight against it is temperate, restrained and sharply focused. To convert that fight into a vague national "demonstration" would prove nothing except that a good cause can be lost by being exploited for other ends.

Hey, Joe!

The people of Nebraska must find the current testimony before the George committee a gripping experience. Until the tale of Oil Lobbyist John M. Neff and his $2500 bundles began to unfold, few Nebraskans could have known how the solid Republican politics of their solid Republican state worked. Now they know.

As to how the Nebraska G.O.P. finances its smashingly successful campaigns, Joseph Wishart, state finance chairman, gave an illuminating insight:

Wishart walks across a Washington lobby. Stranger calls out "Hey, Joe!" Stranger accompanies Joe to room. Stranger wants to contribute to the Nebraska G.O.P. because its two Senators have been fair to the oil industry and its people are not unfriendly to oil. (Refrain, softly off-stage: Oh, there is no place like Nebraska...) Stranger pulls out envelope stuffed with $100 bills, counts out 25 for Joe, one for himself. Joe mumbles that he ought to know the names of contributors, but Stranger says maybe the contributors don't want their names known. Wishart forgets all about names and takes the money back to Nebraska (... where the girls are the fairest, the boys are the squarest...) with the brilliant observation that a number of people in Washington seemed to be interested in oil.

And that, judging by Finance Chairman Wishart's testimony before the George committee, is how the G.O.P. wheels go around in Nebraska. They go around according to a time-honored principle—cash, no checks. As we say, it must make fascinating reading along the Loup and the Platte and the Weeping Water, where George W. Norris used to play the vested interests and William Jennings Bryan once rallied the hosts of common man against Gold.

All Kinds of Bookmarkers

It's a caution, the objects people use for bookmarkers. The Harrisburg, Pa., Public Library thinks so, at any rate. Among the items it has fished out of books in its time are a kodak picture, pads of paper, a social security card, a 100-year-old marriage license, and an unopened letter.

Goodness us, Harrisburg Public Library, that's only a starter. Bobby pins, nail files, a turned-down corner of the page, a flower petal, a flap of the dust-jacket and paper clips are a bare continuation of the list. The items are legion. And since all sorts of people are required to make a world, there are even some who use bookmarkers.

Strengthening Lambert's Case

Records of the Civil Aeronautics Administration reveal that Lambert-St. Louis Field is the most congested civil airport in the United States with combat-type military jets based on it.

The argument that a separate all-military field should be built in the St. Louis area, as a means for relieving the congestion and some of the hazard at Lambert, is furthered by the Air Force decision in regard to O'Hare field in Chicago. The Air Force has dropped its plans for maintaining a base at the new O'Hare airport and decided to build a substantial distance away.

This decision, according to David R. Wallin, our staff correspondent who has been writing a series on the Lambert Field situation, is based on long-range estimates of the traffic load O'Hare eventually will carry.

Since O'Hare is operating far below capacity while Lambert is at the congestion point, this strengthens the case for removing military aviation from Lambert to a suitable field for Air Force, naval and related flying.

Some Private Car

In a world where billions have become commonplace, the private railroad car and the private yacht are among the few symbols of luxury that have really stood up in the popular dream. The fabulousness of the private railroad car is even being improved upon, it is pleasant to report. No less a personage than Lucius Beebe, former New York gossip columnist and elegant, lately editor of the Virginia City (Nev.) Territorial Enterprise, and author of books on railroads and the West, has done it.

Mr. Beebe and his publisher, Charles Clegg, have fixed themselves up a private car beside which most other private cars must look like day coaches indeed. The crystal chandeliers in the drawing room and the gold cherub mirror over the Venetian marble fireplace came from Venice. The decor is Venetian Renaissance, which does not, however, preclude air-conditioning, three telephones, a radio-telephone with world-wide connections, piped-in music in every room and a Turkish bath. There are three master bedrooms and a dining room seating eight, and a 50-count 'em—50-bottle wine cabinet.

The Messrs. Beebe and Clegg are among a scant handful of owners of private railroad cars, others of whom include the Big Top's John Ringling North and St. Louis's August A. Busch, Jr. It's a hard, fast pace they have set, and private-car-owning may even be in for its own American Renaissance.

What the Penologists Urged

The Missouri Legislature has given top priority to the task of rehabilitating the state's penal system, and it is about time. For far too many years the state's prison population has suffered from legislative neglect.

But before the Legislators make any final commitments they surely ought to read the report of Gov. Donnelly's special committee, especially that portion dealing with "Grounds and Plant." It begins on Page 68 and recommends:

1. The penitentiary should not be enlarged on its present site.
2. Construction of a medium security institution should have priority.
3. A separate unit for housing mental defectives and psychopathic inmates ought to be considered.
4. A small maximum security unit to house 25 or 30 inmates should be provided.

—This section of the report also deals with the need for equipment at the main penitentiary to prevent disaster by fire, the need for modern locking devices, and so on. The point is, before the Legislators vote money for prison rehabilitation they ought to understand what the Governor's committee of experts said was necessary.

WRONG WAY TO GET A JUDICIARY COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

Racket in the Juke Box

The Mirror
Public Opinion

The music that goes 'round-and-round for your nickel is in many cities a preserve of the underworld, writer says; hoodlums run 'trade associations,' use unions to monopolize juke-boxes; even promote artists; juke bigwigs read like 'Who's Who in Crime.'

Lester Velie in Reader's Digest

The music you heard when you last slipped a coin into a juke box may have been sweet and sentimental, but the sound you did not hear was a racket that reverberates through much of our country. Some half million juke boxes now tinkle out almost a billion dollars' worth of tunes yearly. In many cities these boxes are largely the preserve of the underworld.

A few months ago the Chicago Crime Commission prepared a secret report on coin-vending machines for the U.S. Department of Justice. The juke bigwigs named in it read like a "Who's Who in Crime." In New York and New Jersey it's Abner (Longy) Zwillman and his partner, Joe "Doc" Slachar. In Chicago it's the Capone mob.

True, there are many reputable business men who manufacture or distribute juke boxes, or operate juke-box routes. But the Chicago Crime Commission director, Virgil Peterson, told me: "The influence of hoodlums or those on the fringe of crime is very great."

Creation of a Racket

Controlling the jukeboxes may mean controlling the artists who make the records—and even the record companies. Squealing teen-agers don't have as much power to make or break their pet crooners as they think they do. In Chicago, Capone gangsters boast that they have pushed 400,000 records for one protégé. In the juke-box business the manufacturer (there are only four) produces the coin photograph and sells it to a distributor. The distributor sells the box to a local operator—an individual or company that owns 5 to 1200 phonographs and installs them in "locations" or "spots," such as taverns and restaurants, on a commission basis. A union mechanic or electrician services the machines.

Here is how the racket is created: Operators form a trade association which is actually a monopoly that apportions the juke-box routes among the insiders. Distributors help the racket along by selling only to association operators. And—here's the weirdest note—maintaining their racket, operators don't have to rely solely on muscle. As testified before congressional committees, they use labor unions, usually locals of one of the biggest unions in America: the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL).

An affidavit filed with the Kefauver Committee showed that a Detroit bar owner switched juke-box operators in order to get a new machine. The boss of the town's juke-box union, a Teamsters' local, called on him. With him was a picket. "This spot belongs to Operator M—," the bar owner was told. "Disconnect your box."

'The Czar of the Jukes'

One Cleveland tavernkeeper testified that he wanted a juke box from a distributor by representing himself as an out-of-town buyer. Soon after, the distributor who sold him the box was stench-bombed.

Last year at Cleveland a congressional committee spelled out how the racket works. The czar of the jukes turned out to be William Presser, head of all the Teamsters in Ohio, president of Teamsters Local 410 (the juke-box union), president of the Cleveland Teamsters Joint Council, which bosses 28 drivers' unions, and president of the Ohio Conference of Teamsters.

When he tried to harness a union to a trade association in Cleveland to make a monopoly racket out of the candy and tobacco jobbing business a federal grand jury tripped him up. Presser paid a $1500 fine. Undaunted, he picked up a Teamsters' charter for a juke local, teamed it to an operators' association he had masterminded some years back, and hit the jackpot.

Congressional investigators rubbed their eyes at Presser's combine. A trade association speaks for employers, a union speaks for workers. They should bargain at arm's length. But in Presser's outfit you couldn't tell where the union began or where the association ended.

The Teamsters' president, Dave Beck, takes Presser at his own word. So does Presser's superior, James Hoffa, a Teamster vice president and business man of many interests. Beck and Hoffa sanctioned Presser's swift rise from an obscure juke-box local to the leadership of all of Ohio's Teamsters.

A Question for Dave Beck

The juke union is so important to Capone gangsters in Chicago that they have assigned to it the man who speaks for the mob in labor matters. Joes (Glimco), arrested 22 times, once for murder (acquitted). Glimco is an official in one Teamster union, dominates a dozen others, and is a power in the Chicago Teamsters Joint Council.

How can racketeers be cleaned out of this two-billion-dollar vending-machine industry?

The industry can't do it. While many distributors and operators are reputable business men, the combination of hoodlum infiltration and union enforcement is tough to beat. Federal anti-trust laws might take years to work in times which are only peanuts to the racketeers.

Yet there is a solution. A congressional subcommittee reported that in Detroit the Teamsters union, through its president, William Buffalino, "is the principal offender and perpetrator of the racketeering, extortion and gangsterism" revealed in its hearings.

In St. Louis hoodlums own important juke-box companies but competition continues. There is no union enforcer there. When Buffalino came down from Detroit to organize one he was put through such a grilling from police that he promptly left.

Good union men who helped me gather the material for this article are horrified at the cynical misuse of union power. Why doesn't Dave Beck, president of the Teamsters, fire those juke-box bosses who misuse their power?

Some 1,400,000 honest, dues-paying Teamster union members have a right to the answer of that question.

ALARMING ASSURANCES

From the Sacramento Bee.

With the shocking assertion that President Dwight D. Eisenhower has not been truly in command of the United States Government since last August, the eminent columnist, Walter Lippmann, states:

"In these past six months we have suffered the biggest and most serious setbacks since the Communist victory in China."

Mr. Lippmann further attributes the absurd backing and filling of the Government in the matter of tank shipment to Saudi Arabia to the central fact that the President simply has not been able to fulfill his role as co-ordinator of the various Government departments.

It will be remembered that in the big medical kazoo when the doctors testified on Ike's health, the assurance was given that he probably could continue for five or 10 years doing his job as well as he has been doing it "recently."

Mr. Lippmann raises the commanding question of whether the nation can survive if it has many more years of this kind of presidential operation. The assurance of the doctors thus turns out to be no assurance, at least for those concerned with the welfare of the country.

Layman's Guide to Rocket Age

MEN, ROCKETS, AND SPACE RATS, by Lloyd Mallan. (Julian Messner, 235 pp., $5.95.)

Since October 14, 1947, when Capt. Charles E. Yeager of the U.S. Air Force became the first man to fly faster than the speed of sound, advancements in aerodynamic technology have been more rapid and far-reaching than the public has generally realized. Unfortunately, most of the spectacular achievements have either been screened by military security or passed with little notice in the press. Now the problems of hypersonic flight (defined as a speed at least five times that of sound) and the thermal barrier where atmospheric friction causes the aircraft metal to heat up and soften, are being solved successfully by the Air Research and Development Command of the Air Force.

Some idea of the progress made can be grasped from the fact that the rocket engine which propelled Chuck Yeager through the air at one-and-one-half times the speed of sound in 1947, developed 30,000 horsepower with 6000 pounds of thrust. In comparison, the latest Curtis Wright rocket engine for manned aircraft develops 120,000 horsepower at a speed of Mach 4 with 15,000 pounds of thrust. Jet power, never before revealed by the Air Force, but flights above 65,000 feet—where human blood boils if the body is not pressurized sufficiently—were commonplace even before Maj. Arthur Murray flew to a record altitude above 80,000 feet in 1953.

This fascinating reader that at last brings the rocket age to the layman, engineers, the aeromedical and space biology scientists, the specialized astronomers, and the research test pilots, whose daily work is closely connected with the problems of space flight, will convey the most skeptical reader that at last man is truly on the threshold of travel into the unknown vastness of outer space. It is written in popular, narrative style, and crammed with factual data as to just what progress has taken place along with a glossary to explain the new language of the rocket age. The book is as exciting as science fiction, it isn't fiction, and in his foreword, Lt. Gen. T. S. Power, commander of ARDC, points out that there has been "a long-felt need" for a book of this kind written to interest the layman.

While he was putting his material together, the author interviewed, among many others, Lt. Col. John Stapp, the intrepid Air Force doctor who has withstood forces equal to more than 46 times the pull of gravity while acting as his own guinea pig in deceleration rocketed experiments; Dr. James P. Henry, who punished himself in the cause of knowledge by riding a centrifuge until his eyes hemorrhaged; Prof. Clyde W. Tombaugh, discoverer of the planet Pluto who is now engaged in secret research to chart the regions between the earth and the moon.

All of the experts interviewed were unanimously confident that space travel is bound to come, though they were less unanimous about the technical means, and in sharp disagreement about the cost. If the majority of these Lloyd Mallan talked with are correct in their views, the first manned rocket will blast off the earth's crust, probably at ARDC's Edwards Air Force Base in California, and point its nose towards outer space sometime in the next 10 to 20 years.

No Hope in Dumping Farm Surpluses

WASHINGTON. SECRETARY BENSON'S statisticians have made a calculation that but for the accumulated "farm surpluses"—now reported to be worth nearly eight billion dollars—farm prices might be 10 per cent higher and the income of farmers some 20 per cent higher.

As these surpluses cannot be sold here at home without wrecking the market, the temptation to get rid of them abroad is naturally very strong. Secretary Benson has let it be known that the Senate Republican Policy Committee is disturbed over reports of "resistance" by the State Department and the Defense Department.

Benson

Defending Their Trade.

The trouble with this idea is that so many of the allied and friendly countries are now also having surpluses which they need to dispose of. Our efforts to get rid of parts of our surpluses at cut-rate prices, easy terms and as out-right gifts are being denounced, accurately enough, as dumping.

Thus New Zealand has protested that "dairy products are now being dumped at prices well below those ruling in world markets." Mr. C. D. Howe, the Trade Minister of Canada, a country also bedeviled as we are by wheat surplus, has complained that "markets generally are disorganized by United States surplus disposal measures."

Thailand and Burma, themselves recipients of certain of our surpluses, are protesting that we are dumping wheat which interferes unfairly with their rice export trade. Uruguay has made a protest against our agreement to supply Brazil with wheat and other farm products, contending that they compete unfairly with Uruguay's trade with Brazil.

Dumping Would Hurt.

No wonder the State Department is not finding it easy to dispose of the surpluses in a hurry. The department is, in fact, in a jam. It is under pressure from Congress to dump the surpluses and under attack abroad from the countries which suffer from the dumping. It is almost certainly an error to think that our farm troubles can be solved, or even appreciably alleviated, by the effort to get rid of the surpluses abroad.

In 1955 we made strenuous efforts under a number of different acts. The Administration got rid of something over two billion dollars' worth of surplus commodities, of which a little over one billion was disposed of abroad. But the surpluses accumulated at home are bigger than they ever were.

The basic fact of the matter is that only 10 per cent of total agricultural production is exported, and though the world market is important for certain crops, the problem cannot be solved by pushing it off on to the world markets.

More Harm Than Good.

It is not possible to dispose of the surpluses quickly even by a combination of such devices as giving them away, selling them for currencies we do not need, or bartering them for foreign commodities that we would buy anyway.

For us to push very hard along these lines, essentially that of dumping, would almost certainly do us more harm abroad than it does us good here at home. For we must not lose sight of a cardinal element of the new Soviet campaign in Asia and in Africa. This is the willingness of the Soviet government to be paid, or at least to appear to be paid, for its industrial goods by accepting payment in cotton from Egypt, rice from Burma, jute from Pakistan, accepting in other words the surpluses of the underdeveloped countries.

We shall not do well in this contest with the Soviet government if the Soviet accepts commodities which are in surplus while we dump those same commodities.

Reserves for Disaster.

All this is not to say that some part, some comparatively small part, of our surpluses cannot be disposed of abroad through commercial channels. Appreciable amounts can still be gotten rid of abroad through programs designed to help remedy undernourishment and raise economic productivity. These programs are wisely conceived and administered as aid programs and not as dumping measures.

But in the main we should regard these surpluses as a reserve to be drawn upon in time of disaster at home or abroad, when there are great crop failures or natural catastrophes such as floods, typhoons, earthquakes, drought.

These surpluses cannot really be disposed of in the world market any more than they can be disposed of in the domestic market, and as an economic factor in supply and demand there is nothing to be done with these surpluses except to isolate and neutralize them.

MOSCOW PARADES STYLES TO TUNE OF 'I GOT RHYTHM'

MOSCOW, Feb. 29 (UP)—A blonde model in a blue and pink dress walked down a carpeted ramp to the strains of "I Got Rhythm" yesterday to open the first spring fashion show at G.U.M., the Soviet Union's biggest department store.

About 500 women and a few men were on hand to see the show. A violinist and a pianist provided the musical background.

Apparently partial to American tunes, the musicians played "These Foolish Things," "Amapola," "Jealousy" and even an old Duke Ellington favorite, "Caravan."

The dresses may be bought at G.U.M.'s. They ranged in price from 400 to 600 rubles (nominally from $100 to $150). Western correspondents, who managed to edge their way through the crowds, agreed the models were among the prettiest they have seen in Moscow.

FILM FESTIVAL POSTPONED ON ACCOUNT OF RAINIER

PARIS, Feb. 29 (UP)—The Cannes film festival was postponed today on account of Rainer.

The wedding of Prince Rainier III of Monaco and American film star Grace Kelly April 18-19 in Monaco clashed with the original film festival dates of April 10-24.

The festival is held practically next door to Monaco in Cannes and its sponsors feared the wedding would drain off all the tourists. The new dates are April 23-May 10.

ELPIDIO QUIRINO DIES, PHILIPPINE LEADER

Second President of New Republic—Imprisoned by Japanese.

MANILA, Feb. 29 (AP)—Former President Elpidio Quirino, second chief executive of the Philippine republic, died at his home today at the age of 65.

He had long suffered from heart trouble and, on taking the oath of office in 1948, he said, "I am living on borrowed time."

Quirino assumed the presidency upon the death of President Manuel Roxas when the republic was but 21 months old. He was elected president in 1949 but he lost to President Ramon Magaysay in the 1953 election.

Quirino had many years' experience in public life and a high reputation as an administrator. Manuel Quezon, first president of the Philippine commonwealth, before formation of the republic, was Quirino's sponsor in his early career.

During World War II, the Japanese made efforts to lure Quirino into the puppet government of the Philippines. He refused and was imprisoned for 45 days. Just before the war's end, in the sacking of South Manila, his wife and three of their five children were massacred by the Japanese, but Quirino and two other children made their way to the liberating United States forces.

When the Philippine Congress met for the first time after the war, Quirino took the seat in the Senate to which he had been elected in 1941. He teamed with Roxas for the 1946 election and they defeated Sergio Osmena. Quirino served as foreign secretary while he was vice president and sent the first diplomatic missions abroad from the Philippines. He took over the presidency on Roxas's death on April 15, 1948. He worked tirelessly for formation of the Pacific defense alliance against Communism.

Born Nov. 16, 1890, in Vigan, Ilocos Sur, Quirino worked his way through school, taught school and acquired a law degree. He became a clerk for the Philippine Commission, first governing body of the islands, and there became Quirino's protégé.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Victoria Gonzales, and a son, Tomas Quirino.

HARVARD OBTAINS MANUSCRIPTS OF POET TENNYSON

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 29

(AP)—The manuscripts of the English poet Alfred Lord Tennyson have been acquired by Harvard University's Houghton library, the university announced yesterday.

Harvard said the 350 poems in first drafts and revisions are "the world's most important collection of the writings of the great nineteenth-century poet-laureate."

No other collection, the Harvard announcement says, contains so many of Tennyson's worksheets, covering his entire career.

They were bought for an undisclosed price from the poet's grandson, Sir Charles Tennyson. The Houghton Library used income from a bequest of a famous American imagist poet, Amy Lowell, in making the purchase. While the collection is being cataloged for the use of scholars, it may not be displayed except on special occasions.

Some of the poems have never been published. This adds to the collection's value for historians and critics, said Prof. William A. Jackson, director of the Houghton Library.

GRONCHI URGES MORE CLOSE TIES IN WEST

Social and Economic Pacts Could Supplement NATO, He Tells Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—President Giovanni Gronchi of Italy told Congress today a closer knitting of the western world in social and economic areas is needed to supplement existing military alliances.

"Military co-operation continues to be very important today, but it should be supplemented with new and imaginative forms of co-operation," he told a joint session in the House chamber.

The Italian President conferred for more than an hour yesterday with President Eisenhower, and will see him and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles again tomorrow.

Gronchi told Congress "one might consider with more attention a better integrated functioning of NATO."

The Atlantic pact, as conceived and operated thus far, he said, "was appropriate and sufficient so long as there was the fear of imminent armed aggression, intensified by an imbalance of strength between the two sides."

"However, it should be brought into line with today's realities, when the military imbalance has been reduced and there have been so many changes of situation in many parts of the world."

He said an adequate system of collective defense is not a final solution, "but can only serve as a stage to go beyond the dangers of a balance-of-power approach, and to give a better foundation to peace."

Gronchi said that despite patient endeavor, the world is no more secure than it was one or two years ago. "In fact," he said, "we are going through a disquieting phase of confusion in ideas and political orientations, and consequently of great potential danger."

He said the West must recognize that Communism, while "organically repugnant" to the democratic system, "has in itself a great power of expansion" because it appears capable of improving the lot of the underprivileged.

Gronchi voiced the gratitude of the Italian people for United States help given "at considerable sacrifice for all sections of your people when, after the war, Italy had to rebuild from the ashes of a painful past."

"This bond of gratitude cannot be forgotten," he said, "and my visit is meant as a reaffirmation of it."

President and Signora Gronchi will be in Washington two more days. Later on they will visit other American cities and Canada.

PERMIT FOR Y.M.H.A. IN OLIVETTE DENIED

Trustees, However, to Consider Revised Request for Building by March 13.

A permit to erect a Y.M.H.A. building in Olivette was denied last night by the Olivette Board of Trustees. The board, however, voted unanimously to allow the Jewish Community Centers Association, applicants for the permit, to submit a revised request before March 13.

The request as originally filed failed to comply with some aspects of the building ordinances, a spokesman for the Board of Trustees said. Members of the board also felt that objections raised by property owners in the area were justified, he said.

Residents in the vicinity of Delmar boulevard and Price road had said the $2,000,000 facility would lower property values and cause undue traffic hazards. The motion to grant time to revise the application was introduced at the request of the Jewish Community Centers Association after a meeting of its representatives with the trustees Monday night, Carroll J. Donohue, chairman of the board, said.

He said he did not know what revisions the association planned to make in its request to construct a community service building on the 14.6-acre tract.

About 50 persons attended the meeting last night at the Olivette Fire Department and Town Hall building, 9473 Olive Street road. The motion was introduced by Henry J. Drekin, board member, and passed with no protest from the audience.

The property on which the building would be erected is zoned for either residential or institutional use, but a permit must be issued by the trustees to allow construction.

No more public hearings will be held on the permit request, Donohue said. Proponents and opponents argued for four and one-half hours at a public hearing last Jan. 10. Donohue said he thought the board had obtained as much information as it needed at that meeting to make its decision.

Developing Talent

Expensive Operation.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 29. — BOB CARPENTER of the Philadelphia Phillies was quoted the other day as saying that the cost of developing players into major leaguers had averaged more than $300,000 a man, and General Manager Frank Lane of the Cardinals agreed that it was a rather expensive operation.

Lane was asked to break down the operation as it applied to the Cardinals. Where did all that money go? "That's easy," Lane replied. "There are four major items that will account for the expenditures, the cost of the players. In the early days, especially, the Phillies were pouring money into the bonus player market. Recently the Red Sox went on a splurge in that direction. They had players in their spring camp at Sarasota who cost at least a total of $1,000,000. There were four or five who were reported to have been given $100,000 each.

"In the case of the Cardinals we have four major costs of operation. In round figures, say it costs us $100,000 in bonus money paid to free agents. Another $100,000 goes for purchase of players from other organizations. You can't depend entirely on your own procurement department. Then we spend $150,000 on scouts, their salaries and expenses. You can readily see how expensive such an operation can be, with scouts in all parts of the country and others traveling virtually around the calendar.

"The fourth big item of expense is the operation of the minor league clubs, either by ownership or with working agreements. We'll put that figure, including losses at many of the clubs, at $150,000."

That brought the total to $500,000. What would be considered a fair return in big league muscle and brains in the form of players ready to play in the major leagues? "You're lucky if you get two players a year," was the reply. "And if you get two players a year, the cost per player is $250,000, and of course, if we get only one, it's $500,000."

Wealthy Owners Crowding Old Pros Out of Picture.

THE high cost of operating baseball clubs have made it very difficult for the old style operators to stay in business. Unless you have a farm system now, and unless you pay out big bonus money, you won't be very important in the pennant races. An example is the Washington Senators, who have tried to operate as they did in the old days. With the appearance of the Yawkeys, Webbs and Toppings, Wrigleys and Busches, the Senators have been unable to compete adequately for a fair share of the talent. And for such ball clubs the outlook is gloomy. The Mack family was one of the last to make a stand, too. They learned in Philadelphia that they could not compete with the wealthy club owners in the American League, or even with the Carpenters for home town patronage.

That's the trend and observers generally agree that corporation ownership is the only answer. Player salaries, the cost of developing talent, the tremendous cost of ball parks and maintaining them, has changed baseball from what it was in the days of Charley Comiskey, Connie Mack, Barney Dreyfus, Charley Stoneham and Bob Hedges.

Baseball doesn't even belong to the so-called club owners any more. They put on a big profitable show each fall and what happens. The dough merely fattens the belly for the ball players and their pension fund, and so the leagues have to keep on looking for new brewers, new tobacco companies and perhaps grocery store chains. Anybody got a few million they'd like to what they laughingly call invest?

Versatile Brandt No. 1 Prospect as Rookie Camp Ends

Could Be At Third, Boyer at Shortstop

By J. Roy Stockton

Post-Dispatch Sports Editor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 29.

—The rookie instructional camp phase of the Cardinals' spring training has ended and if there's an award for star of the camp, it would have to go to Jackie Brandt, versatile young ball player from the Rochester farm team.

During the early days of the school, Brandt showed that he was an excellent outfielder, not ready perhaps to crowd any of the regulars of 1955 out of the lineup, but definitely a major league prospect, not far from big league rating.

Bill Jurgens, the canny infield coach, noticed that the young man had a natural aptitude for fielding grounders. So Jackie was tried at shortstop. After less than a week of coaching, Brandt made his bow at shortstop in a squad game and handled 11 of 13 chances with skill and grace. There were a few rough edges, but they were not serious. One of his two errors was charged because after he fielded a ball cleanly, he dropped it as he plucked it from his glove to throw. The other error was a high throw after a good stop.

At home at 3b. And then, in the final game of the school, Brandt was sent to third base. At that position, where it's more of a matter of fielding and throwing, without the demands for finesse of the shortstop job, Brandt fielded like a veteran. In the five-inning, c-o-n-t-i-n-u-e-d Jackie handled seven chances, started a double play and his throws were as accurate as though dispatched on a taut clothes line.

Brandt may have to go out a year of infielding at Rochester, and then again he may be one of those naturals, an eager young man with a strong arm who, if just given a chance, can play major league ball even while mastering the fine points of a difficult assignment.

Through the years of the great Marty Marion and since Mr. Shortstop had to bow to Father Time and a sacro-iliac, the Cardinals have tried out many young infielders who were described in the optimistic months of January and February as successors to the master, Marion. They all fell by the wayside. Brandt in little more than two weeks has looked better than any of them.

And his fine performance yesterday at third base set up the possibility of Jackie being used there and Ken Boyer moving to shortstop, where he performed brilliantly last spring.

Repulski Rips. A greatly improved defensive outfielder this spring, as a result of coaching from Terry Moore, is starting to show the right-handed hitting power the club has hoped it would get from him consistently. A serious-minded fellow, his improved fielding skill may be a shot in the psychological arm that Rip has needed. In the squad game, winding up the rookie school term, The Ripper hit a triple and two harsh singles as his team, the Majors, defeated the Minors, 4 to 1.

It was a pleasing exhibition of good hitting, even when drives didn't go safe, and of excellent fielding. And for the final contest for the youngsters, Manager Hutchinson permitted two young pitchers, Ed Donnelly and Charley Purtle, to go the five-inning route. Purtle, a righthander, held the Minors to three hits, while the Majors collected five off the left-handed Donnelly. Both pitchers were throwing hard and Donnelly especially showed a fast, sweeping curve.

Management decided on another conversion job, deciding to give Gene Green, hard-hitting young outfielder, a chance to become a catcher. Green, playing four years in the minors, has had three good batting years. He batted .351 at Paducah, 360 at Ardmore and last season in 104 games at Peoria he batted .315. He hit 34 home runs at Ardmore in 98 games in 1954 and 22 last year at Peoria.

Catchers with good batting averages have been scarce in the Cardinals organization since Walker Cooper's prime, and Green, who lacks speed of foot to become a great outfielder, would have a better chance to make the big league grade behind the plate. He welcomed the change.

Today will be a short work day in camp, with the minor leaguers departing for their club camp, and with the Cardinals regulars not scheduled to start work until tomorrow.

Luke Appling, the new infield coach, arrived and was in and out of the camp, who has done a fine teaching job, will remain until Saturday, when he will turn over his duties to Appling.

Three Rookies of '55 Returning to Speedway. But in Different Cars. INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 29 (AP)—Three rookie drivers from last year's 500-mile auto race will return on Memorial day this year, but in different cars.

Pat Clancy, Memphis, Tenn., nominated Al Herman, Center Valley, Pa., last year's "rookie of the year," to drive the Bardahl Special which Jimmy Davies drove to third place in 1955.

Chuck Weyant, Springfield, Ill., was named to take Herman's place this year in the car entered by W. Thayer Martin, Mitchell, Ind., and Thomas W. Martin, New Castle, Pa.

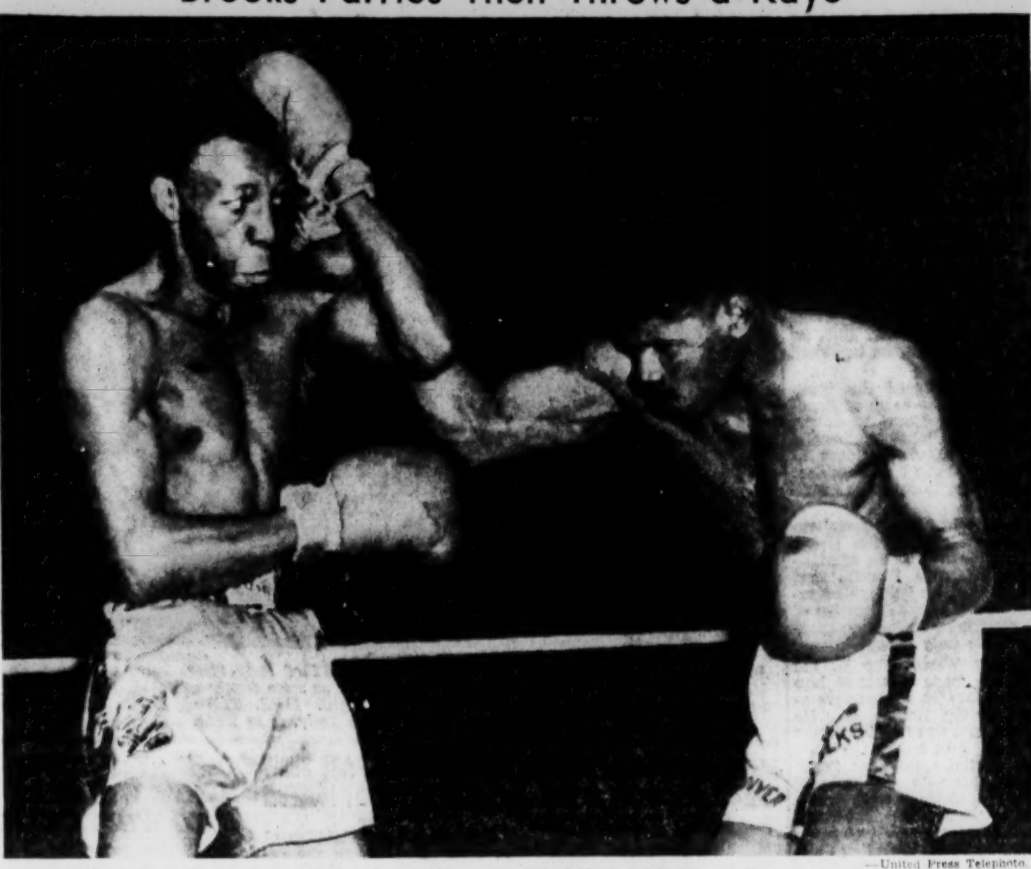

Samuel W. Taylor III, Allentown, Pa., named Al Keller, West Palm Beach, Fla., to drive the car which Johnnie Parsons qualified for the 1954 race at 139.578 miles an hour. Taylor recently bought the car from J. S. Belond, Los Angeles.

JIM BOTTOMLEY, recovering from an illness, smiles at Lutheran Hospital, where get-well cards poured in when it became known that the 56-year-old Sullivan (Mo.) resident was a patient. Sunny Jim, as they called him and Ol' Jim as he referred to himself, was one of the most popular players the Cardinals ever had and generally is regarded as the No. 1 Redbird first baseman. T—swagging Bottomley, hat perched jauntily over his left eye, had a lifetime .310 batting average for 16 seasons in the majors. The pride of Nokomis, Ill., played with the Cubs from 1922 through '32 and managed the Browns in 1937.

Brooks Parries Then Throws a Kayo

No Wonder Martin Is Still Pepper: It's 13th Birthday

MESA, Ariz., Feb. 29 (UPI).

JOHNNY LEONARD (PEPPER) MARTIN, baseball's famed Willie Horse of the Osage, today celebrated his thirteenth birthday anniversary.

The former star of the St. Louis Cardinal Gas House Gang, now coaching with the Chicago Cubs, was born Feb. 29, 1904, a leap year, at Tempe, Okla.

Martin, at 52, has as much of the stuff which gave him his nickname as any rookie in camp here.

Runs at Ardmore in 98 games in 1954 and 22 last year at Peoria.

Catchers with good batting averages have been scarce in the Cardinals organization since Walker Cooper's prime, and Green, who lacks speed of foot to become a great outfielder, would have a better chance to make the big league grade behind the plate. He welcomed the change.

Today will be a short work day in camp, with the minor leaguers departing for their club camp, and with the Cardinals regulars not scheduled to start work until tomorrow.

Luke Appling, the new infield coach, arrived and was in and out of the camp, who has done a fine teaching job, will remain until Saturday, when he will turn over his duties to Appling.

Three Rookies of '55 Returning to Speedway. But in Different Cars. INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 29 (AP)—Three rookie drivers from last year's 500-mile auto race will return on Memorial day this year, but in different cars.

Pat Clancy, Memphis, Tenn., nominated Al Herman, Center Valley, Pa., last year's "rookie of the year," to drive the Bardahl Special which Jimmy Davies drove to third place in 1955.

Chuck Weyant, Springfield, Ill., was named to take Herman's place this year in the car entered by W. Thayer Martin, Mitchell, Ind., and Thomas W. Martin, New Castle, Pa.

Samuel W. Taylor III, Allentown, Pa., named Al Keller, West Palm Beach, Fla., to drive the car which Johnnie Parsons qualified for the 1954 race at 139.578 miles an hour. Taylor recently bought the car from J. S. Belond, Los Angeles.

Ol' Jim Is Still Sunny

JIM BOTTOMLEY, recovering from an illness, smiles at Lutheran Hospital, where get-well cards poured in when it became known that the 56-year-old Sullivan (Mo.) resident was a patient. Sunny Jim, as they called him and Ol' Jim as he referred to himself, was one of the most popular players the Cardinals ever had and generally is regarded as the No. 1 Redbird first baseman. T—swagging Bottomley, hat perched jauntily over his left eye, had a lifetime .310 batting average for 16 seasons in the majors. The pride of Nokomis, Ill., played with the Cubs from 1922 through '32 and managed the Browns in 1937.

Six St. Louis Fighters in Golden Gloves Semifinals

CHICAGO, Feb. 29 (UPI)—The St. Louis Golden Gloves team tightened its hold on the team championship, as it forged ahead last night in its quest to be the first team to win three straight championships.

The St. Louis survivors are: Don Eddington, 112 pounds; Dan Eddington, 118; Joseph Shaw, 135; Leon Brooks, 147; William Anderson, 160; and William Clemons, 175 pounds.

The only Mount City boxer eliminated in the two nights of competition was Brown McGhee, 126 pounds, and Heavyweight Dan Bankhead.

St. Louis's three heavier class fighters advanced last night. Brooks knocked out Charles Bosley of Denver in the second round and then outpointed Roland Jakes of Omaha. Anderson defeated Ken Kaner of Chicago and Rudolph Stringer of Detroit. Clemons advanced by knocking out Robert Stumbaugh of Detroit in the second round and then outpointed Merlin Landow of Marshfield, Wis. Bankhead defeated Dub Manis of Fort Worth, Tex., but then lost to Pete Rademacher of Nashville.

Montgomery, Ala., with 11 points, has a chance to stop St. Louis with boys in the 112, 118, 126, 160, 175 and heavyweight class.

Nashville, Tenn., and Louisville, Ky., are tied for third with 10 points each.

Terry Lewis of Sioux City, Iowa, loomed as the favorite in the heavyweight division. He knocked out Robert Hove, Toledo, O., in the first round of his first round bout and then knocked out Howard Wilson of Decatur.

The "big fellows" scored 25 knockouts in 81 battles. Jim Boyd, a Fort Benning, Ga., sergeant who represents the Montgomery, Ala., team, last year's All-Army champion, scored two knockouts in his bid to reach the final like he did last year. He flattened Le Roy Bogar of Minneapolis in the first round and did likewise to Reuben Stevens of Tulsa, Okla., in the third.

Rademacher, 1933 National A.A.U. champ, scored a first round T.K.O. over Billy Ray Smith of Memphis before outpointing Bankhead. Bankhead was making his third tournament appearance.

A favorite who lost out was Don Hullinger of Toledo, O., a welterweight, who dropped his second-round match to clever Francis La Plant of Billings, Mont.

Royal Is Named Huskies' Coach

SEATTLE, Feb. 29 (INS)—The University of Washington yesterday hired a split-T expert to cure the split personality of its football squad.

Darrell Royal, 31, head coach at Mississippi State for the past two years, was given the task of picking up the pieces of the dissension-torn Huskies.

Royal resigned at Mississippi State this morning to accept a one-year contract—with a free hand to pick his helpers—at terms not yet disclosed.

Royal's appointment climaxed a stormy three months on the U.W. campus, during which Coach Johnny Cherberg was fired. Athletic Director Harvey Cassill pressured into resigning, an alumni athletic "slush fund" disclosed and the administration attacked politically for bungling the situation.

George Briggs, assistant athletic director at the University of California, was named Husky athletic director. Briggs sought and hired Royal.

Royal was an All-America quarterback at Oklahoma, served as assistant coach on the staffs at North Carolina State, Tulsa and Mississippi State before taking over as head man of the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian pro league in 1953, when he won the Western Division title.

He returned to Mississippi State in 1954 as head coach. His teams won six and lost four that year and again in 1953.

Winfield came from behind in the last half to beat Rocky Comfort 73-66 after trailing 38-35 at the intermission. Winfield scored the first 10 points in the third period to go ahead 45-38.

Mayview defeated Marston 64-57, leading all the way. Mayview jumped off to a 10-2 lead and held a 36-21 halftime margin. Marston got no closer than five points in the third quarter.

Archie ran up a 39-24 halftime bulge over Spickard and went on to a 65-56 victory in the last game of the night.

Gerald Phillips of Archie was high scorer of the night with 33 points. Spickard's Brant Judd was next at 23.

West Jordan, Utah, Feb. 29 (AP)—The Gene (Cyclone) Fullmer-Jackie Labau fight scheduled for March 7 in Syracuse, N.Y., was called off yesterday. Marv Jensen, Fullmer's manager, said he notified Norman Rothschild, Syracuse promoter, that Fullmer is ill and will not be able to fight.

All-Star Soccer Squad. Three members of the champion St. Mary's team won places on the All-District high school soccer all-star team selected by officials who handled league and "A" tournament games.

Center Halfback Rich Mueth, Goalie Charley Swoboda and Right Halfback Dolph Kraus are the St. Mary's stars.

The center forward selection of George Endler, St. Louis U. High, was elected the officials. His teammate, Kevin McGinnis, was placed at right fullback. DuBourge and Christian Brothers also placed two on the first team: Bob Burns and Tim O'Leary for C.B.C., and B. Raure and R. Mahler from DuBourge. Randy Wielandy, Country Day, and B. Barrett, McBride, completed the eleven.

Drums, Just Keeping Warm for NCAA Tourney, Claim Record

Win 48th Straight; Old Mark Questioned

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—Coach Phil Woolpert, whose San Francisco Dons have topped the Associated Press college basketball poll all season, must have been looking at five other guys when he got the idea his regulars might be getting stale.

He let them kick up their heels for a change last night and the Dons frolicked in an 87-49 runaway against College of the Pacific—locking up their second straight California basketball association title and gaining official entry to the N.C.A.A. tournament for defense of their national championship.

It was San Francisco's forty-eighth consecutive triumph and the fifty-fourth in 55 starts, and the school immediately claimed an all-time college record.

The N.C.A.A. recognizes a 55-game streak by little Peru (Neb.) State Teachers in the mid-20s as the all-time record. But, Dick Blake, Dons' publicity man, said he has a letter from A. G. Wheeler, Peru athletic director, stating the record was against Nebraska teams only and did not represent consecutive victories against all opponents.

Wheeler told the Associated Press, however, that he had no way of knowing for sure whether Peru played out-of-state teams in the streak—which, he added, he found to be 54 games, not 55.

Record or not, the 87-point total is the Dons' best one-game mark of the season. They've topped it only once in their last 45 outings, in fact, defeating West Texas State 89-66 in the first round of last year's N.C.A.A. tourney.

The big score was expected. Woolpert, who has found the winning streak monotonous, announced he would consider the last four games of the regular season as "scrimmages" in way of a warm-up for the opening N.C.A.A. tourney game against the Pacific Coast Conference champ (probably U.C.L.A.) the last team to beat the Dons.

So, instead of pulling his regulars early, he let them romp at San Jose State and All-American Bill Russell's 6-10 center, promptly banged in 28 points while playing all but 2½ minutes.

In other "scrimmage" strategy, Woolpert substituted Gene Brown at times for regular guard Casey Jones, a four-year man ineligible for the N.C.A.A. tournament. Brown, playing about 14 minutes, scored four points.

Elsewhere, Southern Methodist became the first team to sweep through the Southwest Conference unbeaten since Texas did it in 1947. An 89-75 romp against Rice did it for the Mustangs, who had clinched their second straight league crown Saturday.

S.M.U. breaking into the top 10 for the first time this season with a No. 9 ranking in this week's poll, will take a 22-2 record into the N.C.A.A., where the Mustangs have the job of rebuilding conference prestige.

No. 10 Southwestern State survived its first round in the national tournament since Baylor went all the way to the Western finals in 1950. Last year, S.M.U. lost to Bradley right off the bat.

The Texas scene, though, looked as S.M.U.'s probable opening foe in the N.C.A.A. as West Texas upset Texas Western, 80-79. That left Tech at alone atop the Border Conference and with a chance to clinch the title and N.C.A.A. berth against New Mexico A. & M. tonight.

George Washington, warming up for its bid for a title and N.C.A.A. entry in the Southern Conference tournament which opens tomorrow, clipped Georgetown (D.C.), 93-77, although Joe Holt, who led to 12 points.

Memphis State, an early N.C.A.A. entry, beat Northwestern Louisiana, 78-65, for a final regular season record of 20-6.

In other games, Chuck Rollins scored 33 points as Cornell all the killed Princeton's title hopes in the Ivy League, 73-68; and V. R. Barnhouse sank a basket and two free throws in the final minute as Oklahoma A.M. beat Wichita, 65-62 in an overtime battle between two Missouri Valley also-rans.

Arkansas took second in the Southwest Conference by walloping Texas Christian, 40-71. T.C.U. tied for second with the Pioneers a year ago, wound up last time at 2-10. And Texas A.M., after luring Coach Ken Belter from LaSalle, wound up tied for fifth by losing to Texas, 98-70.

Pancho's Win Again. ALBUQUERQUE, Feb. 29 (AP)—Pancho Segura and Pancho Gonzales maintained their hefty lead over Rex Hartwig and Tony Trabert in singles match competition. Segura now holds 34-2 record over Hartwig in the competition on Jack Kramer's pro tennis tour. Segura defeated the Australian 9-7 in the lone singles match. Gonzales handed Trabert a four-set defeat, Cup winner, a 3-6, 9-7, 6-3 setback to put Gonzales ahead in the series 30-11.

Record-Breaking Bears Take Last Shot at Basket Tonight

By Harold Tuthill

Call them the high-flying bears for that, what Washington University's basketball team will be on a quick hop to Beloit, Wis., for a return engagement tonight with the Buccaneers.

The Bruin team, scheduled for its last game of the season, will fly up and back on a chartered plane in order to miss as little classwork as possible.

Blair Gullion's athletes hope they will be able to duplicate the 72-60 victory recorded over Beloit when it was here in mid-January. Should that happen the Bears, who have been scattering school records like dry leaves in a windstorm, will break several marks.

If they win, they will post their seventeenth victory to go with five defeats and that will make them the winningest basketball team in Hilltop history. The triumph also would be No. 100 for Coach Gullion in his eight years of coaching at Washington.

He missed 1952 because of illness. Further, the 17-5 finish would be an improvement upon the 17-6 mark set by Gullion's 1949-50 team which holds the record for top performance by a Myrtle and Maroon five.

Exclusive Circle. This is Gullion's twenty-fifth year of active coaching, a rather select college fraternity which has only 13 other members. Gullion's over-all record is 297 won, 173 lost, which few can beat. At Washington, Gullion has won 99, lost 64. Tonight, the Bears are a slight favorite over Beloit.

Gullion fully expects the Bucs of Delph Stanley to use a zone defense, which shouldn't bother the Bears too much. It hasn't all season. "Either that or Stanley will use a mid-court press," Gullion commented as he puffed, as usual, on a thick cigar.

It's no secret that Gullion would like to win this one, because there's still a possibility the Bears would be a bid to the N.I.T. in New York, even if the N.C.A.A. fails to assign Washington to an at-large spot in its tournament.

Individual improvements will be made as the Bears seek to run their current winning streak to six straight. Bud Crist, who will wind up an illustrious four-year career, will add to his 1045 points, being the only Bruin player to go over the 1000 mark.

Barton's Record Motions. Barton, who is 15 points away from equalling the most points scored in one season, 451, by Bob Kriegshauser two years ago, will set a record every time he attempts and makes a free throw. He's up to 267 attempted, 198 made, which

Jeffersons Win Baskets Title

The Jeffersons defeated Meramec Caverns, 50 to 42, to clinch the championship of the Midwestern Girls' Major Basketball League last night at the Salvation Army gymnasium. In the first game, Katie Kaufmann crushed Rock Alumnae, 47 to 36, to finish in a tie for second place with the Caverns.

In the feature game, Jefferson showed a well balanced attack as they wore down their taller opponents to take a commanding lead in the third quarter after being held to a 29 to 20 tie at the half.

Marcella Rose, Beverly Lambur and Jane McCabe with 16, 14 and 10 points respectively paced the winners, while Phyllis Henken and Lila Lipp with 12 and 10 points were high for the losers. Frank Rodis of Rock Alumnae was the high scorer of the evening with 18 points.

Commission Chairman Julius Helfand said the collection of the fines was up to the attorney general's office.

The maximum fine the commission can impose is $5000.

Local Amateurs to Face Centralia Boxers. Amateur boxers with recent victories will go against Centralia (Ill.) scrappers in three of the bouts closed by Matchmaker Joe Herbst Sr. for Friday night at the South Broadway A.C.

Tim Dempsey, Cherokee Center welterweight, will meet Dore McHenry in a 147-pound novice bout. Richard Munzlinger of the Fenton A.C., winner of two fights this year, is matched with Centralia's Eldon Copple for another novice welterweight contest. Sonny Nichols of the Barracks team, who stopped his last opponent, will tackle Gerald Woley, 118-pound sub-novice.

Riley Best, University of Wisconsin track coach, had an engineer measure the track at the new Camp Randall Memorial Building Monday and the tape read 60 yards, 14-inch.

As a result, Best planned to apply to the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association for certification of the new mark set in a triangular meet among Northwestern, Wisconsin and Iowa.

The listed record for 60 yards of 6.1 seconds is shared by Goldilay and several others.

DuMont Moves To Continue TV Ring Shows

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—Sixteen would-be promoters are listed as applicants for the Monday night fight television plum today following the commission-enforced closing down of the London Sporting Club.

The State Athletic Commission gave the boot yesterday to the club, president and matchmaker Tex Sullivan, and former treasurer Willie Gilzenberg, by revoking the licenses of all and fining the club and Gilzenberg $500 each — the heaviest mass penalties in the history of the commission. They were found guilty of eight of nine charges made by the commission. The other charge, that of consorting with criminals, was dismissed for lack of "sufficient, competent legal evidence."

Manny Heiklen, owner of the Sunnyside Arena here, and Haskell Cohen, publicity director of the National Basketball Association, formed a combine that appeared to have the inside track for the contract. Cohen also is an official of an outfit that produces weekly wrestling shows over Dumont's local outlet.

"We will continue the fight telecasts and almost certainly in New York," said Ted Cott, vice president and general manager of the Dumont corporation, as he interviewed the hopefuls.

"Our first action will be to align ourselves with a promoter, properly licensed, and then we will decide on the site," said Cott. Heiklen already has the license. He promotes weekly non-television bouts at Sunnyside.

The action against the London S.C. Sullivan and Gilzenberg, is effective March 6. They have one more fight to promote before a welterweight clash between Danny Jo Perez, New York, and Gene Poirier, Niagara Falls, N.Y., at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night.

They have promoted 93 consecutive Monday night cards since Nick's over the Dumont network. Sullivan, who had his license as matchmaker revoked, and Gilzenberg, who lost his treasurer's permit, are veterans of more than 30 years in boxing as managers, publicity men, matchmakers and promoters.

They haven't given up hope. Sullivan today obtained a stay against the commission's ruling from the State Supreme Court. It is returnable March 13.

Gilzenberg, a resident of Newark, N.J., said he did not want to comment about the payment of the fine until he had a chance to study the decision.

Sullivan, although he admitted "expected the worst," said he was "too stunned and shocked" over the drastic penalties to comment about anything.

Commission Chairman Julius Helfand said the collection of the fines was up to the attorney general's office.

The maximum fine the commission can impose is $5000.

Fister, Named After Hornsby, Considered One of Cards' Pitching Hopes of Future

By L. A. McMaster
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 29—A six-foot one-inch right-handed pitcher with 170-odd pounds on his frame and a St. Louis Muny League family baseball history is among the hopefuls in the Cardinals' organization for help on the mound to put the club back at the high level of 10 years ago. Pennant level, that is.

The big right-hander is Rogers Fister, who was born in St. Louis, lived in Poplar Bluff, Mo., and now resides with his family at Salina, Kan. The Muny league history was built up by his father, Peter C. Fister, who played in the outfield for Shell teams in the 20s, competing against Walter Shannon, supervisor of minor league player personnel for the Cards.

Shannon's son, Walter Jr., is a second sacker listed to play this year with Omaha, as is Fister.

That first name of young Fister should ring a bell with St. Louis fans. Yes, he was named for Rogers Hornsby, after his older brother had been given the first moniker of Jim Bottomley.

Ball Park 'Veteran.' Young Fister did not remain long in St. Louis. His father, a life insurance man, has been moved by his company to Kansas City. Poplar Bluff and now Salina. In Kansas City, Rogers played in a boys league called the Three and Two, and as a 9-year-old he made a trip to St. Louis and pitched a one-hitter in then Sportsman's Park to defeat a Khoury League team, 1 to 0.

After high school and Legion junior play in Kansas City, Rogers continued in sandlot competition in the Cairo, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., area and Scout Joe Monahan of the Cardinals heard about Fister striking out 22 batters in a game. Monahan looked Rogers over in competition with Scout Bob Martin of Brooklyn. Martin suggested Ponca City, Okla., but that was not for Rogers. Monahan signed the boy after seeing him in a losing game.

Cardinal officials say Fister could make the big team in not too long a development term. He is only 21 years old and has been in the Cards' organization four years. He has pitched for Johnson City (5 and 3), St. Joseph (17 and 11), Peoria (5 and 8), Houston (4 and 8) and Allentown (5 and 4). With St. Joe in 1953, he struck out 239 batters in 243 innings.

A fast ball is Rogers' best asset, he says, and while it enabled him to compile good strikeout marks in his early years, he no longer tries especially to fan batters.

In his travels south of St. Louis, Rogers met and married Doris Ann Thornton of Poplar Bluff. They have a five-month-old daughter, Vicki Dawn. The Rogers Fisters probably will make their home in Poplar Bluff.

Mexican Adventure. Playing in the Mexican League the past winter season, Rogers won five and lost six games for the Aztecas club. He believes winter league ball could be much more attractive to American boys. If Organized Ball would keep a sort of "watchman" with each club to see that players got all the meal money promised and received expense money and salary when due, instead of having to wait for days.

On his way to Mexico last fall, Fister was delayed a couple of days in Exmelcoupin because of an auto accident. A young Indian boy ran into his car and in the process there were 15 or a couple of dozen Indians around him. They refused to let him pick up the boy. A truck driver sent a policeman to the scene and Fister was taken into town. There he reported to a judge afternoon and evening for two days. He believed the boy was unconscious but finally was told by judge and doctor that there was no serious injury and that he could go on his way upon payment of 500 pesos (about $40). He paid and went on.

In his time in the Cardinal organization, Fister, though only 21, has played under such managers as Jim Hershinger, Hal Olt, Ferrell Anderson, Whitey Kurowski, Mike Ryba and Olt again. He says all helped him and particularly Ryba.

Four Pointers Fail to Impress in National Field Trials Event

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Feb. 29 (AP)—Four pointers did their best yesterday but left the National Bird Dog Championship still minus a standout favorite for the title.

For a time, Susan Peters, owned by Henry Weil of Paducah, Ky., had the gallery buzzing. She pinned three beautifully handled quail bevers in 30 minutes. Even the judges were smiling. Then Susan's rose went numb. Two of her late points were unproductive.

Cross Smoke, owned by George Suttle of Newport News, Va., showed the most stamina. Smoke, who ran with Susan, went birdless until her final 45 minutes when she located four bevers.

The morning brace paired Stanton's Victory, owned by C. F. Mueller of Helena, Mont., and Crawford's Junior Lady, belonging to Mrs. B. S. McClain of Atlanta, Ga. Victory handled five good bevers before her feet, tender from a recent infection, began to bleed. She was picked up. Lady turned in four bevers, got out of hand for 27 minutes, and slowed considerably in her final hour.

Country Day Triumphs. Two goals by Randy Wielandy gave Country Day a 2-0 soccer victory over Ladue.

ON LINDELL

4035 LINDELL BL.

By Z. Lee Stokely
Ozark Sportsman and Outdoor Writer

The chase had started at midnight and was still going strong at the break of dawn. The old tom bobcat knew that he was racing for his life and was using every trick that years of experience had given him. But he was beset by a pack of hounds well versed in the ways of the lynx family and the dogs were closely pressing despite the fact the cat had taken advantage of every ditch and jungle to throw them off the trail. Running in ever-widening circles, the chase had covered many miles of terrain ranging from the steep Ozark hills to the swamplands to the south.

"Old Tom" was a killer, and a chicken or a pig in the farm barnyard was easier procured and furnished a more satisfying meal than a rabbit or a quail. Even young spring fawns had fallen victims to his appetite, and his large tracks near the scene of each kill had betrayed him. His constant marauding had marked him for destruction and hounds from the best packs in the countryside had been banded together for this special hunt.

Some Weigh 40 Pounds. Bobcats are tawny in color with black spots. They are bold, as the name implies, and have short, pointed ears and a number of coarse white bristles on either side of their face. They can climb like any member of the cat family but they seldom take to a tree when cornered. They often roam in pairs, and experienced hunters say that they, as the foxes do, often "spell" each other if the chase becomes hot. Although they are never known to attack man under ordinary circumstances, the female will defend the young if pressed. Bobcats weighing as much as 40 pounds have been taken.

Werner Nagel, in the booklet, "Predator Control," issued by the Missouri Conservation Commission, says, "A predator is any creature that has beaten you to another creature you wanted for yourself." The state has been engaging in some sort of predator control for at least 130 years. The oldest known system is the payment of bounties for specified predators. Bobcats are found mostly in the southeast Missouri counties, but 35 counties have offered bounties on these animals at one time or another. Bobcat bounty paid in the state has never amounted to more than $600 in one year.

Old Tom had been tried over many a farm fence and been found guilty of firing Nagel's definition—"A predator is any creature that has beaten you to another creature you wanted for yourself." and man had decreed that his marauding days must cease. Too many chickens, ducks, and pigs and even young lambs, had gone down his gullet and he was on trial for his life.

Age and Dogs Overtake Tom. Perhaps his age was such that he was no longer agile enough to pursue and catch the elusive bunny and, no doubt, his power of scent had weakened to the point where he could no longer find the covey of quail as it huddled for the night in the open field. Field mice, shrews, and cotton rats were not enough to furnish the aged bobcat with a sustaining bill-of-fare and farm predation was necessary if he was to survive.

The sun was one hour high and the frost was leaving the fields as Old Tom swung across an abandoned field and headed for the old swamp deadening. The saddle-backed Ball, a Walker known far and wide as a 'cat dog, was pressing ever closer. Drum, Fannie and Jake were almost neck and neck. Just a few paces back of the lead dog. It had developed into a sight race by now and the 'cat hunters, red-eyed and weary from their night of trying to keep within hearing distance of the hounds, were shouting encouragement to the dogs. "Get him, Ball," "Go on, Fannie," "Hup-hup, boys—go get him," they yelled as they headed on foot across the old field and plunged into the fire-blackened deadening and its mass of tangled jungle.

Finally, Old Tom backed up to a huge rootwad and stood there with his back arched and his fangs bared—40 pounds of fighting fury ready to sell his life dearly if the dogs closed in. The pack ringed the snarling, spitting cat and were barking furiously when the hunters arrived. A sudden shot rang out and the battle was ended. The dogs each sniffed the now inert bobcat and were satisfied that the chase was over. Tom had paid the supreme penalty for eating domestic creatures that man said belonged to him.

Rollins Field May

Be Closed to Track Use at Missouri U.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 29—The Missouri U. track team—and high schools that compete in district and state meets—may be using Rollins Field here for the last season.

The university is seeking bids on installing a 440-yard oval track with a 220-yard straightway at Memorial Stadium and may award contracts next month. The three-inch running surface and concrete curbing are expected to cost approximately $15,000.

The move was made necessary by the university's new medical center and necessity of extending a sidewalk or street through from Rollins street to the teaching hospital. Such a traffic-way would split the 220-yard straightway on Rollins Field, although it will leave the 440-yard oval track intact. The oval track will continue to be used for practice sessions as well as for intra-mural events, but official meets after this season will be moved to the Stadium.

Santee's Own Testimony Suspended Him, AAU Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—Even if Wes Santee had been cleared of charges of accepting excessive expense money, it's doubtful if he could have appeared in the Olympics, an A.A.U. official said today.

"I'm certain we never could have entered him in the games because the International Federation wouldn't permit it after reading his testimony," said Irving Schoolman, a member of the executive committee which imposed the bar. "However, on the basis of his testimony, we had no recourse but to suspend him."

The A.A.U. yesterday released the report of a committee appointed to investigate Santee and it served to confirm the already published resumes.

It also brought about the following developments:

1. Pinchus Sober, who wrote the report that led to Santee's conviction, in effect, challenged the star miler to try to upset the executive committee's jurisdiction in the case.

2. A.A.U. Secretary-Treasurer Dr. Ferris said Marine Santee could run in the all-service championships in Los Angeles in June.

3. Santee's lawyer, Charles P. Grimes, refused to comment on the report.

Sober, head of the A.A.U. track and field committee and an attorney, said:

"The only leg they (Santee and Grimes) would possibly have to stand on is the matter of jurisdiction. But the A.A.U. constitution points out that the national organization has complete priority over any action of a local organization."

Voucher by Voucher. Sober's report disclosed exactly how much above the allowable expenses Santee was charged with accepting—$1235. Here is how it was broken down: $670 for three meets in Fresno, Los Angeles and Modesto, Calif., in eight days; $290 for meets in Cleveland and Chicago on successive nights; $150 for meets in Compton, Calif., and Stockton, Calif., a week apart, and $125 for meets in Philadelphia and Washington on successive nights.

The minutes also showed a sharp disagreement of interpretation of the rules by Santee and the A.A.U. and this could be the crux of the entire case.

Here is a partial transcript of the Jan. 8 hearing in New York regarding the Fresno-Los Angeles-Modesto meets:

What They Said. Santee: "I did purchase from time to time on a trip—I'm positive that it was in Southern California—that I bought some shirts and things like that, but—"

Question: "General wearing apparel, you mean?" Santee: "Yes, things of that type. Now, as far as I'm concerned I think all of those things are related to track and field because my entire time was devoted to that. I had no other occupation. I wasn't in school. I wasn't in anything but doing this, so all living expenses from A to Z were incurred and accounted for by this amount. Now, very easily, you can say there's some excess money and I'm not disagreeing with you."

Question: "Wes, is it your theory, which I think has been expressed by you in Kansas City, that expenses for a particular meet should also cover general expenses between meets?"

Santee: "In these cases, I think it's very fair for me to consider that my living expenses are justified."

Question: "During the time covered by meets or at other times through the year?" Santee: "Well, even at other times throughout the year, they should have been. I mean I had no other source of income, but I devoted three months to track and field."

The transcript did not say who the questioner was.

The report also said Santee's wife received $1100 in expenses for accompanying him to several meets in violation of the A.A.U. rule which states: "No traveling expenses or payment of any kind for manager, trainer, rubber, friend or RELATIVE and no payment for loss of time or wages, shall be asked for or received directly or indirectly."

The investigating committee recommended, however, that no penalty be imposed on Santee for his wife's expenses.

why Ancient Age can say:

"IF YOU CAN FIND A BETTER BOURBON ...BUY IT!"

All we distill is Kentucky straight bourbon.

We know that bourbon of the finest quality requires choice grains. That's all we use. We know it calls for the greatest skill in distilling. The men who guide the making of Ancient Age are the most experienced in the industry. And it takes lots of time. That's why we wait six full years for careful aging to bring the quality ingredients to their peak of maturity.

And to safeguard the uniform quality of Ancient Age, we distill it at one place only... at the Ancient Age distillery in Frankfort, Kentucky... the heart of the bourbon country.

Nothing has been spared to make Ancient Age the greatest bourbon of them all. We invite you to try it tonight. After one taste, you'll understand why we can make the challenge: "If you can find a better bourbon... buy it!"

City Approves Dodger Dream For New Park

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—The City Council has put its stamp of approval on a giant Brooklyn sports center which would provide a new home for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The approval came in a home-rule message yesterday asking the state legislature to okay a bill that would set up a three-man committee empowered to build the $30,000,000 center. Chairman Edward Vogel, chairman of the committee on state legislation, said the plan would go a long way toward re-establishing the area which has been "blighted and run down for over 50 years."

The proposed center would be in the vicinity of the Long Island railroad station in downtown Brooklyn.

Before the City Council gave its okay, President Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers addressed the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, a non-profit organization, which is supporting the center.

He said the Dodgers were willing to put their money in bonds to help the project along. "We are thinking in terms of $4,000,000," he said.

City Co-ordinator Robert Moses sounded a note of caution when he told the Convention and Visitors Bureau the entire building program would "require a considerable amount of city money over and above the money you can raise from bonds."

The new home of the Dodgers would cost about $4,000,000 and would be covered by a transit dome 550 feet in diameter which would permit its use during bad weather.

Sorts in Playoffs. With Charles Meine scoring 41 points, the Sorts defeated the North Side Turners, 114-107, on the Gethsemane Lutheran court to advance to the playoffs in the Municipal Basketball Association closed division. Don Mirth had 36 points for the losers.

Rigney Labels Lockman for Giant Bench

Mueller Is Opposed to Leading Off

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 29 (AP)—Carroll (Whitey) Lockman, the stylish North Carolinian who did so much to bring the National League championship to New York in 1951 and 1954, may be riding the Giants' bench this season.

Bill Rigney, the club's freshman manager, indicated as much today.

"I'm certainly glad Whitey's on our side," he said, "but we want a little more power and fellows like Dusty Rhodes, Bob Lennon and Gail Harris will get a chance to see if they provide it. If they don't then we have Whitey available."

Lockman, who joined the Giants in 1945 and has played with them ever since, batted .273 and hit 15 home runs in 147 games last season. He played in the outfield and at first base.

Rigney previously had said he intended to give Rhodes and Lennon an opportunity to win the left field job. Willie Mays, in Center Field, and St. Louisan Don Mueller, in right, are set.

They're set in the field, at any rate, but Rigney is planning to experiment with Mueller in the leadoff position in the batting order.

And is Don turning handsprings about the proposed change from his No. 3 and No. 5 positions? He's not.

"I tried it in 1953," he explained, "and found I had to readjust my whole style. Batting after the pitcher or starting a game, you find the opposition deployed differently and you can't spray hits so well."

And Don sprayed 185 hits over National League fields while hitting 306 in 1955.

Elsewhere around the major league camps:

MIKE HIGGINS, Boston Red Sox manager, was cheered that MEL PARNELL, oft-injured the last two years, reported his shoulder and knee sound. Boldly, Higgins predicted, "Catcher SAMMY WHITE would hit 320 this year 'if he stops swinging at bad pitches.'"

AL SMITH, St. Louisan troubled by infected teeth, will move into LARRY DOBBS' former No. 3 spot in Cleveland's batting order. Manager AL LOPEZ said:

JIM HUGHES, reporting 16 pounds lighter, said at Brooklyn's camp he believed starting pitching would be easier than relieving on a troublesome arm that forced him to be farmed out last year, but Manager WALT ALTON wasn't enthusiastic.

"CLEM LABINE would like to be a starter, too, but that doesn't mean he's going to be," said Alton. . . . BOB HARRISON, who struck out 270 for Wichita of the Western League, fanned four during three scoreless innings in a Baltimore Orioles camp game.

GEORGE (RED) MUNGER, former Cardinal trying a comeback at Pittsburgh, signed with the Pirates. . . . RED MURF, 33, Texas League well-seasoned rookie, impressed Manager CHARLEY GRIMM of Milwaukee.

BOB GRIM signed with the Yankees, taking a reported $1000 cut to $12,000. St. Louisan CHUCK DIERING accepted Baltimore salary terms. . . . Although unsigned ROY SIEVERS of St. Louis generally is figured to be MICKEY VERNON's first base successor at Washington.

CHUCK DRESSEN indicated bonus baby HARMON KILLEBREW would be given a trial at the bat.

Dude Clark, Former Fighter, Dies at 72

DALLAS, Feb. 29 (AP)—Henry Thomas (Duke) Clark, 72, who fought such ring notables as Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Battling Nelson, Ad Wolgast, Billy Papke and Billy Miske, died here yesterday.

He was found dead in bed at the rooming house where he stayed. He had been in ill health for some time.

Clark, a veteran of the Spanish-American and World War I, did most of his fighting after the turn of the century, working mostly as a middleweight.

A faded scrapbook told of his ring career and how he won decisions over Papke, O'Brien, Nelson and Wolgast and fought a draw with Miske.

Clark worked for the city of Dallas for over 30 years and was retired on a pension.

Hawks' Hannum a Rare Bird; Feels He Owes Lot to Sport

By Harold Flachsbart

It's a small world after all, when you consider the case of Alex Hannum, one of the "big" men in pro basketball who plays the game for the love of it and is a defensive bulwark for the Hawks, fighting tooth and nail for a place in the post-season N.B.A. playoffs. From Oshkosh to Los Angeles to Syracuse to Rochester to Milwaukee and St. Louis.

A lot of fans give Hannum the razzberries when he goes into the thick of the battle to relieve some of the other "big boys" in the Hawk picture, but perhaps they don't know that the balding Alex, a former University of Southern California star, is more or less going through those motions just for "fun."

Hannum owns some five apartment units in Los Angeles, he has a thriving construction business, lives on "Hannum Drive." But "I like basketball," says the veteran Hawk player, "and when I'm too old for the N.B.A., I'll still be in basketball in one way or another."

Broke In With Oshkosh. Coach Red Holzman, about one foot shorter than the 6-7½ Hannum, highly praises the least-heralded member of the Hawks—the guy his teammates like to call "82 years old." "He's a big defensive help always," said Holzman, after a snowy re-opens from Fort Wayne, "a good holler guy and certainly an unselfish player in the matter of shooting."

Alex's college career was interrupted by a call by Uncle Sam, and that's why he was ineligible as a senior after playing in the U.S.C. basketball at U.S.C. A big man, he went to pro ball with Oshkosh in the now-defunct National League in 1948-49, and he doesn't mind mentioning that salaries were good in those days, what with two leagues bidding for players.

"Good Ol' Oshkosh folded," relates Hannum a tempering influence on the younger Hawk players, "and it took me nine years to get my four-year degree in college." (That's because he went three summers, after years in service, to finish his final year.)

But the experience was wonderful, in a financial way. Hannum was able to purchase property, as he attended U.S.C., including a two-unit apartment, another triplex, which he built himself. And he's been busy ever since the war years working in the construction business, painting, plastering and in helping in plumbing and tiling. He's trying to learn it all.

"No. 6" of the Hawks belongs to the carpenter's union and he's had lots of other experience in other building moves.

"Basketball has been part of my life since I've been 14 years old," said Hannum, a big helper with the first-year Hawks and definitely a coaching possibility of the future. "I'm going to stick with it, and I'm sure I can help somewhere."

Paying Back to the Game. He's helped the Hawks to the extent of 10 and 12 points a game recently with corner shots and a couple of unexpected lay-ups, and Holzman and Owner

Ben Kerner are his strongest rooters.

And from Hannum: "Basketball has done everything in the world for me. I never would have been able to go to college without a basketball scholarship. It's a stake in life for me and since the game has treated me good, I'm going to give it everything I have."

Hannum's Hawks will play Rochester in a most important game, involving St. Louis's play-off chances, tomorrow night at the Washington University Field House at 8:30.

16 Horses May Go to Post in Anita's Derby

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 29 (AP)—So wide open is the race for 3-year-old honors at the Santa Anita meeting that next Saturday's Derby may lure as many as 20 youngsters. Two supplementary nominations have boosted the list to 20, and on the supposition that 16 face the starting gate, the race will be worth $154,800, with the winner netting $107,700.

Original nominees paid $100 to enter the Derby. Miss Nancy Kerr paid $5000 to nominate Family Album, as did Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner to get their Father's Risk into the mile and one-eighth race. If either of these two win the Derby they will get $5000 less than if they were an original nominee—the penalty of getting in late.

Saturday's field will come from such as Terrang, Like Magic, Social Climber, Count Chic, Blen Host, Fethard, More Glory, Family Album, Neva T. Placer, Document, Nearly, Forthebest, Royal Melody, The Chaplain, The Great Man, Prince of Greine, Eddie Schmidt, Father's Alibi, and Lucky G. L.

Johnny Longden's mount in the derby is undecided right now, and he faces a decision. At 46, "Grandpa" Longden is having a big year, and Eddie Arcazo says he can't remember when Johnny was riding better than right now. Longden has ridden four winners of the Santa Anita Handicap and four Derby winners, and the horse he rides Saturday will be a contender—or figures to be.

Starting with the first derby, back in 1935, the winners in order have been Gillie, He Did, Fairy Hill, Stagehand, Cienega (the only filly to win it), Sweepida, Porter's Cap, Bymeabond, Knockdown, On Trust, Salmagundi, Old Rockport, Your Host, Rough'n Tumble, Hill Gail, Chanlea, Determine and Swaps.

Hill Gail, Determine and Swaps then went on to win the Kentucky Derby. There were no races in the war years.

X-ray pictures taken of the left forefoot of Turk's Delight, who finished second in the handicap last Saturday to Bobby Brocato, showed that a small bone was broken. Turk's Delight will be out of action for months, but eventually he'll come back to the races.

BALTIMORE TRANSIT SYSTEM
SEIZURE IS VOTED BY HOUSE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 29 (AP)—A switch of votes by many delegates put state seizure and operation of the strike-bound Baltimore Transit Co. up to the Maryland Senate today.

The House responded begrudgingly last night to repeated pleas that it "do something" to end the strike which has continued for 31 days.

Delegates after debate arose during an hour-long debate to announce he is against the seizure principle, but was going to vote for it as the only apparent way to end the deadlock between the striking drivers and management.

Just 24 hours before, the bill had failed 51-53. At the start of reconsideration last night, it had only 58 votes. When it was all over, there were 82 votes to pass it.

URGES EVENTUAL ABANDONMENT OF OLD PRISON

Director Carter Tells Committee Penitentiary Should Be Outside Jefferson City.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 29—Eventual abandonment of the Missouri Penitentiary here and establishment of a decentralized penal system in the state should be the ultimate goal in modernization of the system, James D. Carter, director of corrections, said yesterday.

Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee on his request for $20,508,000 of the $75,000,000 state building bond issue, Carter said:

"I hope to lock the door on the present institution in 15 or 20 years and turn the keys back to the state."

"All penal institutions should be located outside city limits. People feel frightened about having a penitentiary right on the city streets, as is the case here."

Disposal of Old Prison.

Asked by one of the committee members what could be done with the present institution, if decentralization were effected, Carter said he supposed the property could be sold to some industrial firm.

Carter and Willard G. Reed, a construction consultant hired by the state to assist in rehabilitating the penal system, were interrogated by the appropriations committee all day yesterday.

Committee members questioned the actual need for sums asked by Carter for repairs to buildings at the penitentiary. Carter invited the membership of the committee and any other Legislators interested to make a personal inspection of the prison and see for themselves the necessity.

The penitentiary was extensively damaged in riots in 1954 in which several persons were killed and many injured.

Chairman Joseph W. Martino (Dem.), St. Louis, and other members of the committee visited the penitentiary today.

Suggests Location.

Carter said the proposed new $13,000,000 medium security prison is urgently needed. He said it should be on a site 200 acres in area "within a radius of 25 miles from Jefferson City."

Because of the overcrowded conditions at the present penitentiary, it is impossible to have an adequate rehabilitation program, or segregate prisoners properly, he said.

A bill providing for a commission to select a site for a medium security prison, as recommended by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in his message to the Legislature, was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senators Floyd Gibson of Kansas City, majority floor leader, and Edward V. Long of Clarksville, president pro tem.

As proposed, the commission would be composed of the director of corrections, two Senators, two Representatives and two citizens appointed by the Governor.

The Senate Appropriations Committee today planned to work out an itinerary for its tour of inspection of the 23 institutions, penal, eleemosynary and higher educational, which are eligible to receive and have requested allotments of the bond issue funds.

Tour Authorized.

The committee's tour of inspection of the institutions to gain first-hand information on the needs was authorized in a resolution adopted in the Senate yesterday.

Senator John W. Noble (Dem.), Kennett, committee chairman, said following a brief meeting yesterday that the committee plans to start visiting the institutions next week. He estimated the inspection tour would take about three weeks.

House Speaker Roy Hamlin yesterday appointed a five-member interim committee, authorized in a resolution adopted in the House, to make a comparative study of Missouri's tax structure and those of other states and report to the next regular session of the Legislature.

Members of the committee are: Representatives Thomas D. Graham (Dem.), Jefferson City, chairman; Thomas A. Walsh (Dem.), St. Louis; Wesley McMurray (Dem.), Rutledge; Robert W. Copeland (Rep.), Webster Groves, and Luther Arnold (Rep.), Reeds Spring.

FERGUSON VOTES APRIL 3
ON $840,000 BOND ISSUE

An $840,000 municipal bond issue proposal will be submitted to Ferguson voters in the city's municipal elections April 3. The City Council last night approved an ordinance calling for inclusion of the eight-part proposal in the election.

Seven of the propositions will be for issuance of general obligation bonds totaling $690,000, each needing a two-thirds majority to pass. The eighth is for issuance of $150,000 in revenue bonds and a four-sevenths majority for passage is needed. Taxes would be increased if the bonds are voted, City Manager Robert C. Storey said.

All but three of the proposals deal with traffic, street and parking improvements. Authorization to construct a city garage and an addition to the library and the purchase and development of three city parks is sought in the bond issue. Payment for the revenue bonds for off-street parking facilities in the business district would be from income from the lots.

ELIZABETH, DUKE HAVE FUN
BUTTING INTO FARM WORK

LONDON, Feb. 29 (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh said last night he and Queen Elizabeth

"got a lot of fun" out of butting into the work of their farm manager.

The Duke told a National Farmers Union dinner that he was supposed to propose a toast to agriculture "but I know less about the subject than anybody else here." He added that four years ago he knew nothing about farming, but since had learned "a bit more about it."

"I am afraid our agent would probably disagree with that remark because both the Queen and I get a lot of fun out of interfering with his work," the Duke said.

KEFAUVER HITS AT TACTICS OF ALABAMA MOBS

People Must Sit Down in Good Faith and Plan, He Declares in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 29 (AP)—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee), said last night "I have nothing but criticism to make of the mobs that have come about in connection with the University of Alabama matter."

He was questioned at a news conference about desegregation in the South as he returned to Wisconsin for more campaigning in the state's presidential primary April 3.

In referring to the "University of Alabama matter," Kefauver spoke of disturbances Feb. 7 when Autherine Lucy, who was the first Negro admitted to the university, attempted to attend classes.

"I can't feel," he said, "that the majority of people in the South want to challenge the Supreme Court."

"The basic improvement is to come by people sitting down in good faith and planning, knowing that they can't succeed from the Supreme Court."

Kefauver, who spent five days in Wisconsin late in January, opened his second visit in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination with an address last night to a labor rally.

He said Republican leaders are attempting to "smear labor and to drive a wedge between organized American labor and other economic groups."

Labor today, he said, is concerned with the welfare of more than its own membership and wants to better the lot of the "small farmer, small business men and the unorganized professional and white collar worker."

He arrived in Wisconsin by plane from Iowa where he campaigned two days in that key farm state. In a speech at Lewis, Ia., yesterday, he charged Secretary of Agriculture Benson and the Eisenhower Administration approached present day farm problems with the "horse and buggy philosophy of 1910." He said the American farmer isn't as well off today as he was 45 years ago.

Kefauver New Hampshire Backers Challenge Stevenson. CONCORD, N.H., Feb. 29 (AP)—Describing Adlai Stevenson as "the candidate who isn't a candidate," supporters of Senator Kefauver today challenged the 1952 Democratic nominee to "drop the mask" in New Hampshire's March 13 presidential primary.

Stevenson backers asserted they have accepted the former Illinois Governor's "decision not to enter the primary." They said they are running a full delegate slate only to prevent Democratic voters from being "frustrated at the polls."

With the nation's first presidential primary of 1956 less than two weeks away, the opposing views came from Thomas J. McIntyre of Laconia, Kefauver's New Hampshire campaign manager, and William L. Dunfee of Durham, who heads organized Stevenson forces in this state.

A slate of delegate candidates "pledged" to Kefauver is opposed on the primary ballot by a slate "favorable" to Stevenson. A pledged delegate must vote for his candidate until released. A favorable delegate is under no commitment.

Kefauver is unopposed in the preference poll. Stevenson refused to permit entry of his name in the poll and has declined to take any part in the campaign.

DALTON OPINION BRINGS PROBLEM TO STATE SCHOOL

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 29 (AP)—A ruling by Attorney General John M. Dalton posed a financial problem yesterday for the State Training School for Girls at Chillicothe.

Dalton held that funds appropriated to the Training School for Negro Girls at Tipton may not be used by the Chillicothe institution after the Negro girls are transferred there about Sept. 1.

W. E. Sears, director of the State Training School Board, raised the question. He said the Legislature had made no provision for the added costs to be borne by the Chillicothe school after the transfer is completed and the Tipton institution is closed.

After the transfer, today's opinion said, the $15 monthly paid by the counties which send the inmates to the training schools will go to the Chillicothe institution instead of the Tipton school.

SCHOEPPEL HEADS G.O.P. SENATE CAMPAIGN GROUP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UP)—Senate Republicans elected Senator Andrew F. Schoepfel of Kansas yesterday to direct their uphill campaign to regain control of the Senate in the election next November.

Schoepfel was chosen at a party conference to replace Senator Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona as chairman of the G.O.P. senatorial campaign committee. Goldwater resigned to take an assignment on the special committee which will investigate illegal and improper efforts to influence the Senate.

Senator Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho was elected a member of the campaign committee to replace Senator Edward J. Thye of Minnesota, who also resigned to be a member of the special committee.

CLYDE L. POWELL DENIES EVADING INCOME TAXES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (UP)—Clyde L. Powell, former St. Louisian who was ousted as head of the Federal Housing Administration's rental housing program, denied yesterday that he evaded federal income taxes from 1945 through 1948. Powell was fired in the housing scandal investigation in 1951.

The Internal Revenue Service says Powell owes $79,913.93 in back taxes for 1945-1948, plus an additional $40,055.42 in fraud penalties and $11,044.29 in penalties for "substantial understatement" of taxes and failure to file estimates of income.

He denied owing the back taxes and appealed the government claims to United States tax court. Powell now lives in Coral Gables, Fla.

BRITAIN TO USE TACTICAL A-BOMB IN A LIMITED WAR

Defense Minister's Talk Seems to Be Part of Build-Up for Russian's Visit.

By DON COOK

LONDON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Defense Minister Sir Walter Monckton, in a wide-ranging review of the British military program for 1956, told the House of Commons yesterday that the British, with their own stock of nuclear weapons, are prepared to use tactical atomic power in a limited war.

Coupled with speeches in the foreign affairs debate Monday from Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, the Defense Minister's speech seemed clearly to be part of a planned British policy build-up for the April visit to London of Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The succession of policy statements and white papers on defense appropriations has now served notice on the Soviet leaders that there will be no relaxing of Britain's defense guard or any "soft thinking" to be exploited or explored here.

Eden told the Russians they were under a "fastidious illusion" if they thought Communism would survive a hydrogen bomb war while capitalism only was destroyed.

Yesterday Monckton had this to say on the limited use of nuclear weapons:

"One cannot be specific in a matter of this kind, but one can imagine circumstances in which local aggression might be dealt with quite effectively by local retaliation. You cannot say that such retaliation might not involve tactical use of atomic weapons, and it does not seem to me inevitable that the use of these weapons in such circumstances would lead to full-scale global war."

"This is to say no more than the doctrine of economy of force, which is the basis of all sound military action, still applies today. Nevertheless, I do not think it would be a practicable policy for any government to define precisely in advance the circumstances in which it would use some weapons and not others."

"Any attempt to make a definition of that kind in advance would hardly be to our advantage. It might indicate to those pondering the question of whether they could take risks, how far they might be able to go without bringing down on themselves the full retaliatory force of the West."

Monckton called it a policy of "graduated deterrence" and said that the use of such a policy would be a calculated risk, the United Press said. British use of a small atomic bomb, he admitted, might be met with a bigger enemy one, the U.P. quoted him as saying.

The defense minister backed up this careful but pointed declaration of military policy with an outline of plans to revamp British military strength in the months ahead into "cold war" forces of "few men better trained, more experienced, more mobile and better armed and equipped."

In the last six months Britain has just about wiped out its old territorial reserve army system, abandoned its anti-aircraft and coastal defense guns forever, and decided to scrap all fleet units which cannot be made ready for sea in a minimum of time.

The basis of the British "new look" is the fact that reserves will count for little in the shock of a future war, while, as the defense minister said yesterday, "we want more volunteers for longer regular service, which is more efficient and less wasteful with the complicated arms and equipment of today."

Monckton admitted to disappointing delays in plane output for the Royal Air Force, but predicted that by the end of 1956 Britain would begin to see results in new squadrons of fighters and bombers.

WHY GIRL, 14, IS MISSING SCHOOL: ON HER HONEYMOON

OXNARD, Calif., Feb. 29 (UP)—Fourteen-year-old Clara Ruth Hartwell had a good excuse for missing school today. She was honeymooning.

Clara Ruth and Bobby Mims, who is 16, were married with their parents' approval Monday here. Then they left for a honeymoon in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Mims quit school in January when he and Clara Ruth announced they planned to marry. A Ruth is in the eighth grade. She plans to return to school after a one-week honeymoon. Mims is looking for work as a truck driver and will attend night school to get a high school diploma.

Land of Corn and Honey. DES MOINES, Ia. (AP)—New statistics show Iowa farms produced an estimated 18,975,000 pounds of honey last year to rank the state third in the nation among commercial honey producers. California and Minnesota exceeded Iowa.

NAVY CHIEF OPPOSES CIVIL DEFENSE DEPT.

Adm. Burke Joins Other Military Leaders Against New Plan.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, today opposed a plan to set up a new civil defense department within the Department of Defense.

To create a civilian defense department along with the Army, Navy and Air Force departments would dilute the military's main effort, he said, and "I believe that civil defense is basically a civilian problem directly affecting our citizens in each local area."

Burke, who set forth these views in testimony prepared for a House government operations subcommittee, thus joined other Pentagon officials in opposition to a bill sponsored by Representative Richman (Rep., New York).

The bill's supporters contend that saving the civilian population should be a basic part of the over-all defense effort in any future war. The current federal-state setup, they say, lacks co-ordination with the military and the priority it deserves.

Burke said a strong civil defense organization is important because—despite efforts of the military services—"a determined enemy on his initial attack" will probably "be successful to some degree."

He said, however, the armed services should not be detracted from their main mission of "active military defense"—the job of defeating the enemy.

BRITAIN PLANS $238,000,000 OUTLAY TO TRAIN SCIENTISTS

LONDON, Feb. 29 (AP)—The British government today announced a plan to spend £85,000,000 ($238,000,000) in the next five years on buildings and equipment for education of scientists and technicians.

Official concern has been expressed both in Britain and the United States recently that the Soviet Union is turning out scientists at a much faster rate than the West.

A government white paper announcing the plan to expand the British technical schools said: "The pace of change is quickening and with it the need and demand for technical education."

GREEK CABINET SWORN IN, HAS FIRST WOMAN MEMBER

ATHENS, Feb. 29 (AP)—Premier Constantine Karamanlis's new cabinet was sworn in before King Paul today.

For the first time in Greek history a woman cabinet member took office. She is Lina Tsaldaris, public welfare minister and widow of the Populist party leader Panayoti Tsaldaris. Other ministers in the new

'CLEAN POLITICS' BILL BACKED BY SENATE LEADERS

Measure Introduced Yesterday Would Require Disclosure of Campaign Gifts.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29—Senate leaders of both parties got behind a "clean politics" bill yesterday which would require candidates for federal office to make full disclosures of campaign contributions.

The measure, introduced by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, had 19 other sponsors, including Senator William F. Knowland of California, the Republican leader.

Neither Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., (Dem.), Missouri, nor Senator Albert Gore, (Dem.), Tennessee, was on the list of sponsors.

Investigation Thwarted.
Hennings was thwarted by the Democratic leadership when he sought to launch his own Senate election subcommittee investigation of the rejected $2500 campaign contribution offered Senator Francis Case, (Rep.) South Dakota, in the recent natural gas bill controversy.

He also considers that he has been thwarted by failure of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee to clear for debate and action the Hennings "clean elections" bill, which has been on the Senate calendar—approved by the Rules Committee—since last June.

It was understood that Hennings' refusal to go along with the new leadership bill, despite Johnson's earlier statement that Hennings had given it his full support, stemmed from the long delay his own bill has suffered.

As for Gore, it was reported that he wanted to await the results of the new Senate inquiry into lobbying and other "improper practices" which has grown out of the Case incident. Gore is expected to be named chairman of an eight-man select committee to make the investigation.

The new leadership measure was described in the Senate by Johnson as "designed to safeguard the interests of our citizens in honest elections."

Major Provisions.
Major provisions of the bill: 1. All candidates for federal elective office (but not for primary elections) would be required to report all contributions and spending in excess of $100 to both houses of Congress and to their local United States district court.

2. All contributions from individuals up to $100 would be deductible for income tax purposes.

3. No "special" committee formed in behalf of a candidate, such as a citizens committee or a veterans committee, could collect or spend money without written authorization from the candidate. These special committees, which have mushroomed because of unrealistic spending limits imposed on the regular party committees by present law, would be required to report their financial transactions on the same basis as the candidate.

4. All individuals who contribute more than $5000 a year to federal election campaigns would have to file a consolidated report on their contributions. This would presumably offer easy tabulation of the total contributions across state lines made by wealthy persons to more than one candidate.

Spending Limits.
5. Spending limits for major political committees, state and interstate, would be raised from the present $3,000,000 to roughly $12,000,000. Senate candidates could spend at least $75,000 or a higher amount equal to 20 cents for every vote cast in any state election held in the four previous years. In New York, this would mean a spending limit for each senatorial candidate of about $1,260,000. House candidates would have a minimum limit of $15,000 and a maximum of 20 cents per voter.

The Johnson-Knowland bill would also allow the radio-TV networks to grant equal and free time to presidential candidates of the major parties, present law requires free and equal time for all presidential candidates, not just "major" ones, thus greatly inhibiting any free time at all.

ENVOY SAYS BRITAIN CAN'T ACCEPT FULL FEDERATION

ROME, Feb. 29 (AP)—British Ambassador Sir Ashley Clarke said yesterday Britain cannot "accept the path of full federation" for Europe.

He spoke at a panel of the European Study Week dedicated to Pope Pius XII on the occasion of his forthcoming eightieth birthday.

Clarke said he recognized that some of the British dominions and some Americans favor full federation.

"What they (Americans) do not always understand," he said, "is that a federation of states with a common origin, particularly racial, and with a few quite recent common traditions is a different matter from amalgamating a number of states with different racial origins, infinitely rich national traditions and a long history."

Clifford Odets Arrested.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Feb. 29 (AP)—Playwright Clifford Odets was arrested yesterday on misdemeanor charges of drunk driving and leaving the scene of an accident. He spent nine hours in jail before posting $203 bail. Police say Odets' car rammed a parked car. No one was injured.

CZECHS REFUSE U.S. FOOD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia has turned down an American offer of food to help overcome distress caused by Europe's coldest winter of the century.

It was learned yesterday that the United States embassy in Prague has reported to the State Department that the Czech Foreign Office said that country had no need of American help.

Several Western European countries already are receiving help. The offer was made to four countries behind the Iron Curtain. Officials said Prague was the first Communist capital to be heard from.

TRIUMPH OVER TOOTH DECAY

Crest Toothpaste with Fluoristan strengthens tooth enamel to lock out decay from within

Fluoristan is Procter & Gamble's exclusive fluoride compound—far superior to fluoride alone

Miracle of the Towns Without Toothaches. For years, children growing up in certain Western towns were virtually without cavities. Then science learned why: nature's decay-preventive, fluoride, was present in their drinking water!

Science Long Tried to Capture Fluoride—only medically approved preventive of decay—in a toothpaste. At last, university scientists and Procter & Gamble found the answer: Fluoristan, exclusive fluoride compound, far superior to fluoride alone.

Fluoristan Makes Possible Crest—world's greatest weapon against tooth decay. Unless you get Fluoristan, you cannot get maximum protection against tooth decay with a toothpaste. Protects permanent teeth of adults and of children, six and over.

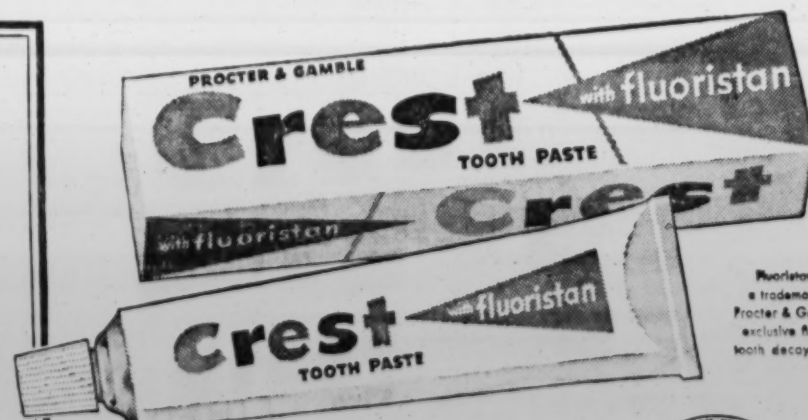

Dentists Tested Crest for three years, on 5,673 people. Crest set records of decay prevention never equalled by any other toothpaste. And Crest blocks out bad breath as it locks out decay... helps keep teeth white. You'll love refreshing Crest!

IMPORTANT

Crest with Fluoristan is the only toothpaste ever developed that makes possible a major reduction in tooth decay, for people of all ages. Thereby, Crest marks the turning point in man's age-old struggle against this almost universal disease.

Instead of waiting helplessly for cavities to strike, Crest now makes it possible for you to build strong defenses against decay within teeth themselves... to actually fortify teeth so that they turn back the destructive attacks of decay (as opposed to the old-fashioned method of depositing a temporary coating of protection on the surface of teeth). With Crest, your family approaches the long dreamed-of day of healthy, decay-free teeth.

Fluoristan is a trademark of Procter & Gamble's exclusive fluoride tooth decay fighter

2 EX-EMPLOYEES OF U.S. MUM IN INQUIRY ON REDS

Women Refuse to Answer House Group's Queries on Alleged Communist Ties.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29 (AP)—Two women witnesses did little talking before the House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday when asked about alleged Communist activities.

Committee Chairman Walter, (Dem.), of Pennsylvania, said he would move for possible perjury proceedings against Mrs. Helen Hill, who was listed as swearing to the House group in 1954 that she was never a Communist.

Mrs. Hill, of Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Selma Rein, of Washington, invoked the Fifth Amendment in declining to say whether they are now Communists.

They invoked the same constitutional guarantee against forced self-incrimination when questioned about alleged Red connections in government. Mrs. Hill as identified as a National Labor Relations Board employee until 1954, Mrs. Rein as a Social Security Board employee until 1946.

Invokes Privileges 60 Times... Mrs. Hill quietly invoked the nearest privilege more than 60 times—just about as fast as the committee peppered her with questions.

Wasn't it a fact, Committee Counsel Richard Arens asked, that she appeared before the House group in closed session May 14, 1954, and July 28, 1955? Mrs. Hill declined to say. "I state it as a fact, and I ask you to confirm or deny that it is a fact," Arens continued, that May 14, 1954, she was asked "have you ever been a member of the Communist party?" and she replied "No, I have not."

Again, Mrs. Hill invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Arens said she had been identified by two other witnesses as a Communist in past years. He said she was "suspended from duty in the interests of national security" April 27, 1954, as associate chief of the NLRB's statistical analysis branch.

Mrs. Hill finally did say that she was born in Ephrata, Wash., and that her education included attendance at Franklin High School, Seattle, and the University of Washington.

She said she's now a housewife. Her husband was identified as Jerry Hill, operator of tree nursery in Arlington, a Washington suburb.

Wife of Washington Lawyer... Mrs. Rein said she was born in New York City and graduated from Brooklyn College in 1933.

She said she was a statistician and researcher on various Works Progress Administration projects in New York in 1934-37. She said she came to Washington in 1937 and from then to 1946 worked in similar posts for the Labor Department, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the NLRB, the Social Security Board, a special House committee on interstate migration and the Farm Security Administration.

Mrs. Rein invoked the Fifth Amendment for such question as these from Arens: "I put it to you as a fact, and ask you to confirm or deny the fact, that in 1946 you served in a Communist party cell in which Mr. Herbert Fuchs (an admitted former Communist) was a member."

BRAZILIAN MINE IS MISSING HALF A TON OF GOLD DUST

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 29 (AP)—Mining circles here reported yesterday that the Morrow Velho mine owners are investigating disappearance of about half a ton of gold dust from their property in the last 15 years.

Some mine executives reportedly arranged for sale of the dust privately instead of including it with the gold refined and stamped for shipping. It is understood the loss of the gold dust was reported by employees who had been promised a share of the profit from its sale and never were paid.

There was no immediate estimate of the value of the dust. The international price for refined gold for currency is $35 an ounce.

U. N. EMBARGO ON RED CHINA TRADE TERMED A FAILURE

TOKYO, Feb. 29 (AP)—A Japanese newsman stationed in Peiping said today the United Nations' embargo of strategic goods to Red China "has certainly failed in its primary objective of checking the nation's economic construction."

While the bar undoubtedly has hampered China's foreign trade to a considerable degree, he said, it apparently has helped to strengthen ties between the Soviet Union and Peiping.

The analysis was made by Konichiro Yorioka of Kyodo News Service. He said Communist China's trade with Russia "has suddenly expanded since the embargo was established in 1951."

'GENTLEMAN' FACES WORK

CHICAGO, Feb. 29 (UP)—Sidney Francis was sentenced to three years in prison yesterday for convincing a co-worker he had inherited $1,000,000.

Francis pleaded guilty of mulcting $25,122 from Ewart Emms in a 14-year period by telling him he needed the money to tide him over until he got his father's bequest. Francis convinced Emms that according to his father's will he "couldn't work—must always be a gentleman."

G.I. WHO LEFT TO GAMBLE AT RENO ORDERED TO RETURN

TRENTON, N.J., Feb. 29 (AP)—An Ohio soldier who went A.W.O.L. to try his luck at roulette and never came back because the Army reported he wasn't being sought as a deserter, was ordered yesterday to make up his lost enlistment time.

United States District Judge Philip Forman ruled that Robert Parsley should have checked further when the Army gave him a "not wanted" report.

We congratulate General Motors Dealers

for their determination to deliver the finest service in the automobile industry

One of 30 Training Centers built by General Motors and staffed with specially trained instructors

THIS IS THE STORY of a cooperative venture in which General Motors and the dealers who sell GM cars are working together in perfect harmony.

There is nothing else like it, anywhere in the automobile industry.

Never before has a manufacturer provided training facilities for more than 20,000 mechanics and other dealer personnel each month.

And never before has any dealer organization invested as much in the training of mechanics, and the improvement of service facilities.

These are enthusiastic statements, amply supported by letters from dealers. And it has all happened in the past 12 months.

You see, in recent years General Motors cars have blossomed forth with a steady parade of advanced engineering features—which undoubtedly is a big reason why GM cars, and GM dealers, lead the industry in sales.

But when factory engineers develop continual advances in high-compression engines—when they step up the smoothness of automatic transmissions—when they discover ways to make better and better power brakes and power steering—and a long list of other safety and convenience features—it becomes important for dealers' mechanics to keep abreast of the parade.

All of which called for some pioneering—so we tackled the job.

General Motors built and equipped 30

Training Centers—and staffed them with specially trained instructors and everything that it takes to provide skilled mechanics with expert training in the design, operation and service of these new advances.

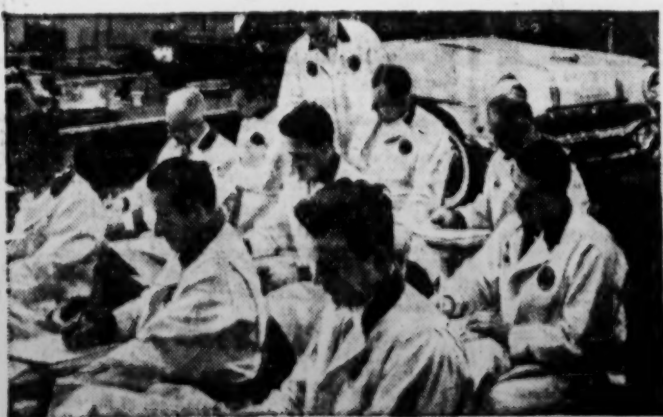

Our offer was: We provide the training—you provide the "students," which involved paying the expenses of every mechanic who receives this training.

And as soon as the program was announced, dealers recognized this as a way to provide their customers with a brand of service which no one had been able to deliver before.

Now the building program is complete—and 30 Training Centers are operating throughout the country—and, as we have said, dealer mechanics are enrolling by the thousands.

It's an impressive example of cooperation between the manufacturer who builds the cars—and the dealers who sell them.

Both of us know that the best way to deserve success is to go all out in keeping customers happy.

EISENHOWER'S CANDIDACY
SPURS STOCKS

Prices Rise Moderately on Big Volume but Profit-Taking Brings Lower Close.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP)—The stock market bounded ahead in heavy trading today when President Eisenhower said he would run again, but it turned back and closed lower.

The rise carried prices up 1 to 3 points at the best. At the final bell the leaders were fractions higher and around 2 points lower with a few higher priced issues off between 2 and 4 points.

A lot of the selling was attributed to those who bought stocks a number of days ago in anticipation of the gradual rise that has been underway for the past two weeks. Basis for the advance was the hope that Eisenhower would stand for a second term. Selling today turned a profit into a loss.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell back 50 cents at $179.10. At noon the average was up $1.40. The industrial component lost $1.10, railroads held unchanged, while the utilities were off 20 points.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 2.86 points lower at 483.65 at the close. The 20 railroads dropped .45 of a point to 159.62 and the 15 utilities lost .23 at 65.93.

There were 1201 individual issues traded of which 457 advanced and 495 declined with 54 new highs and nine new lows for 1955-56.

Trading was exceedingly heavy and came to an aggregate 3,900,000 shares for the day, the biggest volume since 5,500,000 shares was traded Sept. 27, the second day of the Eisenhower heart attack reaction. Yesterday's total was 2,540,000 shares.

Wave of Buying. The President's "yes" brought on a wave of buying that swamped the tape and ended it behind as much as 19 minutes in reporting what was happening on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

There was a lag of that magnitude on Sept. 27, but there hasn't been a greater jam on the ticker since the outbreak of the Korean war in 1950.

Among the best acting stocks were Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, New York Central, Standard Oil (N.J.), Kennecott, General Electric, Boeing, Cities Service, Allied Chemical, and Mack Trucks.

Strong for 2 Weeks. The stock market has been strong for the past two weeks, and brokers contended that the rise discredited today's presidential decision.

There was a concerted rush of buying and selling from the opening bell, and the tape was late for most of the first two and a half hours with trading lagging at 19 minutes to the greatest lag.

Trading attention was centered on the seasoned favorites in the steels, motors, coppers, rails, oils, chemicals, and the aircrafts.

Profit-taking was evident among traders who had bought stocks several weeks ago and rode up with the Eisenhower enthusiasm. That type of selling, however, was well absorbed.

Gain in Average. At noon, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.40 at $179.10.

That put the average only 50 cents under the historic high point reached Sept. 23 just before the President's heart attack. The market then plunged into a reaction but recovered with equal swiftness. The average again reached $181.50 on Dec. 5 and held there Dec. 6.

There has been a lot of indecision in the stock market since the first of the year, but in recent weeks the entire market improved as the Street became convinced that the President intended to run again.

The market marked time the first two days this week while waiting for the President to speak.

STOCKS, BUSINESS AND ELECTIONS

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP).

ELECTIONS—and election uncertainties—always give business a certain amount of the jitters. And this year the stock market has been particularly quick to respond to political predictions.

But the old belief that business—as distinct from stock trading—slows down in an election year to await results may have to be revised. In several of the more recent election years the opposite has happened.

And while many businessmen this year are particularly nervous lest something happen politically that would rock the boat and upset the current neat balance of good times, probably as many others believe that business activity will continue at a high clip despite all the political hullabaloo in coming months.

THE PRESIDENT'S DECISION should clear the air—as far as stock trading is concerned. But its effect on business should be very slight for awhile, many businessmen hold. Their argument is that business activity is already so high that it couldn't go much higher right away no matter how "good" the news seems. Nor could "bad" news have immediate effect. As the political fortunes see-saw in coming months there could be considerable changing in that intangible thing called "business confidence." But if that brings a shift in business planning for the future, the effects of the new planning wouldn't show up in the general economy for months.

SOME BUSINESSMEN, HOWEVER, are a little more sensitive this election year than others. They feel that business has been a trial politically as well as in the market place, since many business leaders were taken to Washington for the avowed aim of giving the Government the advantage of business ideas. They are, therefore, quite anxious about the electorate's reaction and judgment. Others stress that in this particular election year a long-lived business boom is especially dependent on confidence.

BUT OTHERS POINT OUT THAT INCREASINGLY of recent years the Presidential election has given little evidence of being the important factor in which way business activity went. They note that stock prices rose after the elections of Coolidge and Hoover and after the first, second and fourth elections of Truman but rose again by the end of that year. Stock prices were rising with the Eisenhower election but later started a long slide downward, only to begin climbing again a year later.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY ROSE during the campaigns preceding the elections of Coolidge and Hoover and the second and third elections of Roosevelt. It rose before the Truman election, sliding off afterwards, and rose before the Eisenhower election, starting down the following summer. About all you can conclude from these examples is that political ups and downs can have quick reflection in the stock market, but that other factors—war, peace, or long-term economic adjustments—have much more weight with business activity. One reason, perhaps, is that business planning can't be as emotional as stock trading and that, consequently, buying—a major factor just now—isn't affected very much by political harangues.

There'll be lots of excitement now that the political campaign is beginning to take form. But if business goes up or down a little, note what other factors may be involved.

NERVOUS AND ERRATIC MARKET FOR GRAINS

CHICAGO, Feb. 29 (AP)—In an erratic and nervous market, grain prices closed with scattered gains and losses on the Board of Trade today. Dealings were fairly active, but not exceptionally so.

Prices were lower in all pits early. A rally following announcement of President Eisenhower's second term decision carried some contracts above the previous close. A highly irregular trend set in late in the day.

Old crop wheat futures held firm while new crop months had a weak tone. Rye was strong. Old crop soybeans remained steady but the new crop months fell several cents. Feed grains were mixed.

Prior to the close notices were received of intentions to deliver 3,249,000 bushels of corn, 1,135,000 bushels of oats and 1,720,000 bushels of soybeans on March futures tomorrow.

Wheat closed 1 1/2¢ lower to 1 1/4¢ higher; corn 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ lower; oats 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ lower; rye 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ higher; soybeans 3/4¢ to 1/2¢ lower.

EISENHOWER AT HISTORIC CONFERENCE

President Eisenhower answering a reporter's question at his record-capacity news conference in Washington today. Seconds later the President announced to the tense group of correspondents that he would run for a second term—ending the long period of indecision which followed his heart attack Sept. 24. The dramatic announcement had been expected at the conference, but there was no certainty that it would come. The President tantalized the reporters by talking first about various other subjects, then announced his decision, saying that he would go before the people on TV-radio networks tonight and tell them the facts. At right, Senator William Knowland talks with reporters after word of the President's decision was flashed to the Capitol. Knowland, Senate minority leader, had announced he would be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in the event Mr. Eisenhower decided not to seek re-election. —Associated Press Wirephotos.

Senator Estes Kefauver, campaigning in Milwaukee for the Democratic Presidential nomination, reads a newspaper report of President Eisenhower's statement. Stevenson said that the main campaign issue will be the policies and record of the Eisenhower administration. Cheerful note came from former President Harry Truman in Kansas City. Not Like 40

He Finds It's Great To Be Alive at 45

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Feb. 29 (AP).

USED to worry that when I became 45 years old teen-agers would stop me in the street with the request:

HAL BOYLE

"Old man, say something wise." I needn't have worried. When you're 45, the average teen-ager doesn't seek you out for your wisdom, perhaps because he figures anything you know is already out of date. On the other hand, he doesn't bother to laugh at you either. The truth is he doesn't know whether you're alive. However, somewhat to my surprise, I felt very much alive the other morning when I awoke to find I had reached my forty-fifth milestone.

Unlike my fortieth birthday, a time of true horror, I felt no urge to draw up a new will, or lie covering in bed, afraid that if I got up I might fall apart by nightfall.

AS I SHAVED myself before the bathroom mirror on my fortieth birthday, my hand shook to see the ravages time had wrought. But on my forty-fifth birthday I performed this chore humming, cheered by the fact so much of the old ruin still remained. Though much had been taken, much abided—particularly around the stomach. Though I might not be able to throw a football 50 yards, I sure threw an important-looking silhouette. There was one big disappointment in the day, however. In earlier years I started the custom of kissing all the girls in the office on my birthday. On my forty-fifth birthday I got only one kiss. Only one girl showed up—a new girl. All the old girls stayed home from work. I guess there must have been a virus going around, or something.

AT 40 A DARK TUNNEL of terror descends on many men. They see the brightness of youth departing and before them only the black nightmare of age. But by 45 a man can see light at the other end of the tunnel. He makes his compromise with time. He no longer is panic-stricken at the thought of being middle-aged. He no longer is wistfully envious of the young. He finds life holds a new freshness in his Indian summer prime.

It is a good thing for a man at five-year intervals to discard the things he no longer needs or has outgrown. At the age of five I quit tidilywinks, at 10 skipping rope, at 15 marbles. At 20 I made a great resolve and gave up women forever, but recanted—the next day.

At 25 I gave up high diving, at 30 baseball. At 35 I started giving up (reluctantly) my hair.

AT 40 I DARN NEAR gave up hope, but now I do believe I have it back again. There are a lot of things at 45 I perhaps ought to give up, but I finally decided it would be table tennis. Whoever really learned anything lastingly important while batting a ping-pong ball around? Gin rummy is far more educating, and is played in a more civilized posture. At 45 a man finds new consolations. He goes through a change of faith. He loses his confidence in hair restorers but this is replaced by a belief that if he wears a hat at least he won't catch cold in winter. The old friends he has remaining he holds doubly dear. The realization that every year there are fewer people in the world who would actually lend him money makes him treasure those still left.

HE FINDS that women have improved tremendously. At 19, he remembers, all the girls he met seemed vain and silly. But now the ones he meets seem charming, witty and full of commonsense information on interesting topics such as how to cure arthritis and what to do about varicose veins. The fact the only girls he meets are grandmothers has nothing to do with it.

Best of all, at 45 a man finds his wife appreciates him more than in the days when he was a young romantic lover.

"Here, you big oaf, I'll move that sofa," she murmurs tenderly. "You might strain your heart. I don't want to have to break in another husband in my lifetime."

She brings him his slippers and a hot toddy, and the big oaf, sitting comfortably reading his newspaper and lulled by the dim slow music of his hardening arteries, wonders idly why a man would ever want to be any age but 45.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

WHEN is a boy a "boy-friend"?

If a boy never dates a girl, never telephones her and never goes to her home to see her—is he her boy-friend? A teen-ager seems to think so. Here is her letter:

I'd like your help with this problem. My boy friend never asks me for a date. He doesn't even invite me to a movie or offer me anything when his friends will buy me anything I want. Maybe if he would call me I'd feel better. I ask him over a lot, but he always has an excuse and can't come.

A.—If this boy has never done any of the things a boy-friend does and has never treated you as a boy-friend usually does . . . where did you get the idea that you are a two-some?

Even if he's friendly in school or at parties or at church or in your neighborhood, he just doesn't qualify as a "boy-friend."

Sorry, but it sounds as if you're a doll who is merely date-dreaming about a guy . . . taking too much for granted about a boy who may be friendly, but doesn't consider himself your special boy-friend at all.

It would be better to think of him as just a friend and treat him like one until he begins to act like a boy-friend. Meanwhile, it's silly to give up knowing other boys for the sake of this boy who is not really your boy-friend at all.

Why not get acquainted with others? Have fun with other boys and date them, if you're allowed to have dates. When this boy has competition, maybe he'll be more attentive. If not, you'll be smart to forget him and spend your date-time with other boys.

HAVE you noticed that no matter how low you may have turned down your TV set, the commercials come through with a blare that all but tears off your ears? E. M. Johnson gave a likely explanation to members of the Los Angeles Ad Club. Sponsors, he seems, got hep to the fact that many of you flee to the kitchen or bathroom when the commercial begins, so now they make darned sure that you hear them even there.

A SHREWISH WIFE up Barnstable way was heard by a neighbor demanding of her poor husband, "Well, don't just stand there! Answer me! Are you a man or a mouse? Squeak up!"

Ensemble Themes for Spring

By Sylvia Stiles

SPRING shopping has been simplified because of the many complete ensembles available in the St. Louis stores. Co-ordinated costumes consisting of dresses and full-length coats or dresses and jackets are numerous, and range in price from $17.99 to original models quoted at several hundred dollars. Materials and colors vary, but the lightweight woolsens and the blends of silk and cotton or synthetics and cottons predominate. There is emphasis upon the type of ensemble that may be worn comfortably throughout the spring and summer. Illustrated are styles available:

1—The coolie type of coat with standing collar and with slits at the side seams is a favorite for spring. Model shown is made of a rayon that looks like linen. It is allied with a Chinese silk printed dress that is slim of line and has standing collar. Coat may be obtained in toast shade and dress in a printed pattern combining orange and brown, or an all-ance of turquoise blue with a blue and olive green print may be chosen. Costume is available in sizes from 10 to 16 inclusive.

2—This fitted coat with plastron effect at the front is made of a blend of silk and cotton in a herringbone weave. The dress with neckline that ties in a flattering bow is of a printed silk featuring a tiny red pattern on navy background. Coat is lined with the same printed fabric. Skirt of the dress is gently flared. Sizes are from 10 to 16.

3—Rayon and cotton tweed material is used for both the coat and dress of this ensemble. The coat has a rounded shoulder, gathers at the back of the neckline, and slits at the side seams to give the Mandarin emphasis. Slim dress with low round neckline has a red silk sash that wraps the waistline and ties at the side.

4—A hip length jacket of navy and white pin checked woolen is combined with a silk and cotton herringbone fabric in the design of this costume. Jacket has rounded shoulders, tab detailing on the three-quarter length sleeves and a low-placed band extending from the neck and across the back to suggest a belt. The tab accent of the coat is repeated at the neckline of the dress which has a white binding. Sizes range from 10 through 18.

5—A duster type of coat made of a rayon fabric in linen weave has printed lining to match the dress.

Lining and dress material is a polished cotton. Deep cuffs and a rolling collar of the coat feature the printed material. Sheath dress has a low, shaped neckline, brief sleeves, and skirt pockets at an angle. Inexpensively priced, the costume may be obtained in sizes from 10 to 18.

6—An acetate fabric that features a rough shantung weave is used both for coat and dress of this ensemble, which is available in navy blue shade and sizes from 10 to 18. Straightline coat with Peter Pan collar fastens with one button. Large pockets break the severity of the straight lines of the silhouette. Dress that will be suitable for many occasions during the spring and summer has a low, round neckline with a yoke effect and a tiny string tie. Waistline is fitted with darts so that no belt is needed. Dress has a walking pleat at the back.

How to Judge the Quality of Love

By Fulton J. Sheen

LOVE can be so deep in the soul that it cannot find ways to express itself. It takes on the character of the ineffable—it then is "too deep for words." Profound love is inexpressible. No sign, no symbol, no utterance can adequately represent it. That is why the Third Person of the Blessed Trinity, who is love as the Father and the Son is truth, cannot be described as well as the other two Divine Persons.

Nor are symbols adequate, such as a dove. Even the human heart in its seizure of love at its purest moment partakes of the ineffable character of the love within the nature of the Godhead.

If this be pure love—and few there are who have it—then the question arises: How judge the quality of love which we have for anyone at any given moment?

The criterion is the number of supports or allies or props that are necessary to sustain it and keep it alive. A husband and wife boast of love because they say its foundation is a common love of antiques or music or tennis, or the pleasure which one gives the other, or because of the thrill in the exchange of egotisms, or because they are both interested in doing volunteer work for the cause of Soviet-American friendship.

IN EACH CASE, the basis of love is something external to both, though in one instance there may be the illusion that one loves the other, but this is rather because of the love of the pleasure, rather than the love of person.

It is possible to test the purity of love. When sickness, disease, loss of fortune, divergence of interests, the becoming used to gratitude, or the taking on of new alliances come to test love—then it is possible to know whether the love for another person is really deep in the heart.

If the other person is loved as a person, nothing can disturb the bond—not even infidelity of the other party will destroy it as God does not cease to love us because we abandon Him, nor the sun refuse to shine because we walk out of its light. The father did not abandon the prodigal son because he left the paternal home; the father was on the roadway when he came home. If a husband were suffering from pneumonia or a virus infection, the wife would not desert him; the love that endures through a physical sickness can also endure through a moral sickness such as infidelity. The body does not desert the eye when it loses its vision through a speck in it, so neither does one half of the flesh desert the other half of the flesh, because there is some infection for the spirit in one half the unity.

THE ABILITY to transcend and to remain true in the face of disaster; the courage to love when one is not loved in return; the fortitude to resist external dangers without surrender—these are the mark of pure love.

But that kind of adhesion and fidelity in the midst of trial is possible because one has an alliance with eternity. The human heart cannot endure trial without a support. When the temporal and carnal supports fail, everything collapses until the heart relies on the spiritual and external support of love which is too deep for words to express and too profound for the errors and follies of times to destroy. In this sense, one speaks of the unconditional love of saints—because they drink directly from the source of love.

IF OUR human loves and affections do break down under strain, it is because they have no other basis than the flesh which nourishes them. They are the spans of bridges resting on the waters, which are incapable over a long period of time of resting on the firm. But when the span is put on the solid basis of divine love, the currents can flow, but the bridge of love remains.

It is not necessary that the carnal or erotic love fail before one realizes that truth of the pure love. Rather, when the pure love is recognized then does the carnal love reach its highest peak of enjoyment. Love is not in the beginning temporal and carnal. It is in the beginning eternal and divine; we spoil it when we isolate it from its roots. Love first is God, and then is the human heart. The loves we enjoy all are rays from the eternal sun.

High Cowl Neckline. Jo Copeland is featuring the high cowl neckline in her summer collection. The necklines are draped in a graceful manner. Chiffon is a fabric that this designer prefers. She sometimes uses it in combination with other materials although the dress that is made entirely of the sheer fabric is a favorite.

Handsome fixtures make a big difference. Spark up the powder room with a chandelier light installed directly over the lavatory.

Repairing Veneer That Is Damaged

By Hubbard Cobb

Veneer Repairs. THE other week our wife went to an auction and so now we have a fine old cherry desk that only cost $4.50. Of course, it cost $11.35 to get the thing modestly out to our place but she refuses to figure this amount in with the cost of the desk. As far as she is concerned, the desk cost $4.50 period. Anyway, we have a desk and it looked as if it had gone through a couple of big wars. The finish was shot and what was worse, a lot of the veneer had broken off along the ends. Some of the veneer was badly damaged in the center.

First thing we did was to start fixing up the veneer. You want to do this before you re-finish because by doing all the patching first, you insure getting the patch and the old finish to match pretty well. We removed the damaged veneer with a sharp woodworking knife and got the base wood nice and smooth. We would then cut a piece of veneer to the approximate size and fasten it in place with tape.

The end of the patch would extend over the old good veneer and then we'd take a sharp knife and cut through both thicknesses of veneer. This insured our getting a good tight joint between old veneer and patch. We would then remove the cut off end of the old veneer and glue in our patch.

Where the veneer in the center was damaged we'd cut a diamond shaped patch and insert this in place. If you use a diamond shaped patch on veneer and match up the grain you'll find that when the piece has been refinished, it takes pretty good eyes to pick out the patch.

Veneer, of course, is not always easy to get hold of. Often your local furniture repair store can sell you a few square inches and if you are real eager, you can pick up furniture at a second-hand store and remove the veneer from this. Once you're ready to glue the patch in place, you want to apply a very thin coat of wood glue to the base and the underside of the patch, and then set the patch in place and force it down so it's firm against the base. Wipe off the excess glue and use clamps to hold the patch down until the glue is hard.

Dried Fruits. Don't add sugar to dried prunes or dried apricots until after cooking; if sugar is added during the cooking, it may toughen the fruit.

"Andy says I'm an angel!"

Andy thinks it's nothing short of a miracle the way I manage to get all my housework done and still have time for the many things I really enjoy doing. The truth is, I've simply found faster, easier ways to do my work. Like wood floors. How I used to dread that chore until I found out about Bruce Cleaning Wax. Now it's almost a snap, because Bruce cleans as it waxes. There's no floor washing at all. And, honestly my floors haven't looked so nice in years. If you have wood floors, you really ought to try Bruce Cleaning Wax. I know you'll like it!

Incidentally, I've found other Bruce floor products help me, too. There's Bruce Floor Cleaner for cleaning and lighter waxing, Bruce Paste Wax, Bruce Asphalt Tile Cleaner, Bruce Asphalt Tile Self-Polishing Wax and the new Bruce Self-Polishing Wax. Yes, for floors it's Bruce!

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

WITHIN a massive room lined with seats, a playwright's images are shaped in the form of laughter or tears and a composer's vibrations have the sound of beauty. This is the theater—where there are gilded creations or shoddy brass toys. And each season has its memorable aspects: A bit of soaring poetry, the tinkle of a lovely ballad, a profoundly emotional episode or a provocative study of that strange and splendid being known as a human being. Inevitably, every season has its Golden Boys and Girls—the performers who convey words and music to the minds and hearts of the audience. They are the glittering people—the gifted magicians—who transform a dramatist's imagination into glowing memories.

SUSAN STRASBERG... A DAYDREAM CAME TRUE.

A sudden flash of radiance, signifying the emergence of a star, is one of the theater's impressive phenomena. Lightning struck twice this season—when Susan Strasberg twinkled in "The Diary of Anne Frank" and Andy Griffith sparkled in "No Time for Sergeants."... Andy demonstrated the often ironic development of human destinies. Only a year before he scaled Mount Stardust, Andy flopped in a New York nightclub. He had perseverance, however. Griffith was touring in Dixie when he learned that "Sergeants" was being cast. He planned to Yankeeville specifically to land the role.

Susan Strasberg, a 95-pound bundle of zing, has the extreme sensitivity common to creative artists. Fearful of being rejected, Susan initially refused to audition for the Anne Frank role. The producer coaxed her for several hours before she agreed to read the script. Susan read aloud for 10 minutes and won the role. When she is asked to explain the wonder of stardom, her gray-green eyes widen as she sighs: "In my perfect daydream, I imagined a review like the one Brooks Atkinson did write."

AMONG THE SEASON'S memorable incidents was Paul Muni's return to "Inherit the Wind" after losing an eye. It was a personal triumph for a man whose artistic integrity has reflected his great independence of spirit. He remained in semi-retirement for almost a decade rather than appear in inferior dramas. And he once surrendered a million-dollar movie contract rather than perform in mediocre flickers.... When interviewers inquire about Muni's "acting technique," he grins and recalls his mother-in-law's recipe for making apple pie: "First I comb my hair. Then I wash my hands. Then I put on my apron. Then I make apple pie."

THE FLAME that was Joan of Arc blazes beautifully—when Julie Harris ignites it in "The Lark." Her portrayal of the exalted gamin has the fire and fervor of greatness. Julie is a dedicated performer. When asked what animated her acting career, she explained simply: "Because it is in me." Being showered with wondrous superlatives is unlikely to spoil her. Julie's common-sense attitude toward stardom: "No one ever reaches true stardom in the theater, because no matter how bright your name looks in lights, you have to keep trying for greater achievement."

THE THEATER undoubtedly has a narcotic lure. It frequently creates strange and wonderful visions for audiences. And it is also a happy opiate for performers. Shelley Winters, who gives "A Hatful of Rain" an almost unbearable emotional intensity, has confessed: "Ever since I could remember, I had felt I could be a player on the stage. I signed my first contract for $75 a week. But I would act for nothing but the chance to act."

EDWARD G. ROBINSON had everything that the dream merchants of Hollywood could produce. Success. Fame. Wealth. A stardust world and a swimming pool. Nevertheless, the theater's attraction remained constant. The star of "Middle of the Night" has declared: "All the time I was in Hollywood, I thought about going back to where I started, to the roots and foundations of Broadway."

NO SEASON is complete without a skirmish between critics and thespians. Actress Kim Stanley's declaration of war came in the form of an interview wherein she described the critics as "fatheads." The primary function of a critic is to convey an opinion. They are not infallible, of course. One man's judgment frequently arouses another's scorn. More important—critics are generally honest. Reviewers have a great advantage over performers. It's safer to be a member of the firing squad than the target.

Of course, calling the critics fatheads will not solve anything. No fathead will ever admit he is one.

Fatherless Home

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MOTHERS trying to bring up fatherless sons often make the mistake of overprotection. They should help the boys to be self-reliant, but also to get as many other adult associations—and particularly masculine patterns as father substitutes—as can be found.

Mrs. F. writes me a heartening letter on this subject: "Two years ago my husband deserted me, leaving two sons aged 10 and 12, just the period in which you tell us that a father's influence is most important. After the first shock of the divorce, when they clung to me in panic, they began to assert themselves. They have often acted as if I, a mere woman, couldn't understand them and therefore had no right to direct them. I'm glad of this, in a way, because it shows that I'm not tying them too closely to my apron strings."

"So I followed your suggestion of getting them into as many groups as possible. Apart from school and Sunday school, they have belonged to the Scouts, the Y.M.C.A., and the Order of DeMolay. They have gone camping in summer—just short trips, because we couldn't afford more. But at least they got completely away from feminine influence for 10 days at a time."

"ALL THIS didn't prevent the daily arguments, however, so we have made much use of the family council. We talk things over in a rather formal way, and I try to let them feel that their opinions, if backed by facts which they must get, are as good as mine."

"But I have found it particularly helpful to bring outsiders into the family council, and that's the reason I am writing to you, Dr. Popenoe. I believe this plan would be helpful to many parents, not merely to a fatherless home."

WE INVITE people in—usually one or two at a time—for a Sunday evening snack or something like that. I tell them frankly that we want them to take part in our family council. Maybe the Scoutmaster and his wife discuss with us how late boys should stay up at night, or a bank cashier whose wife was my high-school chum talks over with us the question of allowances or the elements of good buymanship. "Almost any friend or acquaintance can contribute something in this way, and the boys may take it better from an expert outsider than from a parent. I believe family councils are so important that they should be strengthened in every way possible. We've found this to be one good way."

Two-Pound-a-Week Weight Loss Is Best

However, Scales May Not Show Steady Drop if Water Balance Takes Time to Correct Itself

IF YOU LOSE AN AVERAGE OF LESS THAN TWO POUNDS A WEEK YOU ARE NOT STICKING TO YOUR DIET OR YOU HAVE NOT LOCATED YOURSELF CORRECTLY IN THE CALORIES YOU WORK TABLE.

By Herbert Pollack, M.D.

With Arthur D. Morse

Fourth installment of a series by one of the country's top nutritionists. These chapters are from the book, "How to Reduce Safely and Safely," McGraw-Hill, New York.

A WEIGHT loss of about two pounds a week is your safest, surest method of reducing to your most desirable weight. Thus it should take you 10 weeks to lose 20 pounds, 15 weeks to lose 30 pounds, and 20 weeks to reduce by 40 pounds.

If you lose an average of less than two pounds a week, you are not sticking to your diet or you have not located yourself correctly in the Calories You Work table. If you lose an average of more than two pounds a week, you are not eating as much as your Safe and Sure Diet permits or you have not located yourself correctly in the Calories You Work table, which appears with this chapter. You will "find yourself" in the menus published yesterday and today, or to be published tomorrow.

You should not expect a two-pound change every week. Before launching your diet you should become aware of some of the peculiarities of dieting.

Some people, while reducing, lose fat and body tissue without showing any loss on the scale. That is because they are retaining water which replaces the lost tissue. It may take from a week to a month for this water balance to correct itself automatically. Medical journals have reported cases in which there was no weight loss for a month, followed by an eight-to-ten pound loss in a few days.

Here are Menu Patterns and sample menus for people who require more calories than were included in yesterday's menus:

The Calories You Work

IN the following tables are listed "The Calories You Work," which means the calories you spend. How many you spend depends upon your height, age and occupation. Check the table carefully to locate yourself in sex, age and type of work. Then subtract 1000 calories. That figure represents the number of calories you should eat each day in order to lose your excess pounds surely and safely. Your loss should average about two pounds per week. Don't weigh every day. Once a week is enough.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

DIFFICULT bridge hands have a way of becoming classics. That is, they are discussed at great length; the story about them circulates from club to club; and it is not remarkable for travelers to take them to other cities, for the bafflement and/or delectation of the local players.

Thus we come to the hand shown below. If memory serves, this very hand was submitted many years ago, with the question: "Can the four-spade contract be made against the best defense, after the opening lead of the heart eight?" Now it has been sent in again, with the same question.

West dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Actually, the declarer went down one, losing the five of hearts. On a trump lead toward dummy, West wins, and there is now a question of defense, but South can counter anything West does. Actually, West might as well lead another heart. Dummy wins again, South discarding a club, and then the heart jack is ruffed.

Now declarer leads the jack of diamonds, and West's best play is to win and return a diamond. Declarer puts in dummy's nine-spot, then leads the diamond king. East must ruff and South over-ruffs. A trump puts dummy back on lead to cash the remaining high diamonds.

If declarer leaves the hearts in West's hand, so that West can continue to exit in that suit, the contract becomes unmakeable.

Advice on Overcoming Insomnia

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I have been examined recently by a doctor and found to be in top physical condition. Yet, I have a complaint to make. Although I am healthy, I don't have the pep I should. I'm a 41-year-old salesman, have a good job, don't overwork—and still I'm tired. Although I'm not a doctor, I think I know the reason. I'm a poor sleeper.

I'm worn out before sunrise. I've tried all kinds of tricks, like counting sheep, but none seem to help. I don't want to take sleeping pills. Can you make any suggestions that will help us worn-out insomniacs?

Mr. J.T.

ANSWER: Being one of those many persons who are "knocked out" the next day if we don't get our "eight or nine hours," I know exactly how J.T. feels. One who has rarely lost a good night's sleep little realizes the tortures some insomniacs go through.

Here is one type: He goes to bed at 10 p.m. anticipating restful slumber. Within minutes he is fast asleep. About 1 a.m. something prods him into wakefulness. The source is unimportant. It may be the screech of tires on a nearby street or the soft patter of raindrops on his roof. He turns over on his side, but sleep will not return. Then begins the long struggle until daybreak. At times he is so tense, his hands are clenched and his eyes are shut tight. He "lets go" but still, sleep will not come. He counts sheep but gives up when he reaches astronomical figures. He tries a glass of milk. In desperation, he tries to tire himself by reading. His eyes become reddened and strained, but not sufficiently relaxed to allow sleep.

He keeps looking at the stubborn hands of the clock which move so slowly. One-two-three-four—and still awake. At last, in the early hours of morning, sleep blots out the face of the alarm-clock. After what seems only like a minute of the deep slumber, comes the brain-jangling, eruptive clamor of the alarm.

The insomniac is now supposed to be ready for his long, arduous day of work. One such night is bearable. But consider that the true insomniac suffers these nightly tortures seemingly without end.

The other type of insomniac says, "I have trouble getting to sleep. I read as long as I can. Then I turn out the light. I try to relax. My mind skips around like a crazy bug. It won't keep still. I try all kinds of methods to relax, but I can't seem to keep from rerehashing yesterday's work and worrying about what I have to do tomorrow. After a few hours of this tug-of-war, at last I fall asleep—exhausted. And I'm still tired when I get up in the morning."

My Day

A Pleasant Lunch With Congressmen

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON. I HAVE had a very nice time staying in the home of my son James since I came to Washington a few days ago. But we had only one meal together before he left on a hurried speaking trip to the West Coast. On his return, we will breakfast together and then I will leave for the Shoreham Hotel, taking my bags with me in preparation for my departure at the end of the annual conference of the American Association for the United Nations.

I feel that the A.A.U.N. Board of Governors meeting was more successful than any we have had since I became chairman. Representatives from 32 states attended, and the participation and interest was most encouraging.

I WENT directly to our first meeting of the whole group from a hearing of the subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, where I testified on the value of specialized agencies to our economy.

One of the Representatives told me that the day before someone had testified that the Russians always got what they wanted and we were always defeated. This amused me because I worked on the Commission on Human Rights for years and, although I am not a specialized agency, I never remember the Russians achieving much success with their ideas.

In committees of the General Assembly, the vote was continually on the side opposed to the Soviets, with Russia getting only its vote and those of its satellites. I am sure that in the last three years conditions could not have changed so drastically that the Russians are always winning their objectives and we are always losing ours. So I think there must have been some exaggeration on the part of the man testifying before the Foreign Affairs Committee.

While in the East Mrs. Harrison was the houseguest of Mrs. Agnes Dixon Rowland of Green Hedges, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Saturday, March 17, members of the Ferguson Hills Garden Club No. 1 will entertain their husbands at a St. Patrick's day spaghetti supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hagerty, 8 Drummond drive. The party is to celebrate the first anniversary of the organization of the club. Cards, games and dancing are planned.

for the Foreign Affairs Committee.

I HAD the great pleasure of luncheon with a number of the Democratic members of the committee and was surprised to hear that ranking members of this important committee are not called in for consultation by the President despite the fact that appropriations originate in the House.

Members of the House are even closer to their constituents than members of the Senate and I would think that it would be valuable to the President to consult with members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee as well as with members of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee.

MRS. LENORE SCHAEFFER, LEFT, AND MRS. JOSEPH GOLDSTEIN.

Lamar E. Ottsen will speak on "The Wonderful World of Sports," at a dinner meeting of the St. Louis Chapter, National Secretaries Association tomorrow in the Colonial room of Melbourne Hotel at 6:30 p.m. Mr. Ottsen, chairman of the recent Silver Skates carnival held here, is president of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States. Miss Anne Frohman, president, will initiate the following members: Miss Audrey Ottsen, Mrs. Charlene Watkins and Miss Eloise Rueckert.

OPINION

MY niece from another state has come to visit me. She telephoned to ask if she might come and of course I was happy to have her, but now it has become a problem. She and her 4-year-old son have been here only a few days, yet she says nothing of how long her visit is to be. She has separated from her husband and she has no mother. My son and his wife and baby have been living with us and we don't have the room. Besides that, her son seems jealous of the baby as he has hit him and seems to be mean and destructive with his toys. His mother doesn't discipline him at all. I work during the day to pay for little extras that I have bought and her visit has kept me from doing this, so we are in an embarrassing financial situation. I don't know what to do.

DESPERATE.

I think you and your niece will have to have a good heart-to-heart talk. You need not say in so many words, "When are you leaving?" but you certainly can inquire into her plans as you apparently are the relative to whom she turns in trouble. You might suggest that if she wants to settle in St. Louis, you would be glad to help her find a small apartment or housekeeping rooms because, as glad as you are to have her for a visit, your home is too small for all of you to live together. You can also talk to her about the boy's destructive ways and do what you can to protect the baby from his jealous temper—perhaps by stricter discipline, perhaps by showing him a little more affection. And don't let her keep you from going to work. A guest shouldn't be allowed to upset the routine to that extent. Go right ahead and let her take care of herself during your absence.

Dear Martha:

RECENTLY A FRIEND and I discussed the question of wedding and engagement rings. I said the wedding ring is at the back of the finger and the engagement ring in front. She disagrees. Which is proper? JUST WONDERING.

The wedding ring goes on the finger first, then the engagement ring is worn as a guard. When a girl marries, she frequently transfers her engagement ring to her right hand temporarily until the wedding ring is placed on her finger during the ceremony. Later, the diamond is returned to the left hand.

IN ANSWER TO J.M.L.: For the child's sake, return to your husband, especially since he now has a steady job and apparently wants to take the responsibility of supporting you. However, if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will be happy to refer you to a number of agencies where you can receive professional counseling so you can decide just what would be your wisest move at this time.

For those who are over 60, and who want to meet new friends, Martha Carr has compiled a special "senior citizens" club list. For your free copy, write to Martha Carr at the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tactics That Fail

By Ruth Millett

A WOMAN can't win—By acting "hurt" when a man says something she takes as a criticism of herself. Better to accept it calmly if it is true or flippantly if it isn't than to show hurt feelings. A man can be made to feel like a heel if a woman flaunts hurt feelings. But nobody feels like a heel without resenting the person who made him feel like one.

RUTH MILLETT

By being stingy with the compliments she pays her husband. Her stinginess will just make other women's compliments more effective.

By proving to her husband that she is more efficient than he is. One wife confesses that her husband has never raked leaves since the day she went along behind him "tidying" up his somewhat careless job. Now she has the job all to herself. He claims she does it better than he can.

By complaining that her husband doesn't spend enough time with her. The idea is to make him want to spend more time with her, not to try to make him feel he has to.

By using tears to get her way. They'll work for a few times, but they haven't got the staying power of a smile. A man rarely grows bored with a truly happy woman. He can get fed up in a hurry with a woman who uses tears to get what she wants.

By calling attention to her husband's faults. All that does is convince her husband that he married a "nagger."

By trying to keep her husband on the straight and narrow path by jealously checking every move he makes. A man with a jealous, suspicious wife almost feels it is his duty to give her cause for complaint. A man with a wife who trusts and believes in him wants to live up to her high opinion of him.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER tells me: "I had a birthday last week and my boy friend handed me a birthday card in which was enclosed a $10 bill. He said he didn't know what to buy me and to please use the money for something I really wanted. It sounded very practical to me, but when my mother heard of it she almost hit the ceiling and told me in no uncertain terms how wrong it was for a girl to accept money from a man. I can't see what all the fuss is about as he would in all probability have spent this amount on a present anyway. And isn't it better to buy something I really need than to have him spend it on something useless?"

EMILY POST

While your point of view is well taken, I have to agree with your mother. According to convention, a woman does not accept money from a man. It is entirely proper for him to ask you to go with him and pick out one of several things that he has put aside for you to choose from and buy it for you, but for him to give you actual cash is really fabu.

DEAR MRS. POST: I am a school teacher and throughout the school year I receive presents from some of my pupils. In writing thank-you notes for these presents, how should I sign my name? I know that ordinarily Mrs. Jones is not a correct signature, but to sign my name Mary Jones does not seem right to me either in this particular case. Answer: Such letters are correctly signed by whatever name they call you.

Your Food Problems

Herb Flavor for Tomatoes

By Edith M. Barber

MARINATED SLICED TOMATOES, PREPARED WITH A HERB SALAD DRESSING MIX SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO STAND FOR AN HOUR OR MORE IN THE DRESSING BEFORE BEING SERVED.

ONCE upon a time the products we saw in our markets were indicative of the local season for vegetables. Nowadays, however, many of them are available practically the year around.

The tomatoes in the market just now might almost deceive us into thinking that it must be summer, and late summer at that. They are the outdoor-grown, garden tomatoes from the south. I have never eaten better large "beefsteak" tomatoes than the ones that have replaced those rather pale, hot-house products that supplied us earlier in the season.

These are ripe enough for salads and firm enough for baking. One of my friends who dines with me occasionally is not really satisfied unless there are baked tomatoes. She likes these best with pan-fried ham. I approve this combination myself.

Sometimes we have baked or creamed potatoes as an accompaniment. At the last meal we had together, potatoes were omitted in favor of sauteed mushrooms and hot rolls.

Whether the tomatoes are baked or used in salad they are improved by marinating in a French dressing. This should be highly seasoned, which may be done easily with a package of blended herbs and spices designed particularly for this purpose. There are five different blends that need just to be shaken with vinegar and oil.

The tomatoes may be halved, or sliced, arranged in a flat pan and topped with onions or scallions before they are drenched with the dressing. They should be allowed to stand in this if they are to be served in salad.

Baked Tomatoes. Halve firm tomatoes. Arrange in shallow baking pan. Sprinkle with salt and sugar and top with sliced onion. Sprinkle with herb-flavored salad dressing and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 30 minutes. Baste once during the baking.

Marinated Sliced Tomatoes. One package herb salad dressing mix. Vinegar, water, oil. Three peeled ripe tomatoes. One-fourth cup minced white onions or two tablespoons minced scallions.

Combine salad dressing mix, vinegar, water and oil as directed on the package or bottle. Slice tomatoes into one-half inch slices and place in flat pan. Sprinkle onions or scallions over tomatoes. Cover with one-fourth cup of the dressing. Let stand in refrigerator one and one-half to two hours. Place tomatoes on serving plate and cover generously with dressing from pan.

What to Wear

Wardrobe Suggestions for an Army Wife

By Louise Trescott

ARMY wives, who move around the world with their husbands, are beset with wardrobe problems. The tendency to collect too much is a common fault and not inherent to army wives, I might add. The minimum wardrobe, listed below for an army wife, has helpful hints for anyone.

"Wanderer" writes: "I am an army wife, mother of five children from 7 years to 11 months. I have urgent need of advice. I must start a new wardrobe from shoes to hats, including everything in between. We attend many social activities from P-T. A. clear through formal dances, winter and summer. I know clothes are my best bet, but just what exactly? We travel from post to post and rarely meet the same people very often."

"I am 32, 5-foot 6, and weigh 132. I have hazel eyes, pinkish skin, dark brown hair with reddish highlights, and a few gray ones peeking through. I want to know my best colors and the best wardrobe for a person with many places to go and who now owns practically nothing except maternity clothes and three fancy dresses not meant for P-T. A. or church."

IT SEEMS WISE for you to buy few clothes and in the best quality you can afford so they will wear up under your unusually active life. I should choose dark green as your basic. It is a little different and eminently becoming to you, I believe. Buy the indispensable topcoat first—in winter repellent wool with zippered lining, so it is an all-season, all-climate wrap. These can now be found with distinction and style, a far cry from the first stodgey versions of an all-weather coat.

Then invest in a wool tweed, classic suit of medium weight. A green and gray mixture is suggested. Plan two blouses and a sweater set—one gray, one pale green, one white. Accessorize this suit and topcoat with dark green hat, shoes and bag, gray gloves, scarfs in clear red, apple green and pale blue. Add a piece or two of silver jewelry. This segment of your wardrobe should serve for traveling and daytime activities such as shopping, meetings and church for several seasons.

FOR MORE CASUAL daytime doings, separates are your answer. I suggest two skirts and two pairs of slacks, teamed with sweaters and blouses. Select them with different occasions in mind, as a turtle-neck sweater in heavy wool, a classic pullover and cardigan set, a low-necked sweater, a high-necked, long-sleeved, long-torso blouse in jersey and a classic cotton blouse with studs and cuff links, etc.

Don't just buy a sweater or a blouse. Put in a little more oomph than average. Also in this group, a knitted dress is of inestimable value. You are slim and can wear all sorts of belts and other accessory touches to advantage so there's no reason you can't make a few pieces stretch a long way. Wedgies and flats are ideal shoes for these clothes. And a wonderful extra wrap for them is a suede jacket, again in rich dark green.

TO ENLARGE your dressy changes, depend on interchangeable separates. An indestructible standby in party clothes is a black formal, cut in timeless lines. Pay as much money as you dare for this, accessorize it a dozen different ways and you will feel good in it for ten years. I recommend a black evening coat for you with a zip-in quilted satin lining.

You will have to duplicate some items in different weights, according to the climate you are in, but buy as little and as good as possible.

Write Mrs. Louise Trescott in care of the Post-Dispatch for personalized wardrobe advice. She will answer in her column as many questions as possible.

Stimulate Mind, Body For Health

By Josephine Lowman

TODAY let me call your attention to the importance of both mental and physical stimulation in your daily life and warn you against inactivity. When writing about exertion I always warn you that this is an individual matter, that what is good for one person might be bad or even dangerous for another.

However, the value of regular exercise in maintaining a high level of health and in delaying the signs of aging is becoming more and more apparent. Probably more people die of "rocking-chairitis" than of exercise. However, in this you should be guided by your doctor.

IF YOU DO TRY regular daily exercise you will find that you fall heir to many happy by-products. You will have a new sense of aliveness and well-being, movement will be a pleasure, your body tone will improve and you probably will find that constipation, chronic fatigue and creaking joints are things of the past.

In the realm of emotional and mental stimulation, which are also of the greatest importance in health and in prolonging the youthful portion of life, there is all the great literature, and great music; there are hobbies and study courses and art and nature. Soak up some of these for the sake of your soul and your mind. Boredom is about as great a hazard as physical inactivity.

EXCITING INTERESTS and muscular activity both speed up the pulse and invigorate the body.

Stimulation of an active, physical nature is a definite aid in such minor problems as blackheads and a tight scalp. Scalp massage can do loads for the beauty of your tresses while a complexion brush whips up circulation and is corrective to both whiteheads and blackheads.

Parquet Floor by You

By Elizabeth Hillyer

NOW that waxed and shining wood floors show so generously and fashionably again, of course there must be some way for the do-it-yourself brigade to tackle the job of laying them.

And there is. Blocks of beautiful woods, many ready-finished, are ready-cut for parquet designs. Edges are tongue-and-grooved so they fit together easily and grip each other firmly to form an even, flat surface.

Mastic for the special purpose of holding the wood blocks to the floor can be purchased with them, and yes, the blocks can be laid over an old floor if it is even. The only preparation the old floors needs is the removal of wax so the mastic can stick securely.

If you have an idea that such elegant flooring would be very costly, the price of the wood blocks comes as a surprise. And there's an increasing variety of woods, finish colors and sizes and shapes of blocks so the new floor by you can be just what you want.

THE ETHELBERT GATE in Norwich, England was built by the townpeople as a penance for a riot staged in 1172 in which they destroyed the church of St. Ethelbert.

FRANK BURG of Central City, Neb., wore the same pair of shoes at his wedding in 1905 and at the celebration in 1955 of his golden wedding anniversary.

AN extra day in February means that we are having another "leap year." This is a good day to answer several questions about leap years.

Q. Why do we have a leap year once in four years?

A. The custom is followed because it is important to keep the calendar in order. A year (that is, one complete trip of the earth around the sun) lasts about one-fourth of a day longer than 365 days. Almost a full day is accumulated in four years, and that is why we have leap years.

Q. Why is the extra day given to February?

A. Because it is the shortest month. It is the month which most needs an extra day!

Q. How did February happen to become the shortest month?

A. At one time it had 30 days. It was robbed of a day by Julius Caesar, and the stolen day was given to his month—July. Later the ruler Augustus took another day from February, and this one was given to August.

Q. How much time (in hours, minutes and seconds) does a true year have above 365 days?

A. The extra time in a true year amounts to five hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds. That is 11 minutes and four seconds less than one-fourth of a day.

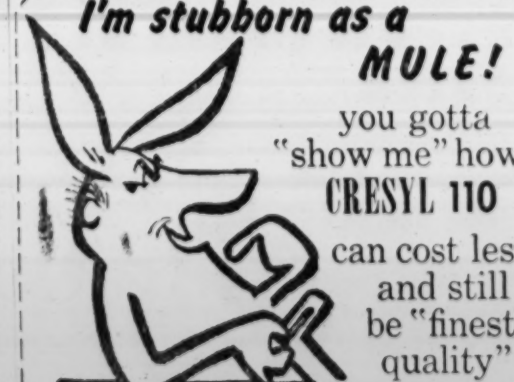

Q. Does that bit of time (11 minutes and four seconds) make any difference in practical life?

A. It makes a little difference in the course of one century. In 16 centuries after the death of Caesar, the difference amounted to 13 days. This was corrected, in large part, during the time of the pope who gave his name to the Gregorian calendar. Ten days (instead of 13) were dropped from the calendar in Italy. Other countries later adopted the changed calendar.

I'm stubborn as a MULE! you gotta "show me" how CRESYL 110 can hit less and still be "finest quality"

Want to be "shown"? Independent laboratory reports show that there is no finer, higher octane gasoline in St. Louis than Cresyl 110. If you can sell "the best" at "lower" prices, EVERYBODY profits...you, with quality plus savings and WE, with more customers (and, we'll have to admit, more profits). Fair enough?
